WHOEVER WINS IN IOWA PRIMARIES TOMORROW, HE'LL BE ANTI-COOLIDGE

Farmers Hopping Mad at National Administration's Chill Indifference to Their Troubles.

"I TOLD YOU SO," BROOKHART CRIES

Cummins Managers Protest That Senator Has Broken With President on Farm Relief.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON.
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DES MOINES, Ia., June 5.—The immediate purpose of the primary election to be held in this State Monday is the nomination of candidates for the United States Senate, but the consequences may be of vaster import. Actually, the outcome of this primary may largely determine whether President Coolidge will be the Republican nominee for a third term in 1928.

A victory by Smith W. Brookhart over Senator Albert B. Cummins for the Republican senatorial nomination would be an open, direct and clear-cut repudiation of the Coolidge administration by one of the most stalwartly Republican states in the Union. Moreover, it would be a convincing demonstration that the entire agricultural West and Northwest is through with Coolidge and ready to follow somebody who will lend a less glacial ear to the cries of the farmer.

On the other hand the triumph of Cummins would merely save the Administration's face. It could not be construed as a vindication of the Coolidge policies. It would only mean that Iowa does not disapprove those policies as violently as it might. The nomination of Brookhart would signify that it did not possibly think worse of them than it does.

Iowa Situation Astounding.

The fact is that the political situation which has developed on the eve of this primary election is simply astounding, and it is doubly astounding to those accustomed to the legend of "Coolidge popularity."

In Pennsylvania a few weeks ago there was the spectacle of three candidates for the Republican nomination for Senator, each loudly proclaiming himself a devoted adherent of the Coolidge policies. Today in this State, vastly less preponderantly Republican than Pennsylvania, there is the spectacle of two leading candidates for the Republican nomination, one proclaiming his utter and unsparing hostility to the Administration, and the other pleading that he is not nearly so good an Administration man as he has been painted up to be. The third candidate, who is a 100 to 1 shot, is no less hostile to the administration.

Is the best the Coolidge administration can get out of this primary is a black eye, and the worst that can get is a knockout. Incidentally, there is a possibility that in the long run the Democrats may lose a Senator out of it.

In 1924 Coolidge carried Iowa by a tremendous majority. The vote was: Coolidge, 537,000; La Follette, 274,000; Davis, 160,000. What, then is the explanation of this amazing change of sentiment?

Four Reasons for Change.

The answers are given in what appears to be the order of their importance.

1. Continuance of the agricultural depression, and the cold indifference manifested by President Coolidge and his New England advisers toward all proposals to relieve it.

2. The unseating of Brookhart by the Senate and the apparently widespread conviction that the Administration connived at it, to overrode the Iowa election and to accomplish it.

3. Resentment against the opposition of the Federal Reserve Board and an apparent belief that the act is employed mainly for the benefit and profit of Eastern bankers.

4. Resentment against high freight rates, and the belief that these rates are the result of the Esch-Cummins law.

5. Dawning conviction that the high tariff operates almost exclusively to the benefit of manufacturers and against the farmers.

BARS BETTING AT CHICAGO

Prosecutor Issues Ultimatum to Steward at Hawthorne.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Horse racing in Cook County will be held without betting of any kind and without any disreputable characters infesting the track, or there will be no racing this summer. This was the ultimatum delivered today to Joseph Murphy, racing steward of Hawthorne, by Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney.

The prosecutor called the racing men to his office and told them that any meet at Hawthorne or the new Homewood track must be without betting of any kind.

MORE OFFICERS THAN PRIVATES

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—More than half of the enlisted men in the regular army are non-commissioned officers. War Department figures show a total enlisted strength of 118,750, including only 59,064 privates and 59,686 non-coms.

Family of Four Dead From Gas.

By the Associated Press.

EVERETT, Wash., June 5.—A family of four, McCrossen Thayer, 49 years old, his wife, Mrs. Norline Thayer, 47, a son, James, 22, and a daughter, Cornelia, 16, were found dead on the second floor of their home here today. Death was caused by asphyxiation. Gas was discovered by be flowing from a main supply line on the first floor which was unscrewed. Officials who investigated the case united in declaring that Thayer turned on the gas.

Overman Apparently Renominated.

By the Associated Press.

RALIEGH, N. C., June 5.—Senator Lee S. Overman, seeking renomination on the Democratic tickwet, had more than a two to one lead over his opponent, Robert Reynolds, of Asheville, on partial returns from today's primary. With 179 out of 1717 precincts reported, Overman had 16,610, Reynolds 7475. The nomination is considered equivalent to election.

JUDGE FREY GAVE A $6500 FEE JOB TO FATHER-IN-LAW

Objection Made to Payment to Moses N. Sale as Master in Lincoln Housing Trust Claims.

WAS ALLOWED $1500 FOR 8 HOURS' WORK

Collected $5000 for Incomplete Report, Then Was Granted More for Completing It.

Another case in which Circuit Judge Frey appointed a relative to a position with a fee attached, in which dissatisfaction with the amount of the fee has been voiced in court, was called to public notice yesterday. A motion was filed to set aside a $1500 allowance to former Circuit Judge Moses N. Sale, father-in-law and former law partner of Judge Frey.

The first case, as has been told, was that of the American General Indemnity Corporation receivership in which Judge Frey, in November, 1924, appointed his nephew, Karol A. Korngold, as one of the receivers' attorneys, and also appointed his courtroom stenographer, Harvey G. Readey, as co-receiver. Charles G. Revelle was the other receiver and Conway Elder the other attorney appointed. Judge Ittner recently allowed the four $30,000 in fees in equal parts, but set aside the order on protest of State Insurance Superintendent Hyde, who declared the fees excessive for the amount of work performed. A hearing on this will be held Friday.

Sale Allowed $6500

Sale was appointed by his son-in-law, Judge Frey, as special master in the Lincoln Housing Trust receivership, June 23, 1924, when Judge Frey was presiding in Equity Division No. 14. On Sept. 18 last, Judge Falkenhainer, who had succeeded Judge Frey in that division, allowed Sale a $5000 fee for services and recently Judge Ittner, who had succeeded Judge Falkenhainer in that division, granted an additional fee of $1500.

The motion to vacate the $1500 award was filed before Judge Ittner yesterday, but no date for hearing was set.

The motion recites that the $5000 allowance was a very liberal one for the special master's work in receiving and reporting on claims of certificate holders. In the first place, it is contended, the services of a special master were not wholly necessary, as the State Finance Commissioner, who was receiver, maintained a large and expensive staff of assistants who had all the records and were fully equipped to handle claims, as they did in several other housing trust receiverships then pending.

It is asserted that Special Master Sale's report concerned matters that were little more than clerical and bookkeeping entries, but, when it was filed in court, it was found to be incomplete, in that it listed approximately 400 claimants and omitted data about 200 of them.

$1500 for Eight Hours' Work.

In the latter class was the claim of F. L. Riggin, a manufacturer, of Port Huron, Mich., who now moves to set aside the $1500 allowance. When attention was called to the omission in the report, the motion states, the report was referred back to Sale who "held four sessions of two hours each and did thereafter file a supplementary report." For the additional services Sale was allowed $1500, in addition to the $5000 previously allowed. According to Riggin, the extra allowance was detrimental to creditors and should not have been more than $500.

Riggin is represented by Patrick H. Cullen, who has other clients with similar claims. Ephrim Caplan, also representing exceptors, said yesterday he would join with Cullen in opposing the second allowance.

Sale in his report allowed a total of approximately $80,000 in claims, of which about half were of Caplan's clients. It is the contention of the exceptors that Sale erred in allowing the claims on a forfeiture basis instead of for the full amount paid in by the claimants. Judge Ittner overruled the exceptions, and yesterday Caplan gave notice he would appeal to the Supreme Court. Caplan claims his clients are entitled to double the amount recommended by the Special Master.

Cullen is one of the defense counsel for Circuit Attorney Sidener, now under indictment in the Rutherford case. Judge Frey testified before the grand jury which indicted Sidener.

Record show that Judge Frey's

$6000 ROBBERY STORY A FAKE TO FOOL HIS BRIDE

Joseph Jacobs, 24, a Machinist, Admits He Never Had That Much, Although He Told Girl He Had.

SO THEY WERE WED AND PLANNED HOME

Then He Reports Being Slugged and Taken to County—Mate and the Police Forgive Him.

A substantial home in South St. Louis, free of mortgage and nicely furnished, was one of the talking points upon which Joseph Jacobs persuaded Thekla Welking to marry him last Wednesday.

Of course Jacobs, being a $40-a-week machinist and only 24 years old, was not likely to possess the $6400 necessary to buy the home they discussed. He had to make good some way. Yesterday he had himself "robbed."

He left his home at 7902 South Broadway yesterday morning, telephoned his bride at her home at 8101 Pennsylvania avenue, made an engagement to meet her at a real estate office at Michigan and Kansas avenue and then dropped out of sight.

At 2 p. m. his brother, Mike, summoned by telephone, found Joe sitting in a garage at Mehlville, on Lemay Ferry road, St. Louis County. He had a dazed look and a torn pocket from which he said someone had stolen $6403—the $3 being by way of local color.

Interviewed at his home he told policemen he had been slugged as he left a drug store at 7800 Ivory avenue.

"At least something happened," he said. "When I woke up my money was gone."

The money, he said, was to supplement $125 he had paid on the house where he and his bride were to live. There were no marks on his body, and anyhow, Joe was too indefinite, so Capt. Hoffman took him to the Carondelet Police Station and questioned him—for two hours.

At the end of that time Joe was still sure his money was missing. He was left alone to talk it over with Mrs. Jacobs and ten minutes later he called the Captain.

"All a fake, Captain," he said sheepishly. "I wasn't robbed. I was just trying to make good some way on the $6400 I was supposed to have."

Mrs. Jacobs was disposed to forgive her husband, and who was a Police Captain to be unrelenting? Capt. Hoffman waved a hand to the door.

"Better go on home," he grinned. "Tell that policeman out in front to take you home in our machine."

EARTHQUAKE RECORDED HERE

St. Louis U. Seismologist Places Center 1070 Miles Southwest.

An earthquake of moderate intensity was recorded yesterday afternoon on the seismograph at St. Louis University, beginning at 1:53 and ending at 2:25 o'clock. Brother George Rueppel, seismologist, calculated the center of the disturbance at a point 1070 miles southwest of St. Louis, in Mexico.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—A "very severe" earthquake was registered today on the Georgetown University seismograph. Director Tondorf, estimating the distance at 2700 miles from Washington in a southerly direction, said the disturbance commenced at 2:57 o'clock and the tremors were still being recorded at 5 o'clock. The maximum occurred between 3:16 and 3:22 p. m.

QUEEN BARS PORTRAIT IN "AD"

Rumanians Criticised Marie for Permitting Its Use.

BUCHAREST, June 5.—Queen Marie, who permitted the use of her likeness in an American Cosmetic advertisment recently, has decided not to do so again. The fee received by the queen was turned over to charities.

Publication of the picture led dozens of other American companies to seek photographs, but the Queen's action caused so much criticism among Rumanians, that she decided she could no longer permit it.

BARONESS KILLS SELF AS HUSBAND AND PRINCE FIGHT

Baron Klinger and Cyril Vladimir Orloff Shoot Each Other in Forest at Raab, Austria.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, June 5.—Details of the suicide at Raab of the Baroness Klinger and the fight between her husband and her noble Russian admirer, Cyril Vladimir Orloff, are slowly coming out.

The story recalls the Meyerling tragedy which cost the life of Crown Prince Rudolf. The Meyerling tragedy occurred in 1889, and was reported to have been the outcome of a quarrel between the Crown Prince and two foreign officers over the Baroness Vetsera, who, on witnessing the death of the Prince, fell dead, either from a shot fired by herself or by one of the guests at the castle.

Chauffeur Tells Story.

In a deposition today the chauffeur who drove Prince Orloff from Vienna to Raab describes the meeting of the Prince and the Baroness at the castle. The Baroness received Orloff, and, taking him aside, pointed in the direction of a nearby wood. The Prince proceeded in this direction and disappeared, to return later with his arm almost severed at the shoulder. He bade the chauffeur drive quickly to a hospital, but, finding the wound more serious than he had thought, drove, instead, to a gendarmes' post, where the Prince admitted that he had fought a duel. He then was taken to the hospital.

Baron Klinger, in the duel with Orloff, was shot in the lung. Both men are reported to be in a serious condition.

Various accounts are current as to the real nature of the encounter between Klinger and Orloff. One was that Orloff fired the first shot and that Klinger answered with a charge of buckshot from his hunting gun.

A Hungarian friend of Prince Orloff's, Emmerich von Somogyi, who accompanied the Prince from Vienna, was arrested.

One of a Famous Family.

Orloff is a descendant of the famous feudal family of Orloffs of the Crimea, dating back to the Middle Ages, of whom three handsome Orloff brothers were especial favorites of Catherine the Great. The family owned millions of acres in the Crimea and many castles and served in the crack regiments down to the time of the World War. The Orloffs' hereditary power was broken by the Bolshevik revolution; several members of the family were murdered and others expatriated. All the survivors now are roaming the world as exiles, although some are still wealthy.

Baron Klinger is a rich land owner, and he owns textile factories in Czecho-Slovakia.

The suicide of the Baroness when she learned of the duel gives the incident an even more tragic atmosphere, for she was youthful and considered one of the most beautiful women in Austria.

BRITAIN AND TURKEY SIGN MOSUL OIL PACT

Sultan's Grant Recognized in Return for 10 Per Cent of the Revenues.

By the Associated Press.

SALONIKA, Greece, June 5.—The Mosul agreement between Turkey and Great Britain was signed here late tonight.

Turkey and Great Britain thus have effected a solution of the territorial and oil dispute of long standing. The intervention of the League of Nations prevented serious trobule over what is said to be the world's richest untapped oil region in the vilayet of Mosul, Kingdom of Irak, formerly known as Mesopotamia. The British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Linsay, and Tewfik Rusndi Bey, the Turkish Foreign Minister, were prime movers in the settlement.

According to a recent Constantinople dispatch, Turkey, under the agreement, will receive 10 per cent of the revenue from the Mosul oil fields. In return for that concession the Turkish Government agrees to recognize the validity of the oil grant obtained by the Turkish Petroleum Co., a British-owned corporation, from the Sultan's regime.

BRITON ANSWERS ATTACKS ON PANAMA CONCESSION

Denies His Government Is Interested or That Rubber Growing Is Contemplated.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, June 5.—Henry Mond, son of Sir Alfred Mond, and one of the directors and organizers of the Panama Corporation, denied today that his company contemplates rubber growing on its concession in Panama. The granting of the concession was assailed in the United States Senate.

Mond admitted that the concession gives the company certain police powers in the area controlled. "But there is absolutely no question of our having obtained anything at all in the nature of military powers." Mining, he said, was the principal business of his company there.

He denied the British Government was interested in the scheme.

STUDENTS OPPOSED TO PETTING

Are Also Against Drinking at Missouri University.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 5.—More than half the upper class students at the University of Missouri who answered a recent student questionnaire are opposed to petting, and three-fourths of them oppose drinking, it was divulged here today, when tabulations of the answers were made public. The questionnaire was circulated by student organizations.

Thirty-five per cent of the men students who answered the questionnaire are opposed to petting, and 90 per cent of the women expressed the same view. Sixty per cent of the men voiced opposition to drinking, and 96 per cent of the women.

THREE POLICEMEN HELD AS MEMBERS OF ROBBER GANG

One Chicago Officer Said to Have Confessed — Thousands in Merchandise Stolen From Stores.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 5.—at least a dozen recent robberies at various stores, totaling thousands of dollars in losses, are believed to have been cleared up today through the arrests of three city policemen, two private watchmen and several others following an investigation by police of the Shakspeare avenue district.

One of the policemen held, John Manion, assigned to the Jackson Boulevard Bridge, is reported to have made a full confession. The other two policemen in custody, Philip Lorenz of the Central Detail Flivver Squad, and Walter W. Farrell, formerly assigned with Lorenz, but now at the Detective Bureau, though pointed out as participating in the robber raids, denied implication or knowledge of them. Howard Blair and Charles Baker, the two private watchmen, also are reported to have been members of the robber gang.

Several members of the gang, whose names are known to police, are being sought.

Arrest of Devon Blair, brother of Howard, led to the uncovering of the alleged operations of the gang. A search of the Blair home resulted in the discovery of much stolen goods stored there, it was said.

BULLS TERRIFY CROWDS IN STREETS OF LIVERPOOL

Herd Breaks Loose in City's Business Section Invading Stores and Injuring Shoppers.

LIVERPOOL, England, June 5.—A herd of bullocks being driven to slaghter broke loose and ran amuck this afternoon in the neighborhood of Scotland road, and for a long time held that crowded section of Liverpool terrorized as they charged hither and thither.

Some of the beasts even invaded stores. A number of persons were knocked down and several injured, but none seriously. The crowds fled in all directions to escape the onrushing animals, which themselves were more terrified than angry.

Seven bullocks raced into one big store, creating a panic among the clerks and the big crowd of Saturday customers, who scrambled for the first refuge available. One animal rushed from a building with a man clinging to his head. The man was injured and taken to a hospital. Another fiery Canadian bull charged up Scotland road with a man seated precariously on his back, clinging to the horns. Where the bull picked up his jockey is unknown, but the man jumped to safety after his wild ride. All the animals were ultimately rounded up.

PLOT TO PERVERT JUSTICE ALLEGED BY GRAND JURORS

FIVE ST. LOUISANS GIVE $1000 BONDS

Move to Suspend Circuit Attorney Expected — June Grand Jury to Continue Investigation.

One month after William Allen Scott Rutherford paid $500 fine for killing a bellboy, and walked out of court free, the grand jury yesterday indicted six men, Circuit Attorney Sidener included, charging them with conspiracy to "pervert and obstruct justice" in Rutherford's case.

The six indicted, and the indictments returned four days earlier against three of them, based on the same matter, are:

Circuit Attorney Sidener, who recommended the acceptance of a manslaughter plea and the imposition of a $500 fine; indicted Tuesday on charges of compounding a felony and fraud in office.

A. Samuel Bender, candidate for nomination for Circuit Judge, who had the dual role of special prosecutor and damage suit lawyer; indicted Tuesday on charges of compounding a felony.

John Rutherford of Pine Bluff, Ark., who paid more than $14,500 to "arrange matters;" indicted Tuesday on bribery charge.

W. W. Henderson, former Probate Judge, chief counsel for Allen Rutherford.

Verne R. C. Lacy, former Assistant Circuit Attorney and associate counsel for Rutherford.

William Geist, record clerk in Circuit Attorney's office.

The offense charged is a misdemeanor, punishable on conviction by a jail term up to six months, or fine up to $500, or both.

Five St. Louisans Give Bond.

Bonds of $1000 each were furnished by the five St. Louis men indicted. John Rutherford is not within the Court's jurisdiction at present.

Sidener gave out this statement: "The charges set out in the indictments are neither true nor based upon any truthful or competent evidence. I am eager to meet the issue in court at once and to prove the utter falsity of the charges filed against me."

Bender has already filed a motion for an immediate trial on the first indictment returned against him.

The indictments marked the end of the work of the April grand jury on the case, its term being completed yesterday. The June grand jury, to be impaneled tomorrow, before Judge Landwehr, is expected to carry on both the inquiry into the Rutherford case and the investigation of the Circuit Attorney's office, by order of Gov. Baker, under direction of Attorney-General Gentry and his special assistant, Arthur V. Lashly.

Early developments expected are the attempted suspension of Circuit Attorney Sidener from office, and an effort to obtain extradition from Arkansas of Allen Rutherford, against whom the charge of second-degree murder has been reinstated, and John Rutherford. The Attorney-General expects to go to Little Rock in this connection.

Circuit Judge Mix, who accepted the Circuit Attorney's recommendation in the case of Allen Rutherford, and who has admitted that he had some knowledge of the efforts being made to settle the case on the basis of a fine, was not censured by the grand jury in its report.

"Certain Judicial Officers."

The grand jury's report mentions suggestions and inquiries as to commendation or criticism by the grand jury of "certain judicial officers," but it declines to make any such finding or comment, citing instead, the State Constitution, in Article VII, Section 1, which gives the Legislature the sole power to impeach and try Circuit Judges.

But the grand jury declares

MEN WHO CALLED ON JUDGE BOLSTER CONSPIRACY CASE

Joseph Siegel and Martin Adler Tell of Negotiations by Rutherford Defense Lawyers.

BOTH DENY BEING PAID FOR EFFORTS

Gentry Convinced Whole Story Has Not Been Told —Suspects Attempt to Shield Someone.

Stories told to Attorney-General Gentry by Martin Adler and Joseph Siegel, the men who "saw the Judge" in the Rutherford murder case, bear strongly on the parts which each of the six men indicted yesterday for conspiracy to "pervert and obstruct justice" took in the negotiations leading up to the freeing of William Allen Scott Rutherford on $500 fine.

The admissions of Adler and Siegel, particularly the latter, as exclusively reported in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, are regarded by the Attorney-General as bolstering the State's case against Circuit Attorney Sidener, the Rutherford lawyers and others involved.

Sidener, W. W. Henderson, Verne R. C. Lacy, William Geist, John Rutherford and A. Samuel Bender are accused of conspiracy in the indictments on the following grounds:

First, that they induced Mrs. Tillie Tucker, mother of the Majestic Hotel bellboy slain by Allen Rutherford, to sign with her mark an affidavit asking Judge Mix to accept Sidener's recommendation of a $500 fine as Rutherford's punishment by promising her $4500 which John Rutherford was to pay, and did pay.

Second, that they leagued together to originate and impress upon the court the false statement: "Important witnesses are missing and the State is in a helpless condition."

Gentry Cross-Examines Siegel.

Attorney-General Gentry wrung from the reluctant Siegel in an ante-room cross-examination Friday the acknowledgment that he and Adler attended a conference with Bender, Henderson and John Rutherford in Henderson's law office at which the whole plan to free Allen Rutherford was discussed.

Siegel admitted that he had a previous conference with Henderson, a former Probate Judge, about the case and was told: "Come back tomorrow, when John Rutherford will be here from Arkansas to talk matters over." So Siegel went back the next day and John Rutherford told him that the only chance Mrs. Tucker had of getting any money from the Rutherford family depended on whether criminal prosecution of Allen Rutherford was dropped. John Rutherford was emphatic in saying, Siegel related, that the criminal case would have to be "fixed up" before any money was paid to Mrs. Tucker. Siegel and Adler profess that they were interested in the case because they wanted to see Mrs. Tucker taken care of.

This pair, accordingly, took upon themselves the job of trying to "arrange matters" and went to see Circuit Judge Frey about the case. When Judge Frey, in whose court the murder case was docketed, refused to discuss it with them, they went to Aaron Waldheim, capitalist and Jewish charity leader, and had Waldheim ask the Judge over the telephone to give them another hearing. On the second visit Siegel admits telling Judge Frey he understood "witnesses were missing and the State had a weak case." He also says he told Judge Frey that there was a chance to get some money for Mrs. Tucker from the Rutherfords and that Circuit Attorney Sidener would recommend a plea of guilty to manslaughter and $500 fine. He added, "Someone else is taking care of that end."

The Judge told him he would not accept such a recommendation from Sidener.

Pair Call on William Geist.

Not despairing, Siegel made other visits accompanied by Adler in connection with the case, and says he saw William Geist and Sidener, though he refused to tell the Attorney-General what he said to Geist and Sidener or what they said to him. Gentry wanted him to admit that the interest of himself and Adler was not entirely humanitarian, that John Rutherford had given them money for their services in his behalf, but Siegel denied he received any money.

However, Gentry learned from Siegel what he wanted to know. He expects to use Siegel as a witness to show that there was a prearranged plan to get Rutherford off with a fine.

Siegel, through his story of the conference in Henderson's office, has implicated Henderson, Rutherford and Bender directly in the negotiations, Gentry believes.

The admissions of Siegel have added another witness to the charge that Henderson took an active part in the negotiations. Hitherto, Henderson has figured only as the man to whom John Rutherford delivered about $15,000 "to arrange matters" and as one of the men who conferred privately with Judge Mix, to whom Judge Frey had sent the case on change of venue. Henderson's associate, Lacy, has told the Post-Dispatch of the private conferences with Judge Mix, at one of which Henderson was present.

Linking Bender in the negotiations, Gentry sought to draw from Siegel during his cross-examination, what relationship existed between Bender and Siegel and Adler. Siegel confessed having engaged Bender to represent Mrs. Tucker in the case on what was apparently a contingent fee basis, Mrs. Tucker being penniless. The admission also was made by Siegel that he had advised with Bender frequently as to steps to be taken in "arranging matters," and that Bender heard Rutherford's ultimatum: "Settle the criminal case or Mrs. Tucker won't get a penny."

It is one of the contentions of the conspiracy indictment that Bender and the others induced Mrs. Tucker to sign her affidavit urging clemency for her son's slayer by telling her that unless she did Rutherford would not pay her the $6000 at first mentioned. This sum was later reduced to $5500 and Bender took $1000 as his fee, leaving $4500 net to Mrs. Tucker.

Charge That Offer Was Bribe.

The State plans to argue that Bender stood to profit directly by collecting his $1000 fee if the case was settled, and that Rutherford's offer of money to Mrs. Tucker, was in effect a bribe. Before Bender could collect his fee he had to "arrange matters" so Allen Rutherford escaped the second degree murder charge.

With Adler, a retired broker, the Attorney-General was not so successful. Adler was called before the grand jury three times, and each time is known to have admitted a little more of his part in the negotiations. In Gentry's talk with him, Adler confessed having helped Siegel "arrange matters," but he, like Siegel, insisted that Rutherford paid him no money for his services.

Adler had talked with Bender about the case, but whenever Gentry sought to ascertain the subject matter of these conversations, Adler pleaded illness. He would hold his head in his hands and moan.

"My memory fails me," he told Gentry, "I have a very bad head. I have been seeing the doctor."

Later, when Gentry again pressed the point Adler suffered a total lapse of memory, a slight heart attack, and a spell of toothache. He finally was excused.

Adler, Siegel and Bender all reside at the Majestic Hotel. The Attorney-General felt that both Siegel and Adler were shielding someone. Gentry wanted to learn if Bender, who as special prosecutor was charged with the duty of furthering vigorous prosecution of the case, had asked them to see Judge Frey and talk to Geist and Sidener.

It is known that Siegel was named in the first draft of the conspiracy indictment. When he heard that he probably would be indicted, he sent word through Randolph Laughlin, his attorney, that he was "ready to talk." Gentry was not disposed to permit Siegel to gain immunity by testifying before the grand jury unless he was assured of Siegel's desire to tell the truth. He, accordingly, arranged the anteroom conference.

Whole Story Not Yet Told.

The Attorney-General believes that Siegel has not yet told the whole story. Although Siegel's name was not included in the conspiracy indictment he is not clear of possible prosecution. It was explained to him that if he would testify without evasions and equivocations he might be sent before the new grand jury. With this understanding, Siegel's position in the case is still in doubt.

In summing up the evidence on which the State will prosecute the conspiracy charges, Attorney-General Gentry makes it emphatic that Sidener and Geist will be involved on the following contentions:

That Sidener must have known of the inducement to Mrs. Tucker to sign the affidavit because in the first draft of this affidavit, as drawn by Assistant Circuit Attorney John E. Bowcock at Sidener's direction, the sum of $6000 was specially mentioned as Mrs. Tucker's reward from the Rutherfords. Later, Sidener ordered Bowcock to strike out the mention of the $6000 and this was done.

That Sidener made the statement to the court through Bowcock: "Important witnesses are missing and the State is in a helpless condition."

That Geist must have known of the alleged conspiracy and was a party to it, because he told Judge Frey when the Judge talked with him about the proposal to free Rutherford on $500 fine: "I am going to see that Howard (Sidener) does this."

That Geist, after it was done, defended the recommendation in conversation with newspaper reporters.

The State plans to present the picture, bolstered by the admissions of Siegel, Adler and Lacy, of a well-defined scheme to obtain Rutherford's freedom, entered into allegedly by the six men named in the indictments, to cause Mrs. Tucker to sign the affidavit through promise of money and to cause the court to accept Sidener's recommendation by circulation of the false story about missing witnesses and the weakness of the State's case.

Text of Grand Jury Report On the Rutherford Case

THE final report of the grand jury, which returned indictments in its investigation of the Rutherford murder case, follows:

"The grand jury for the April term, 1926, is about to end its labors by reason of the expiration of this term of court.

"While the desired investigations have not been completed, the shortness of time makes it necessary for any additional investigations to be made by another grand jury.

"As is well known to the Court and the public, His Excellency, Honarable Sam A. Baker, Governor of Missouri, directed Honorable North T. Gentry, Attorney-General, to appear before the grand jury and conduct certain investigations, either in person or by his assistant. The Attorney-General and his assistant, Honorable Arthur V. Lashly, have been with the grand jury now for the past ten days, and a large number of witnesses have been examined. The grand jury desires to express its appreciation of the services rendered by these gentlemen, who have labored diligently in the interest of the enforcement of our law.

"The indictments returned by the grand jury at this term speak for themselves; no further comment is necessary regarding them.

Some citizens of St. Louis and some of the press thereof have asked questions and made suggestions regarding words of commendation or criticism by the grand jury of certain of our judicial officers; but the grand jury declines to make any finding or comment thereon for the reason that Section 1, Article VII., Constitution of Missouri, places jurisdiction over such officers exclusively with the General Assembly of Missouri.

"From the investigations, the grand jury learns that there is a practice among some of the courts of St. Louis and elsewhere for the courts to sentence a defendant who pleads guilty and fix the punishment as recommended by the prosecuting officer. This custom, although sometimes observed in good faith on the part of the Judges of these courts, does not meet with our approval, for the reason that a court may thereby very easily be imposed upon by the prosecuting officer or his assistant in charge of a criminal case.

"We desire to direct attention to what appears to be exceeding laxity in the motter of the preparation and service of subpenas. The preparation of such subpenas should be the duty of the Circuit Attorney, who should be responsible for the insertion of the correct names and addresses of all the witnesses. That duty should not end by merely placing the subpena in the hands of the Sheriff or police officer for service, but he should diligently check up on the service to the end that the witness shall be in court on the day the cases are set for trial.

"The practice of the Deputy Sheriffs of leaving copies of subpenaes in mail boxes and with others than the persons subpenaed should be discontinued. Witnesses in criminal cases should be personally served. In the investigation of the Rutherford case under the direction of the Attorney-General, during which, with the full co-operation of the Sheriff's office and special police officers assigned to duty on the case, witnesses were personally served with great dispatch and, in every instance appeared at the hour designated in the subpena, is a striking illustration of the kind of service which is possible by the exercise of diligence. Such service in the every-day routine of the prosecution of criminals is in our opinion, absolutely essential to a proper administration of the criminal laws.

"The grand jury also desires to call the attention of the public to the very tireless and fearless manner in which the St. Louis newspapers have co-operated with the grand jury in its investigation of the Rutherford case and attracting the attention of the public thereto.

"We also commend the action of the Chamber of Commerce and the St. Louis Bar Association in bringing to the attention of his excellency, Gov. Baker, the importance of this grand jury investigation.

"In conclusion, the grand jury wishes to express its appreciation to the Court, the Clerk and Deputies, the Sheriff and Deputies, Chief of Police and those associated with him, for their co-operation in the discharge of the duties connected with the labors of this grand jury."

LLOYD GEORGE DEFIES CRITICS, DARES OUSTER

Protests Against Needless Publicity Being Given to Petty Quarrels of Liberals.

By the Associated Press.

MANCHESTER, England, June 5.—Unrepentant and refusing to be expelled from the Liberal party, David Lloyd George, chairman of the parliamentary section of the party, addressed an enthusiastic meeting at the Manchester Reform Club today. In a brilliant fighting speech, packed with laughter-provoking points and gibes at his opponents, Lloyd George declared:

"I was walking politely along my path when suddenly I was assailed by an angry bull of excommunication."

He paused, and said seriously: "I apologize to the holy office; it never condemned anyone unheard."

Demanding that if there must be a split, it should be on "a real quarrel, not a rotten quibble," Lloyd George proceeded: "I attended the meetings of the shadow cabinet—God help me—more often than any other of Lord Oxford's colleagues. I never had a personal difference with him during the whole of that time. The first disagreement was over this one cabinet. And I am turned out for what?

"What is the impression conveyed by these facts—that there is something behind them?"

Lloyd George delighted his audience by quotations from panegyrics passed upon him at one time or another by those who now are trying to expel, aiming especially at Sir John Simon, whom gossip mentions as the intended next chairman of the Liberal party in the House of Commons if the attack upon Lloyd George is successful.

Lloyd George's main protest was against needless publicity being given to petty quarrels. Contending that the whole thing was a wretched blunder, he said:

"Let us get back to work. You cannot found, but you can founder, a party on personal squabbles. I mean to get on with the job I have in hand."

He had been treated with unfairness, he contended, even greater than a criminal. Appealing for a square deal, he remarked:

"I can no longer have the privilege of being a Liberal shadow! I have been driven into the sunlight—not a bad thing."

12 PERSONS ARRESTED FOR ALLEGED $1,000,000 SWINDLE

North Carolina Residents Used Mails in Defrauding Wholesale Houses, Postal Inspectors Say.

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., June 5.—What is alleged by postoffice inspectors to be a million dollar merchandise swindle in North Carolina was revealed here today with the announcement that 12 persons already had been arrested on charges of using the mails to defraud. A number of additional arrests are expected.

Using as the basis of their alleged scheme the establishment of stores in North Carolina under names almost identical with reputable establishments, the swindlers are said by inspectors to have obtained merchandise from hundreds of wholesalers and jobbers totaling $1,000,000 in value.

The plot, according to the Government agents, became known after firms in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities had presented bills for large amounts to old customers and learned that the goods had not been ordered by them but had been shipped to stores with the similar names.

NEW $1,100,000 U.S. BUILDING NEAR PLAZA POSSIBLE

Way Opened for City of St. Louis to Change Proposed Site From Fourth and Chestnut Streets.

$500,000 TO BE SOUGHT FOR LAND

Treasury Department Includes That Sum in Seeking Appropriation From Congress.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The way was opened today for the City of St. Louis to change the site of the proposed new Federal building from Fourth and Chestnut streets to a more advantageous location desired by the city, if one can be found that will meet the approval of the Treasury Department.

The Treasury Department, in a formal announcement, stated that Congress would be asked at the present session to appropriate $1,100,000 for the new St. Louis Federal building and $500,000 for land. The Government owns the site, 118 by 151 feet, at the southeast corner of Fourth and Chestnut, for which $300,000 was paid.

Precautionary Steps Taken.

At the supervising architect's office, it was said that the request for $500,000 for land was a precautionary measure. Some complaints, it was stated, have been made against the Fourth street site, and the Treasury wished to be in a position to acquire another site if it should be found advisable to do so. The vicinity of the future Twelfth boulevard plaza has been suggested in connection with requests for a new site.

The $165,000,000 public buildings bill, of which the authorization for the St. Louis building is a part, provided that the Secretary of the Treasury might exchange the Fourth street site for another if he thought it desirable.

The next step will be to advertise in St. Louis for new sites. Treasury officials said they would be guided by the answers to the advertisements and the action taken by civic groups in St. Louis.

Up to St. Louis Civic Groups.

Representative L. C. Dyer of St. Louis, who secured the removal of the $1,000,000 cost limit set by the former authorization laws, said today that it was up to the civic groups in St. Louis to find another location for the building if they objected to the Fourth street site. He said he would go before the Appropriations Committee and ask that more than $1,100,000 be expended on the building.

"Those who are against the downtown site or have proposals for the style of the building should give the Treasury Department their views through their representatives in the House," he said. "This is their opportunity, and they should make their wants known before it is too late."

Representative Dyer also suggested that if the members of the Federal bench in St. Louis expected to have their courtrooms and offices in the new building, they should communicate with the Treasury Department through the Department of Justice. If the Federal courts are included in the building, an extra story will be required, with an additional cost between $300,000 and $400,000, Dyer said.

Amount Set Only Tentative.

Officials in the supervising architect's office said the $1,100,000 set for the new building in the announcement was only tentative, as no plans had yet been drawn, and none would be prepared until the site had been chosen.

The $165,000,000 public buildings bill authorized the expenditure of $50,000,000 in the District of Columbia and of $115,000,000, outside the district. The estimates to be submitted to the present session of Congress call for an expenditure of $12,500,000 during the first year, of which $500,000 would be spent in the district and the remainder outside. The only item larger than St. Louis is that for Newark, N. J., where it is proposed to spend $1,600,000 for a site and $2,275,000 for a building.

The question of the site of a new Federal building has been under discussion more than six years. The City Improvement Association, which represents property east of Sixth street, and which carried on a fight against the Plaza site for a new courthouse, took an active part in the selection of the site at Fourth and Chestnut. The Government was unwilling to pay more than $300,000 for the site, and the City Improvement Association, according to John M. Robertson, an active member, brought the owners down from $380,000 to $330,000. It then paid $30,000 to the owners, who sold to the Government for $300,000.

The City Plan Commission, at its meeting Tuesday, voted to offer its co-operation to the Treasury Department in any survey which the department may make to determine a site for the new Federal building.

Plan Body Not Committed.

E. J. Russell, chairman of the Commission, said last evening that the members believed the most suitable site could be found west of Fourth street. The Commission has not committed itself to the Plaza neighborhood, he said.

A survey of the river front district has been begun by the Commission. Its plan for river front improvement will call for a plaza east of Fourth street, from Chestnut street to (widened) Market street, and from the Courthouse to the river. A new Federal building at the southeast corner of Fourth and Chestnut would interfere with this plan, and would prevent the widening of Chestnut street east of Fourth, which is an important part of the plan.

A site in the Plaza district would not mean a site on the Plaza itself, such as was shown in bond issue campaign lithographs. The City Law Department has held that no building may be located on the Plaza itself except the Memorial Building.

JUDGE FREY GAVE $6500 FEE JOB TO FATHER-IN-LAW

nephew, Korngold, received an appointment at the hands of Judge Frey, in addition to that in the American General Indemnity Corporation case. He was appointed by Judge Frey May 22, 1924, to conduct a partition sale of real estate belonging to the estate of Mathew Courtney Sr. For this he was allowed a $1000 fee by Judge Frey on Aug. 14, 1924, according to the records. The law firm of Holland, Rutledge Lashly, which had managed most of the estate affairs, was allowed the same fee. The real estate in question sold for $25,000.

Light on Whole Practice.

The appointment of Judge Frey's stenographer, Readey, as coreceiver in the American General Indemnity case, in which his fee was set at $7500, has directed attention to the practice of Circuit Judges in appointing court attaches to fee jobs, usually as commissioners and trustees for the sale of realty, and for auditing reports filed by trustees, as well as acting as guardians for minors.

Fees in such cases average around $50, but sometimes are larger and if large enough and numerous enough constitute a political plum. Some of the beneficiaries under this system are Harry W. Sherman, who has just resigned as chief deputy under Circuit Clerk Schmoll; Julius Wurzberger, back tax deputy under Schmoll; and Edward H. Rupert, Richard Smart, George Hug, Henry Schewe and Harry Baer, court room clerks under Schmoll.

The principal beneficiaries have been Sherman and Rupert.

Judge Falkenhainer appointed Fred Schmoll, head of a construction company, and son of Circuit Clerk Schmoll, as receiver of the Power Truck and Tractor Co.

Lawyers have sometimes complained against appointment of court attaches on the score that such appointments should go to lawyers. Moreover, the appointments are said to have provoked jealousy among some attaches not lucky enough to receive them. The answer made to complaints is that such appointments are within the law; that, naturally, friends are preferred over others, and that the fees enable clerks with small salaries to meet the cost of living.

$350,000 IN GIFTS WHEN GOV. SMITH'S DAUGHTER WEDS

Marriage of Miss Smith and Maj. J. A. Warner of State Police Remembered by Executive's Friends.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 5.—Al Smith's elder daughter, Emily, 24 years old, was married today to Maj. John Adams Warner, superintendent of the New York State police. It was the first large social gesture of the Smith family in the long years of the growth of the head of the family from a promising, rather hard-boiled young man on New York's East Side to his present position as Governor of New York is one of the outstanding personalities in the nation's life.

From 10 o'clock in the morning, when the guests by automobile and on foot began to arrive at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, until late in the afternoon, when Maj. Warner ran down the steps of the Executive Mansion with his bride on his arm to disappear into their automobile flanked by a convoy of State troopers, the ceremony was on a huge scale.

Albany never before saw anything quite like it.

Gifts by the Carload.

Even when the last guests were gone the presents were still arriving. There is still a carload at the freight depot to be delivered.

Two days ago the gifts overflowed the upper floors of the Executive Mansion and poured into the Hudson avenue home the Warners will occupy on their return from their honeymoon. The latest estimate of the value of the wedding presents is $350,000. Al Jr. and Arthur, sons of Gov. Smith, eloped, and the huge Smith following has never before had opportunity to express its regard for him in an event of this kind. Some idea of the variety of the gifts may be gained from this incomplete list:

Twenty-five chests of silver, 50 sets of imported china, 15 sets of gold decorated china, flat silver and candlesticks from Crichton's London; a diamond and sapphire brooch, a diamond and emerald bracelet, two diamond bracelets, a diamond circlet, a sapphire bow, a silver bowl from the Court of Appeals, a gold bag containing 50 $20 gold pieces, an original Whistler etching, an original etching by Charles Dana Gibson, the gift of the artist; clocks, picnic sets, silver service plates, a dozen Oriental rugs, books, a set of gold English silver from a Dublin castle, 25 lamps, a Chippendale chair, tapestries of great value, a combination radio and phonograph and a patchwork quilt, the gift of a State trooper.

Cardinal Performs Ceremony.

Patrick Cardinal Hayes of New York performed the marriage service. Mgr. Joseph A. Delaney, pastor of the Cathedral, sang the solemn high nuptial mass which followed.

The Cathedral was filled to its doors with 1500 people, every seat taken and many standing in the rear of the long aisles.

The Governor led his daughter to the altar steps.

When the service ended State troopers lined the central aisle and bride and bridegroom passed out under an arch of steel. A military guard escorted them to the executive mansion, where the reception was held.

Crowds at Reception.

It was not until after 2 o'clock in the afternoon that the bride and groom were able to fight their way clear of the corner under the palms in the main hall in the executive mansion where they had stood greeting their guests. The throng at the reception spread over the grounds, eating under huge tents on the verandas, and in the upper hall, or dancing to the music of the scarlet band on the lawn or the night club orchestra in the living room.

In the late afternoon just before the couple sped away, most of their plans for their honeymoon still a rigid secret, there arrived at the executive mansion a cable message from the Pope bestowing upon Maj. Warner and his bride the Apostolic blessing. The only thing known of the honeymooners' plans is that they will visit the Philadelphia Sesquicentennial.

NEGROES KIDNAP CONTRACTOR, TAKE $3000 PAYROLL

Walter Kirk Forced to Drive His Auto From Grand and Castleman to Lonely Place in County.

Walter Kirk, a contractor, was kidnaped by three Negroes in front of the new Hotel Saum at Grand boulevard and Castleman avenue at 10:30 a. m. yesterday and forced to drive to Kinloch Park in St. Louis County, where he was robbed of a $3000 cash payroll.

Kirk, who is a member of the contracting firm of Frank Kirk & Sons, in charge of construction of Hotel Saum, had got the money from the Chouteau Trust Co. to pay workmen and was just parking his coupe facing west in Castleman when the three Negroes jumped on the running boards.

One, armed with a revolver, climbed into the car and ordered him to drive west. The others stood on opposite running boards. They made him drive to Kingshighway, through University City to Natural Bridge road and then to Kinloch Park, a Negro settlement east of Ferguson. There they made him stop on a lonely stretch of road, took the payroll and asked him for a piece of rope. When he said he had none one of the Negroes remarked impatiently, "I've got to get back to town and pay off that bond." He ordered Kirk to drive back to town and not look around. The three walked away after he started driving east at 12:30.

Kirk phoned his brother, Charles Kirk, who had been informed of the holdup by a bricklayer on the building and had been making a vain effort to trace him. Charles Kirk is licensed to carry a pistol, but he did not go to the bank yesterday.

The robbery was the thirteenth payroll holdup this year and brought the total loss to $17,420.

TWO RUTHERFORD LAWYERS INDICTED WITH FOUR OTHERS

that Circuit Judges should not accept blindly the recommendations of prosecuting officers as to sentences of persons pleading guilty, for the reason that a court may easily be imposed upon. There is also criticism of the manner of preparing and serving subpenas in some cases.

The conspiracy indictment begins with a recital of the killing of Meyer (Jack) Tucker by Allen Rutherford, Oct. 10 last, in the Majestic Hotel, and recites the murder indictment returned against Rutherford. It continues:

"The defendants, Geist, Sidener, Bender, Lacy, Henderson and John Rutherford, had knowledge of the commission of the crime of murder in the second degree and knowledge of the pendency of said indictment. Bender was the agent and representative of Tillie Tucker, mother of Meyer Tucker, and was special prosecutor and charged with the duty of assisting in the prosecution of the case, under the direction of defendant Sidener."

"To Prevent and Obstruct."

After reciting the relation of the other defendants, the indictment charges that the six men, on the day of Allen Rutherford's arraignment, May 5, "with the unlawful, wicked and malicious intent and design to pervert and obstruct justice, and to pervert and obstruct the due and orderly administration of the criminal laws of the State of Missouri, in connection with said case, did unlawfully, willfully and maliciously conspire, combine, confederate and agree together and with each other to prevent the trial of Allen Rutherford on the charge of murder in the second degree, so pending against him, and did willfully, unlawfully, wickedly and maliciously conspire, combine, confederate and agree together and with each other to prevent the punishment of said Allen Rutherford by any term of imprisonment whatsoever, and to procure his release and discharge from said indictment on said charge of murder by the payment of a nominal fine of $500 on a plea of guilty to manslaughter.

"That, in furtherance of said unlawful, malicious and wicked conspiracy, the defendants caused and procured to be promised and to be paid to the said Tillie Tucker a large sum of money, to wit, $4500, from the funds then in the possession and control of the defendants, Henderson and Lacy, in satisfaction of an alleged claim for damages which she was then asserting against the said William Allen Scott Rutherford, upon condition, however, that she would aid and assist the defendants in securing the release of Allen Rutherford from the charge of murder in the second degree by the payment of a fine only."

Got Mrs. Tucker to Write.

The defendants, it is recited, "caused and procured" Mrs. Tucker to write her letter asking for the settlement of the case by a fine, and presented the letter to the Court. Appearing in court, it is charged, they "then and there willfully, unlawfully, maliciously, wickedly, falsely and fraudulently stated and represented" to the Circuit Court, and "caused and procured to be stated and represented" to the Court, and "consented and assented to statements and representations" in the Court, that certain important and material witnesses on the part of the State of Missouri in the case were absent from the Court and were beyond and outside the jurisdiction of the Court; that the testimony of these witnesses could not, by reason of their absence, be had or offered, that because of the absence of the witnesses the State was rendered and stood helpless in the further prosecution of the indictment for murder in the second degree, and that without the witnesses, Allen Rutherford could not be convicted.

"Whereas, in truth and in fact," the indictment charges, "the witnesses were then within the city of St. Louis and within the jurisdiction of the Court, and were in and about the courtroom of the Court, and in the division of the court in which the indictment was then pending; and these witnesses, all of whose names were indorsed on the indictment, could have been brought before the Court on the date for the purpose of giving their testimony in the cause, of all of which all the defendants herein had knowledge."

By reason of the conspiracy and false statements, "and as a result of the commission of the unlawful, malicious, wicked and overt acts in furtherance of said conspiracy," it is charged, the defendants procured from the court its permission and order for the acceptance of the manslaughter plea and imposition of a fine.

Judge Mix Thanks Jury.

Judge Mix, in discharging the grand jury, thanked the members for their services, including Attorney-General Gentry and Lashly. The grand jury had only 10 days of active service for the investigation of the Rutherford case.

Circuit Attorney Sidener is now under indictment on three charges, one of them a felony charge; John Rutherford and Bender are under one felony and one misdemeanor charge; and Geist, Lacy and Henderson one misdemeanor charge each.

As has been explained, Rutherford is charged with bribery in paying a sum of money to Bender and Sidener, but they are not charged specifically with receiving it. Conviction on the fraud charge would remove Sidener from office, and disqualify him to hold office or vote.

The grand jury in its inquiry, threw out a dragnet of St. Louis banks, for financial transactions of the men under investigation, as to the payment of the money disbursed by John Rutherford. It also made inquiry as to a purchase of securities by Circuit Attorney Sidener.

As has been told, the charge of fraud made in one of the Sidener indictments was made also in reinstating the prosecutron of Allen Rutherford. The Attorney-General holds that the element of fraud in the case so vitiated it as to remove the ordinary immunity of a person who has pleaded guilty and paid a fine. This point is likely to be argued both in extradition proceedings and, if extradition is obtained, later in court.

Work remaining for the new grand jury, aside from the Rutherford case, will include an inquiry into the Lem Motlow murder case, which ended in an acquittal; the release of Forrest Ferguson from charges of embezzlement and credit fraud; and the failure of the Circuit Attorney to prosecute defendants bound over after preliminary hearings in the Court of Criminal Correction.

Of the six men indicted two have been candidates for the office of Mayor, Sidener having sought the Republican nomination for that office in the 1917 primary and Lacy having been a contender for the Democratic nomination in 1921. Under the primary law anyone may file as a candidate in the primary.

Special Orders From Baker.

These matters were mentioned in special directions given to the Attorney-General by Gov. Baker, who instituted the entire inquiry at the request of the press, the Chamber of Commerce and the Bar Association.

The members of the grand jury which retired yesterday were: Edward A. Faust, foreman; J. F. Schlafly, Joseph A. Schlecht, Tom P. Barnett, George F. Driemeyer, Frank H. Hamilton, Kurt V. Moll, Isadore Salinger, H. A. Schnittker, J. A. Troy, Edward E. Weckler and George J. Wunderlich.

2 ROBBERS GIVEN 40 LASHES AT DELAWARE WHIPPING POST

Large Crowd Witness Punishment in Wilmington Workhouse Yard—Offenders Suffers Most From Publicity.

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 5.—James J. Fee and Thomas Kelly, Philadelphia youths, were given 40 lashes each from a cat-o'nine-tails on their bare backs in New Castle County workhouse today with little show of feeling except fright and discomfiture at the publicity of it. The whipping took place in the workhouse yard before a large crowd. Fee and Kelly recently were convicted of highway robbery and are serving 15-year prison terms in addition to the whipping. Their whipping sentence was the maximum.

A newspaper photographer scaled the wall with a rope after he had been ejected from the yard. He was discovered and pulled down by the guards several minutes after the whipping was over. He was fined $5 and costs for trespassing. Warden Leach, before the whipping, had warned that no pictures were to be taken.

Fee went to the post first, with a cigarette in his mouth. Kelly followed him.

Leach applied the lash with a guard counting off the blows. The bare backs were reddened and the shoulders twitched, but the skin was not broken. The Warden said he purposely avoided laying on the blows hard enough to draw blood.

Whippings in Delaware are not unusual, being provided, and nearly always imposed, for a dozen crimes. The lashing, it is said, is seldom severe, the chief punishment being the humiliation.

SENTIMENT IN SENATE AGAINST RIVERS BILL

Measure Likely to Meet More Strenuous Opposition There Than It Did in House.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The Rivers' and Harbors bill apparently faces even more strenuous opposition in the Senate than it encountered in the House, which passed it yesterday.

Some Senate opponents predicted today that the measure would not be passed at this session, certainly not in the form in which it came from the House, where many projects were tacked on.

Explaining this action by the House today, Representative Sosnowski (Rep.) of Michigan said opponents of the bill had added many amendments with a view to running the total authorized appropriation up to such a figure that the bill would be out of harmony with the administration's financial program and would never become a law.

Describing the proposal as one loaded down with "cats and dogs," Senator La Follette (Rep.) of Wisconsin said he proposed to fight it all along the line. He predicted that a number of Senators would take similar action.

Senator Ferris (Dem.) of Michigan also said that he and other Senators from states around the Great Lakes would interpose serious opposition because of the provision for diversion of water from Lake Michigan, a feature which caused much of the fight in the House.

An amendment to the measure was offered today by Senator Sheppard (Dem.) of Texas. It would authorize the deepening of the channel at Galveston by two feet, so as to make the maximum draft 32 feet.

TEST OF MAYOR'S POWER TO COME IN COLLECTOR RACE

Interest in Primary Will Center on Effort to Defeat Koeln, Who Has Two Opponents.

ADMINISTRATION IS BACKING NEUMANN

Only Incumbent Who Has No Opposition Is Herman Bader, Clerk of Criminal Court.

In the list of filings of candidates for the nominations for the 13 municipal offices and state offices in St. Louis for the Aug. 3 primary, only one incumbent has escaped opposition. He is Herman Bader, Clerk of Circuit Court of Criminal Causes, who is seeking re-election.

While the most important local office to be filled is that of Circuit Judge with three to be nominated in each party, interest has centered more on the candidacy of Edmond Koeln to succeed himself in the office of Collector.

The city administration group is supporting Charles A. Neumann, who long was allied with the Koeln organization, but who has been close to the administration since Miller became Mayor. Koeln will have the support of former Mayor Kiel and the old regular Republican organization, while Neumann will have the Mayor, the result to be a test of the Mayor's present strength in politics.

St. Louis Candidacies.

The candidates who have filed for the local offices, except Justices of the Peace and Constables, are:

Judges of the Circuit Court (three to be elected)—Democrats: Neville C. Fisher; Lawrence McDaniel, 5938 Waterman avenue; Joseph F. Dickmann, 3882 Hartford street; Marion X. Morris, 5729 Clemens avenue; Robert J. Kirkwood, 4438 Chouteau avenue, and Frank C. O'Malley, 1738 North Euclid avenue. Republicans: A. Samuel Bender, Majestic Hotel; William J. Bleese, 3626A Page boulevard (short term); William L. Bohnenkamp, 5467A Queens avenue; Charles W. Rutledge, 3658 Flad avenue; J. L. London, 6148 Pershing avenue (short term), and Alva W. Hurt, 4714 Arsenal street.

Judge of the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction, Division No. 1—Democrats: Henry R. Watson, 5316A Vernon avenue and James W. Griffin, 4249 Gibson avenue. Republicans: John E. Bowcock, 4487 Westminster place; J. C. Crouch, 1411 Market street; Calvin N. Miller, 5530 Clemens avenue; Rudolph Schneider, 3914 Park avenue; Chauncey J. Krueger, 2323 South Kingshighway; Fred A. Bottger, 4872 Farlin avenue; Elmer E. Walter, 5217 Nottingham avenue; Frank B. Grodski, 5315A Lotus avenue, and Anna M. Evans, 543 Rosedale avenue.

Judge of Probate Court—Democrat: Chilton Atkinson, 3000 Lafayette avenue. Republicans: Judge Charles W. Holtcamp, 6205 McPherson avenue, and I. Joe Wilson, 5332 Delmar boulevard.

Prosecuting Attorney — Democrats: William S. Connor, 923 Buena Vista avenue, and J. Cole Greenway, 3944 Botanical avenue. Republicans: Albert L. Schweitzer, 3411 Connecticut street; Milton F. Napier, 4314A Grace avenue; Alvin F. Hackman, 4366 Forest Park boulevard; Siebert G. Jones, 4331 West Pine boulevard; William Robert Davis, 3939 Castleman avenue; Harry H. Richards, 5633 Julian avenue, and Alex R. A. Garesche, 4512 Westminster place.

Clerk of the Circuit Court—Democrat: M. C. Schulte, 4240 Kossuth avenue. Republicans: John Schmoll, 3626 Utah place, and Otto Schultz, 1605 Chamberlain avenue.

Clerk of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes—Democrat: L. G. Waldman, 1419A North Twenty-fourth street. Republican—Herman Bader, 3710A Palm street.

Clerk of the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction — Democrat: Walter J. Hazlett, 3880 Arsenal street. Republicans: Gus A. Baur, 2227 Missouri avenue, and Ferd I. G. Knittel, 3143 Nebraska avenue.

License Collector — Democrat: John L. Schroeer, 3856 Hartford street. Republicans: Oliver G. Chapman, 3525 Victor street, and August J. Hahn, 1821 Cora avenue.

Recorder of Deeds—Democrat: Sam Ben Payne, 5927 Hamilton terrace. Republicans: William L. Tamme, 4663 Magnolia avenue; August Gisler, 2610 Market place, and Frank R. Smith, 4930 Wiseman street.

Collector—Democrats: Frazer P. Gibbs, 4493 Forest Park boulevard, and William S. Specht, 5963 Cates avenue. Republicans: Edmond Koeln, 3628 Loughborough avenue; William E. Fuetterer, 4829 Kossuth avenue; Charles A. Neumann, 7117 Michigan avenue, and John M. Gomes, 5866 Bartmer avenue.

Herwitz, 5700 Etzel avenue; Henry P. Lynch, 6062 Cates avenue; Ray White, 5731 Waterman avenue; Austin W. Biggs, 1331 Temple place, and Joseph R. Braudrick, 5931 Horton place.

PROHIBITION TO BE MAIN ISSUE IN BOTH PARTIES IN COMING MISSOURI PRIMARY

Hawes and Williams Only Two U. S. Senate Candidates Who Have Not Stated Stand; Opponents Ready to Pester Them.

With all candidates for nominations at the primary election Aug. 3 filed, and the books closed to further filings, attention in politics has turned to speculation on the positions on repeal of the Eighteenth amendment and modification of the Volstead act to be taken by United States Senator Williams and Congressman Hawes, Republican and Democratic candidates respectively for the nominations for United States Senator.

That all other issues will be subordinated in the campaign to the question of prohibition generally is conceded, and on it all candidates for the Senatorship, the highest office to be voted on, have taken definite stands, except Williams and Hawes, neither of whom has made any public declaration which could be construed as a position.

As there will be under way a campaign for initiative proposal to repeal the State dry enforcement act while the primary campaign is under way, it may be expected that efforts will be made to pin all Senatorial candidates down closely on prohibition.

Ready to Pester Hawes.

On the Democratic side, Judge Ewing Cockrell of Warrensburg and Willis H. Meredith of Poplar Bluff are seeking the nomination on platforms supporting the eighteenth amendment and opposing any modification of the Volstead act. Both have indicated an intention to pester Hawes with demands for a stand if he does not soon announce his position. Hawes has told friends he would make known his views on the question at an early date. Robert I. Young of St. Joseph, who four years ago sought the senatorship as a "dry," is out this year as a "wet." He is not expected to be a serious factor in the race.

On the Republican side, Blodgett Priest of St. Louis is a candidate on a strictly "wet" platform, favoring repeal of the eighteenth amendment and liberal modification of the Volstead act while the amendment is in force. Former State Senator David M. Proctor of Kansas City is the leading "dry" candidate. Former Congressman W. O. Atkeson of Butler also is seeking the nomination as a "dry."

Senator Williams would appear to have a long lead for renomination, having the support of Gov. Baker and the State organization, National Committeeman Clements, the Kiel-Koeln combination in St. Louis, former Gov. Hyde and his organization, and nearly all the Postmasters scattered in every town and village. About the only forces aligned against him are Mayor Miller in St. Louis and a group in Kansas City which is dissatisfied because of Williams' handling of Federal patronage there.

Contests for Congress.

All the Missouri Congressmen, except three, are candidates for renomination. Hawes in the Eleventh is seeking the Senatorship. Newton in the Tenth has announced his retirement from Congress, and Bailey in the Fourteenth, did not file.

There is an active fight among Democrats in the Eleventh to succeed Hawes, and among the Republicans in the Tenth to succeed Newton. The Democrats have no chance of carrying the Tenth District in the election, but the Eleventh is considered a close district.

Among the St. Louis candidates for the Republican nominations for Congress is one woman, Mrs. Madeline H. Menaugh of 426 South Second street, who seeks to succeed Congressman Dyer in the Twelfth District. There is also one woman candidate to the Legislature, Mrs. Charles L. Passmore of 5545 Cabanne avenue, who filed for the Republican nomination in the Fifth District.

Woman Out for State Senate.

For the State Senate only one woman filed in the State, Mrs. Mayme Ousley of St. James, who is seking the Republican nomination in the Twenty-fourth District to succeed Senator Frank H. Farris. Farris again is a candidate for the Democratic ticket and has no opposition.

The complete list of filings for the United States Senatorship, State offices to be filled this year, for Congress and for the legislative places from St. Louis follows:

United States Senator—Democrats: Congressman Harry B. Hawes, St. Louis; Circuit Judge Ewing Cockrell, Warrensburg; Willis H. Meredith, Poplar Bluff, and Robert I. Young, St. Joseph. Republicans: United States Senator George H. Williams, St. Louis County; Blodgett Priest, St. Louis; former State Senator David M. Proctor, Kansas City, and former Congressman W. O. Atkeson, Butler.

State Superintendent of Schools—Democrat: Charles A. Lee, Butler. Republicans: George W. Reavis, Jefferson City, and W. S. Smith, Excelsior Springs.

Judge of the Supreme Court, Division No. 1—Democrats: Carl L. Ristine, Lexington; Circuit Judge Ernest A. Gantt, Mexico, and Mark A. McGruder, Sedalia. Republican: Judge Robert W. Otto, Washington.

CAN'T AVOID LIQUOR ISSUE, BUTLER SAYS

President of Columbia U. Declares Evasion Will Spell Defeat for Republicans.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The liquor question cannot be avoided in the coming elections and evasion of this issue would spell State and national defeat for the Republican party in the opinion of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, and prominent Republican.

In a statement left for publication after his departure for Europe, Dr. Butler said the party which will win the State and national elections is the one that can offer a solution for the prohibition problem.

"There is no use of running candidates for State offices in New York this year if the Republican party puts a dry plank in its platform," he said. "If we have any idea of taking the issue away from Gov. Smith we must present a solution. The prohibitionist is the only real friend of the liquor traffic. I am personally the driest of the whole lot, but I cannot and will not tolerate a condition such as prohibition has imposed."

Butler referred to the Antisaloon League as a "money collecting agency to pay a few good salaries," and said "the smartest thing its bosses ever did was blackjack both the Republicans and Democrats."

Butler said he favored repeal of the Volstead Act, repeal of the Eighteenth amendment and adoption of the Quebec system for New York.

Similarity of Names Confusing.

J. B. Smith, manager of the Pageant Theater, at Laurel street and Delmar boulevard, has been kept busy explaining to patrons that he is not the Harry Smith mentioned in connection with disclosures in the Rutherford case. Harry Smith also was manager of the theater and was mentioned in news stories as having jumped a $1000 bond a year ago. J. B. Smith is not related to him.

Whoever Wins in Iowa, He'll Be Anti-Coolidge

pects of the primary the outstanding figures in the contest are the venerable Senator Cummins and the belligerent ex-Senator Brookhart. The third man, Howard Clark, is an able Des Moines lawyer, attorney for the Farmers' Union, and generally regarded as being fully as radical in his economic views as Brookhart.

But save for his own managers, nobody gives him a show.

How Cummins Has Changed.

When Cummins went to the Senate 18 years ago he went as a radical. He became a member of the old insurgent group containing La Follette, Beveridge and Norris. He had fought the railroads and banks in Iowa to a standstill. He was the champion of the farmers and trade unions. The East regarded him as a dangerous man. He went with the Bull Moose in 1912. If the word had been discovered then he would have been called a Bolshevik.

Today finds him, at the age of 76, one of the tamest conservatives in the Senate, a stanch wheelhorse of the most reactionary administration since Taft's. He voted to seat Newberry. He supported the Mellon tax plan. He voted for the ship subsidy. He voted for the minority report whitewashing Teapot Dome. He voted to confirm Charles Beecher Warren as Attorney-General. His latest major activity was to lead the successful fight to prevent an investigation of Secretary Mellon's aluminum trust.

Today the railroads, bankers and business men, fighting whom he made his reputation, are his chief supporters. The farmers and labor unions, whom he once championed, are his chief foes.

In short, he has turned about as completely as it is possible for a public man to turn in a lifetime. Today finds him a gentle, likeable, frail old man, whose support in Iowa is confined almost entirely to tradition, and to the strength of the regular stand-pat organization, reinforced with the money of the conservative business community.

Brookhart "the Wild Man."

Brookhart, called "the wild man," was a friend and supporter of Cummins in the days when Cummins was fighting the railroads and banks. They broke in 1920, when Cummins sponsored the railroad law which bears his name, an act on Cummins' part which definitely aligned him with the conservatives.

Brookhart denounces the operation of the Federal reserve act, the Mellon tax plan, the Esch-Cummins act, the repeal of the inheritance tax, the whitewashing of the aluminum trust, and almost every act the policy of the Coolidge administration.

He was chairman of the special committee which investigated the conduct of Attorney-General Daugherty and drove him from office. He bolted the Republican ticket in 1924 and supported La Follette for President. He joined in condemning the Teapot Dome lease. He opposed the World Court. He was as radical and intractible and voluble as anybody in the Senate.

Brookhart's support of La Follette in 1924, after Brookhart had received the Republican nomination for Senator, was followed by a denunciation from the Republican State Central Committee which appealed to Republican voters to vote for the Democratic candidate, Daniel Steck. The face of the returns showed Brookhart elected by the close vote of 447,594 to 446,840. Steck started a contest, and the vengeful Republican regulars of Iowa supported him.

"Send Him Home."

When it appeared that the Senate might seat Brookhart, Burt Burnquist, chairman of the Republican State Committee, hurried to Washington, saw Senator William M. Butler, who is President Coolidge's friend and also chairman of the National Committee, and said, "Send him home, and we'll give him a good beating."

It was well known that if Brookhart were unseated he would run against Senator Cummins.

That the White House threw its influence against Brookhart in the contest is hardly questionable. On April 12 he was unseated by a vote of 45 to 41, Republican Senators from New England casting the deciding votes against him.

It was generally admitted that to find a majority of votes in favor of Steck, it was necessary to disregard the provisions of the Iowa election law. Brookhart's opponents took the stand that the Senate had the right to adopt its own rules in determining the validity of ballots.

Brookhart started back to Iowa the very next day. An acclaiming multitude met him at the station and from that day to this he has been charging across the State addressing the great throngs in incendiary tones, and reiterating his opposition to the national administration, he has not backed water on a single issue. Once more he has attacked the operation of the Federal Reserve law and the Esch-Cummins act, renewed his assaults upon the Mellon tax bill, bitterly criticised the procedure by which he was unseated, and, most important of all, he has assailed the failure of the Administration to enact measures for the relief of the farmer.

Have Cummins' managers and adherents pointed to his loyal record of supporting the President? Have they exhorted the voters of Iowa, "Keep Cool with Coolidge and Cummins"?

For about three days they did; they got out flaring posters with the dire slogan, "Cummins or Communism! Stand by Coolidge and Cummins!"

It took three days for them to hear from the county leaders out in the rural districts. What they heard made their beards stiffen and their hair stand on end, and it caused them to call in all the posters which had not been distributed.

Abrupt Shift in Tactics.

Shortly afterwards Burquist, in charge of Cummins' campaign, regretfully but very loudly made announcement that Senator Cummins' had "broken with the President on the question of farm relief" and would thereafter labor unceasingly to pass the Haugen bill, which the President, through his Secretary of Agriculture had pronounced "unsound."

A world of Cummins literature is being distributed, but the only mention of Mr. Coolidge is the statement that Senator Cummins succeeded him as presiding officer of the Senate when President Harding died. Sedulously the word has been spread that Cummins is rapidly drifting away from the administration. Suggestions that the President be asked to say a word in the Senator's behalf have been met with gestures of horror and fright by the Cummins managers. Presidential support is one thing of which a little would be too much.

There is no doubt that the farm situation is the largest single factor in the political situation. There is nothing new about it. The farmers have been suffering ever since the deflation of 1920. In the words of one influential man, they "look backward at bankruptcy and forward to starvation." In the words of another, "most of them are simply having a hell of a time getting by." A third said, "They are making a peasant's living, and that lets them out."

Briefly, the farmer's plight is this: He is selling his products at pre-war prices and buying the necessaries of life at war-time prices.

When the war was in progress, farm products and manufactured products both went up. After the war, the Federal Reserve Board "deflated" the farmers and the price of farm products went down, but the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Act was passed and it kept the price of manufactured articles up and they have remained up.

Illustration of the Point.

Those who doubt this simply have not been out in the corn belt. A large dealer in Ford cars and agricultural implements, gave the writer the following illustration:

"In 1918 and 1919 I made a combination offer o farmers. I sold them a Ford tractor, a disc harrow and a plow for $1125. They brought their corn to town, sold it, and bought my combination. Today the price of the combination is still $1125, but a farmer has to sell just exactly four times as much corn to buy it as he did in 1918—and corn is practically all he has to sell."

The farmers see no way to get themselves out of this hole. Many of them had to mortgage their farms when the "deflation" came. They look to the Federal Government to lend them a hand, particularly in view of the fact that they feel the Government put them in the hole. From the White House they have got only a sour injunction to work out their own salvation. They have been told by Brookhart and others that the New England President and his multimillionaire kitchen Cabinet—Stearns, Butler and Morrow, a merchant, a manufacturer and a banker—are not interested. And they are hopping mad. They want to throw a brick.

Brookhart's problem has been to capitalize this resentment to his own profit. Whether he has succeeded will be known after Monday.

"They Disfranchised Iowa."

In every speech, after flaying the banks, railroads, manufacturers and the administration, he concludes with the words, "I told the truth about these things in the Senate and they kicked me out. I spoke the voice of Iowa, and they disfranchised Iowa."

The Cummins people have been handicapped. When they call Brookhart a bolter, it is recalled to them that Cummins bolted in 1918. When they plead for loyalty to the "old man" it is recalled how savagely Cummins attacked the venerable Senator Allison 20 years ago, declaring that "at the age of 72, a man should retire from public life." Cummins is 76. His speeches against Allison have been reprinted by the Brookhart managers.

When Brookhart came out for La Follette in 1924, he told the people that Coolidge and Butler would do nothing for them. They resented it, and thousands scratched Brookhart in the election.

Today Brookhart is saying, "I told you so," and thousands are saying, "Brookhart was right."

His bolting speech in 1924 was made at Emmettsburg, a town of 1000 inhabitants. A few days ago Brookhart addressed 10,000 people at Emmettsburg. He shouted, "I told you what they would do to you," and the vast crowd roared malevolently, "You told us the truth."

Press Supports Cummins.

Cummins has the support of nearly every daily newspaper in the State, but some of this support appears of the "left-handed" variety. He has the regular organization which is strong in some places and very spotty in others. He has plenty of money. Numerous meetings have been held in his behalf, but when Burnquist went to Washington and asked Senator Butler for 16 speakers, he was coldly told that the national committee did not interfere in primary fights.

Brookhart has a few weekly papers, all the labor union organizers and virtually no money. The Iowa Homestead, a powerful farm weekly owned by Dante Pierce, which had always supported him, is taking no part in the campaign. In the last week 565,000 copies of a special edition of "Labor" organ of the railroad brotherhoods, has been put into the State to help him. He makes from six to 15 speeches a day, but has no other speakers.

MAN'S SWIMMING TRUNKS FOUND IN SHARK'S STOMACH

Identified as Those of Louisiana Soldier Drowned When Bathing Near Honolulu.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, June 5.—Swimming trunks found in the stomach of a shark caught Tuesday off Kahuku were identified today by a laundry mark as those of William J. Goins of Singer, La., attached to Battery B, Eleventh Field Artillery, who was drowned when bathing at Hallewa, May 18. Human bones also were found in the shark's stomach.

Goins, who was unable to swim, got beyond his depth and disappeared.

Livestock Quarantine Off June 10.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—All domestic quarantine regulations imposed by the Department of Agriculture because of foot and mouth disease in livestock have been revoked, effective June 10. The announcement of the department said the action applied particularly to California. June 10 marks the elapse of exactly a year since the last infection in California was found and destroyed. Texas was freed from quarantine April 1.

GRADUATION WEEK AT ST. LOUIS AND WASHINGTON U.

Former Will Hold Its 104th Annual Commencement in Missouri Theater Tomorrow.

PLAY AND DANCE ON WASHINGTON CAMPUS

Secretary of War Davis to Speak at Ceremony of Awarding Diplomas Tuesday Morning.

St. Louis University will hold its 104th annual commencement exercises tomorrow and Washington University will conduct its sixty-fifth commencement Tuesday.

An academic procession, including the faculty and graduates, in caps and gowns, will leave St. Louis University, Grand and West Pine boulevards, at 9:15 a. m. tomorrow and march across Grand boulevard to the Missouri Theater at Lucas avenue, where the exercises will be held.

Dr. Charles Phillips Emerson, dean of the medical school of Indiana University, will deliver the chief address, "Medicine, the Foster Mother of Science." The Rev. Charles Cloud, S. J., president of St. Louis University, will deliver his annual report.

Deans of the schools will confer 373 degrees. Several nuns and other women are among those receiving degrees. One hundred and one graduates will receive the degree of Doctor of Medicine, 73 Doctor of Dental Surgery, 51 Bachelor of Science in Medicine, 43 Bachelor of Arts, 28 Master of Arts, 22 Bachelor of Commercial Science, 18 Bachelor of Laws, three Doctor of Laws and three Bachelor of Philosophy. Fifty-five others will receive various diplomas.

Play Given at Washington U.

Washington University graduates held a picnic yesterday and last night joined the alumni and faculty in a reunion and dance on the campus, at which a comedy, "The Romantic Age," was presented by alumni.

At 9:30 a. m. today the baccalaureate sermon will be delivered at Graham Memorial Chapel by the Rev. Dr. Russell Henry Stafford, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church. The Rev. Wofford Colquitt Timmons of the First Congregational Church will deliver the invocation and there will be a musical program. An academic procession will preced and follow the service.

Tomorrow is class day with a senior pilgrimage and tree planting on the campus in the morning, an alumni-senior luncheon on the chapel lawn and an alumni-senior convocation in the chapel in the afternoon, at which prizes and honors for the year will be awarded. F. E. Bausch will deliver the awards for the department of arts and sciences. Circuit Judge Frey those for the school of law and Dr. F. L. Brockman those for the school of dentistry, while others will be given by Robert S. Brookings, president of the university corporation. Addresses will be delivered by Dr. Frederick Eno Woodruff, Chancellor Hadley and Daniel N. Kirby, the chairman.

The annual alumni banquet will be held tomorrow evening at Hotel Chase.

Exercises in New Field House.

More space for spectators than heretofore will be provided at the commencement, at 10 a. m. Tuesday, because the new field house will be used. A large number of seats will be open to the public, and it is asked that they be occupied by 9:45 a. m., in order not to interfere with the academic procession, which will enter from the campus at that hour. The list of degrees to be awarded has been published.

Addresses will be delivered by Secretary of War Davis and Dr. Walter Williams, dean of the school of journalism of the University of Missouri. Chancellor Hadley will confer the degrees. Invocation and benediction will be offered by the Rev. Dr. William Laurence Sullivan of the Church of the Messiah.

BYGONE memories of graduation time will be recalled many years hence when the gift is a Haines Brothers Grand Piano. Up from $875.

W. E. DIGGS DIES OF POISON

Swallowed Tablets by Mistake May 24—Funeral Monday.

William E. Diggs, 68 years old, 6036 Waterman avenue, died last night of the effects of poison tablets he took by mistake May 24. A physician who examined him the next day had said there was no chance for recovery.

Mr. Diggs had been city salesman for several years for the General Manufacturing Co., 4127 Forest Park place, and earlier was employed for many years in the auditing department of the M.-K.-T. Railroad. He is survived by his widow and three sisters. Funeral services will be held Monday morning from St. Roch's Church to Calvary Cemetery.

CITY ANSWERS U. R. DEMAND FOR HIGHER FARES

Objects to Any Increase Before Audit of Company's Books Is Made, Showing New Assets.

The City of St. Louis yesterday sent to the Public Service Commission its formal statement of opposition to the proposal of the United Railways to increase street car fares in St. Louis from 7 to 8 cents, or two rides for 15 cents.

First, it objects to any increase in fare except in the face of an audit of the company's finances extending from 1919 to 1920 to the present time, and an examination of the company's books to determine whether, as the company asserts, it has added $4,891,032 of property since the commission fixed its valuation of $51,700,000 for rate-making purposes. The city expresses doubt that additions in that sum have been made.

The city further desires a segregation, through this audit, of the city and county lines to learn whether city riders are not making up losses suffered on the county lines.

Based on 1925 Receipts.

The company, the city believes, is basing its application for a higher fare upon the showing of the year 1925, whereas in the first four months of the present it is enjoying a revival of prosperity. Operating expenses are being reduced, the city asserts, and operating income increased and there is reason to believe that this better condition will be maintained throughout the year.

Recently, also, the company has been relieved of some of its fixed charges, the city points out, by the issuance of $6,000,000 of 4 per cent bonds and the retirement of underlying bonds and receiver's certificates bearing a much higher rate.

The rate of return, 8 per cent, which Receiver Rolla Wells asserts can reasonably be claimed by the company, is attacked on the ground that it is higher than allowed to other public utilities in Missouri and higher than allowed generally throughout the country to street railway companies. The receiver computes that the 8-cent fare would produce no more than a 7 per cent return, a rate often adopted for public utilities in Missouri by the commission.

Damage Claim Opposed.

The petition of the receiver to be allowed to increase the reserve for damage claims from 6 per cent of gross revenue to 9 per cent is opposed by the city on the ground that it must be preceded by an investigation to determine what part of excessive damage judgments suffered by the company is the result of "bias and a lack of civic sense" on the part of juries and to what extent they may be due to the manner of handling damage claims by the company.

Any fare increase at this time is illogical, the city concludes, in the face of the pending reorganization of the company and of the refranchising, service-at-cost ordinance being prepared for the future control of the company's affairs.

PRESIDENT OF EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS SAILS FOR U. S.

Bishop Heylen of Belgium Says Chicago Meeting Will Be Greatest Ever Held.

By the Associated Press.

ANTWERP, Belgium, June 5.—Mgr. Heylen of Namur, president of the Eucharistic Congress to be held this month at Chicago, has started for the United States aboard the steamship Pennland.

Still vigorous, despite his 71 year, Mgr. Heylen received a corrspondent for the Associated Press before his departure and again described the coming congress as one of the greatest ever held. He recalled the enormous influence which has been exerted by Eucharistic congresses since the first one was held at Lille in 1881. No more effectual work for the development of the Catholic faith could be undertaken than the Chicago congress, Mgr. Heylen said.

The Belgian Bishop was made president of the Permanent International Committee of the Eucharistic Congresses in 1908. He has borne an important part in all the congresses which have been held, and has been described as their life and soul.

YOUTH, 16, WHO SHOT MARRIED WOMAN, SLAIN BY A POSSE

Michigan Wife Seriously Wounded When, She Says, She Refused to Enter Assailant's Tent.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PONTIAC, Mich., June 5.—Mrs. John F. Clark, 26 years old, is in a serious condition in a hospital here, and Paul Siko, 16, is dead, slain by a posse of Mrs. Clark's neighbors after he had wounded her twice. She said she had refused to go into Siko's tent home alone with him.

Mrs. Clark was shot by the youth in the presence of her 60-year-old husband, a plastering contractor. The husband said four shots were fired. Clark placed his wife in his automobile and brought her to the hospital here.

Two men with Clark started in pursuit of Siko. A posse of neighbors joined them and surrounded the boy in a swamp. Siko fired at the posse. The fire was returned and the youth fell dead. Examination showed 30 bullet wounds in his body.

Mrs. Clark's condition, although serious, is favorable, hospital attendants said late today.

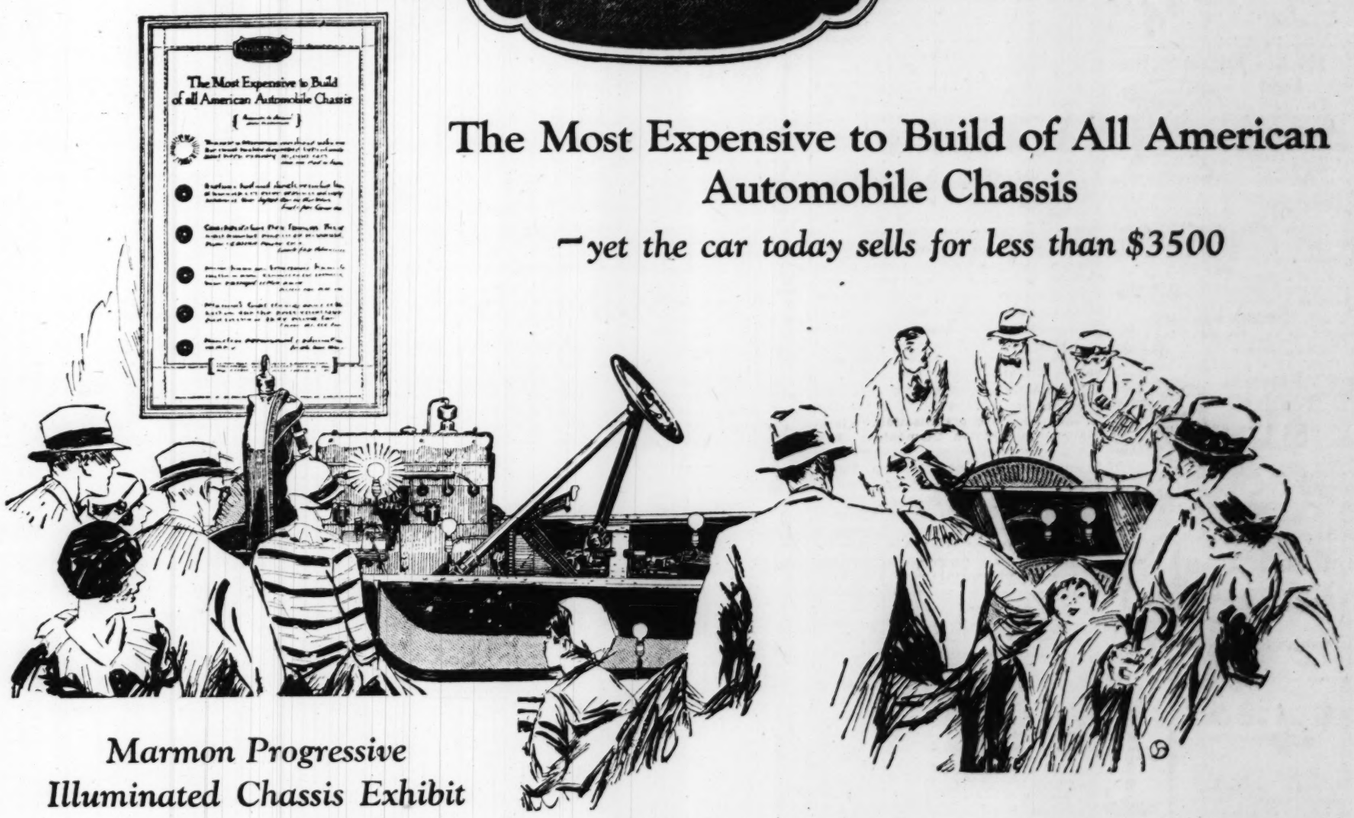
MARMON



The Most Expensive to Build of All American Automobile Chassis

—yet the car today sells for less than $3500

Marmon Progressive Illuminated Chassis Exhibit

VIEWED by THOUSANDS

During the past few days thousands have learned how a truly fine motor car is built.

In the Marmon Progressive Illuminated Chassis Exhibit they have discovered how many fundamental and costly features are found today only in Marmon and the world's highest priced European cars

The display is a graphic affair, studded with changing lights of various colors to permit an easy visualization of certain of Marmon's features. For example:

The New Marmon Engine, with double-fire ignition, which is the most highly developed motor of its size in the world.

The Marmon patented, shock-resisting type of frame—an exclusive design which helps make Marmon "the safest car in the world" and provides a rigid, unyielding foundation for Marmon coach work.

Marmon's exclusive system of compensating rear springs which cost far more than the ordinary type—but which are largely responsible for Marmon's unchallenged reputation as "the world's greatest road car."

Marmon's Safety Steering Gear, which is thirty times stronger than engineers consider to be actually necessary.

Marmon's noiseless, permanently adjusted rear axle, made in the Marmon plant, which is the strongest for its weight in the world.

To make such a car is an honor in itself, but to sell it at a list price less than $3500 is undoubtedly the greatest of Marmon accomplishments.

Under its new program, Marmon brought to the automobile industry a system of manufacture which completely eliminates handling equipment, drastically reduces pay roll and insures a turnover of materials previously unheard of in the fine car field.

The Marmon factory is perhaps the greatest stronghold of craftsmanship in America today—and at the same time one of the most advanced—the most efficient.

So that there can be no doubt in any one's mind as to Marmon's distinctive and unusual features of construction, we have arranged this graphic display. It will prove a most interesting and worthwhile fifteen minutes of your time.

[Actually the list price is only $3395 and upward, the base price applying to genuine four-door closed cars (not "coaches"). Prices f. o. b. Indianapolis, plus tax and such equipment as customer may elect. Cars sold, if desired, on convenient Credit Plan. Twelve distinct models to choose from.]

DAWES TAKES CHARGE OF FARM RELIEF BILL

Attends Conference to Frame Measure Acceptable to the President.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Forces supporting agricultural relief measures took a new lease of life today, when it was announced that Vice President Dawes had taken active direction of farm legislation.

The announcement was made by Senator Watson (Rep.) of Indiana after a conference with farm leaders in and out of Congress and at which the Vice President was present. The purpose was to agree upon a farm relief measure which it was believed the President would sign.

Those attending the conference indorsed the McNary equalization fee measure now pending, but favored reducing the revolving fund from $290,000,000 to $175,000,000, of which $75,000,000 would be used for the disposal of surplus cotton. Another amendment agreed upon would authorize the immediate operation of the equalization fee provision on all of the five basic farm commodities—wheat, cattle, swine, cotton and corn. The actual operation of the fee would be left in the hands of the producers of any of the commodities who would determine by a referendum when they wished it to become effective. The conferees decided not to include the embargo and tariff provisions of the Haugen bill, which was defeated by the House and which is similar to the McNary measure.

Among those at the conference were George N. Peek of Moline, Ill., who was active in support of the Haugen bill; Chester Davis, representing the American Farm Bureau Federation; Senators McNary, Oregon, in charge of the bill on the floor; Cummins, Iowa; Gooding, Idaho, and Representative Purnell, Indiana, who was chairman of the House group which conferred with the Iowa Committee of 22 on the original corn belt bill.

FIRST PASSENGER TRAIN CROSSES THE FREE BRIDGE

It Carries 500 Freight Agents and Their Guests on Tour of Terminal Railroad System.

A passenger train crossed the Free Bridge yesterday for the first time since the span was completed. It carried 500 members and guests of the Local Freight Agents' Association on the organization's annual tour of the Terminal Railroad Association system.

The train, consisting of two passenger coaches, a baggage car and three flat cars equipped with benches, left Union Station at 9 a. m. yesterday, was driven south to Carondelet and carried across the river on the Ivory avenue ferry to the East Side.

After a stop at Dupo, engineer Charles Smith, who yesterday celebrated his fifty-first anniversary as a Terminal trainman, backed his train over the Free Bridge while motorists honked their horns and Negro squatters on the East Side rushed from their houses to see the unusual sight.

Only once before has a train crossed the span. That was in 1920 during the switchmen's strike when the city brought in a carload of coal by that route.

Mayor Miller, Mayor M. M. Stephens of East St. Louis, President Kinney of the Board of Public Service, Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks, Director of Public Safety Brod and other city officials were among the guests.

INQUIRY EXPLODES RUMOR OF FINDING OF MRS. M'PHERSON

Alberta Detective Mistook Picture Seller for Missing Los Angeles Evangelist.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, June 5. — A report today that Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, missing evangelist, had been found at Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, was exploded by investigation.

Officials tonight were no nearer a solution of the mystery than they were 18 days ago when the Angelus Temple pastor disappeared at Santa Monica Beach and was reported drowned.

EDITOR MUST SERVE 1000-DAY JAIL SENTENCE FOR CONTEMPT

California Governor Refuses Pardon for Alfred Lindsley of Eureka, Who Criticised Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 5.—Removing the last hope of Alfred Lindsley, Eureka editor, of escaping the 1000-day jail sentence given him several months ago for contempt of court during his trial on a charge of criminal libel, Gov. Richardson today denied the publisher a pardon.

SIX CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

TUCSON, Ariz., June 5.—Six children trapped by flames, perished here last night, when the home of Collentauo Villa burned while a frenzied crowd stood by powerless to give aid. The mother, her oldest daughter and a baby escaped. The fire is believed to have been started by a spark from a stove.

The crackling of the flames awakened the mother, who attempted frantically to save her family. She fled from the blazing structure only after she had been badly burned.

$1943 FEE FOR APPRAISAL OF SCHOOL OF MINES DISAPPROVED

Survey to Determine Insurance Risk Declared Improper Charge Against State.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—A fee of $1943 paid by the Missouri School of Mines at Rolla, State engineering school, to a Chicago firm of engineers for an appraisal of the value of the school buildings and equipment for insurance purposes, is declared an improper charge against the State in a report today by State Auditor L. D. Thompson to Gov. Baker on an audit of the schools' accounts for 1924 and 1925.

Thompson stated this payment was contrary to provisions of a State law requiring annual inventories of the school property at the direction of the Board of Curators. Thompson declined to state against whom the fee should be charged back, but asserted it was not properly chargeable to the State. The item was paid on May 30, 1925.

The Missouri School of Mines is a division of the University of Missouri. Its affairs are directed by an Executve Committee comprising three members of the Board of Curators of the university.

The report also charged back to Dr. S. L. Baysinger of Rolla, former member of the Executive Committee and now a faculty member at Rolla, the sum of $300 which he had drawn in salary as a faculty member while holding membership on the Executive Committee. The audit showed that Dr. Baysinger drew $45.65 per diem pay and expenses to a meeting of the Executive Committee in St. Louis on July 31, 1925, and also was paid $300 in salary as a professor for July of that year.

A payment of $15,000, May 30, 1925, for insurance premiums on fire and tornado policies was questioned as a proper charge against the State, the auditors stating that it was the intention under existing laws for the State to carry its own fire and tornado insurance on all institution property.

Get Yours—but Help the Other Fellow!

'Tis human nature to want "just a little bit more."

From infancy to infirmity it is our natural desire to have our own way, which is entirely proper just so long as we do not "trample on the other fellows' toes."

Self preservation is the first law of nature but applies only to cases of desperation; it does not mean we should grab everything in sight.

"Get yours" but help the "other fellow" get a little whenever you can.

That will be conscience-easing and charitable!

(Signed)

Harry Prufrock.

The BUSINESS CARD column is POST-DISPATCH WANTS is a list of LIVE WORKERS who are ANXIOUS to SERVE in many lines.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

R. AND L.—William McKinley, Republican, was elected President in 1896, re-elected in 1900 and was assassinated by an anarchist, Leon Czolgosz, on Sept. 6, 1901. Grover Cleveland, Democrat, was elected President in 1884, defeated in 1888, re-elected President in 1892. Theodore Roosevelt, Republican, was elected vice president in 1900 and became President in 1901 when McKinley was assassinated; elected President in 1904, defeated for President on the Progressive ticket in 1912. William H. Taft, Republican, was elected President in 1908, defeated for re-election in 1912.

M. T.—The "bill of fare" originated in 1541, at Ratisbon, Germany, where a grand state dinner was held, to which most of the German notables had been invited. It is said that, although the feast was a complete success, Duke Henry of Brunswick was ill at ease. He held a strip of paper in his hand which he frequently scrutinized. Many thought he was memorizing notes for a speech, until one guest inquired as to the nature of the document. The Duke, with a little reluctance, explained that the dinner was too sumptuous for any person to do justice to everything, on which account he had gotten the cook to prepare a full list of the dishes.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

X. Y. Z.—There is a State mothers' law, but it does not apply to the City of St. Louis.

BABE—June 7 is the first day of June term of court, which ends Oct. 2.

J. F.—The judgment is legal, but if it was obtained by fraud, you can have it set aside. In that case you should consult a lawyer.

DESERTED.—Write to the Clerk of the Circuit Court, Kansas City, Mo., or some Kansas City lawyer relative to your husband.

J. M.—You will have to have the license before you can drive the car. If you are coming to Missouri to live, you should apply for a Missouri license. You will have to have a certificate of title in order to get the Missouri license.

MRS. W. S.—If your husband goes into bankruptcy it may or may not be published in the newspapers. If his stock of goods, fixtures, were sold by a trustee in bankruptcy, there would probably be a sign posted in his place of business.

F. S.—You will have to get a license as a hairdresser and cosmetician before you can do marceling. You need not be a graduate of any school. If you comply with the requirements of Section 10 of the law, which you can get at the Public Library (Laws of Missouri, 1925, page 246).

C. D. JR.—The owner and the contractor would both be served with a summons, or, if they could not be found, there might be service by publication, that is, by an advertisement. Probably the suit is in the Circuit Court, at Clayton. However, if the amount in dispute is small, it may be in a Justice of the Peace Court at Clayton. Consult a lawyer, or go to the Clerk's office in the Court House at Clayton, if you want to know whether a suit has been filed.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

ANXIOUS.—The astringent is a patent or proprietory preparation and its composition is known only to its makers, so we are not in a position to advise concerning its merits.

M. E. L.—Brushing of the teeth is all right as far as it goes, but if there is any decay this should be attended to by the dentist. The additional causes of bad breath are indigestion and lung troubles and to determine this a specialist in this line of medical practice should be consulted.

NOSEY POSEY.—Nothing that could have happened in a man's past would render his offspring deformed, although it might render them still-born and more or less devitalized, that is, below par in the standard of health, strength and resistance to disease in general.

Y. W.—Rose warts can be cured and the following should be effective: Calicyclic acid, 2 drachms; soap plaster, 3 ounces; lead plaster, 1 ounce. Mix and keep constantly applied. A rose wart is so named and distinguished from an ordinary wart because of its location and that it is moist and watery in character.

H. G.—Our advice would be to consult a nerve specialist who could more correctly diagnose your case and advise the proper treatment for relief and cure. Should you so desire and will send stamped addressed envelope will recommend a medical expert to whom you could apply for the advice and relief you desire.

E. J. J.—For the perspiration use a warm foot bath in which has been dissolved a handful or two of sea salts. (2) Take powdered oleate of zinc, 1 ounce; powdered boric acid, 2 ounces; powdered French chalk, 2 ounces. Mix and sift over the feet or in the stockings when the occasion demands.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to extend my sincere thanks and appreciation for all kindness and sympathy shown during my late bereavement in the loss of my husband, Herman Vortmeier, also the Rev. Father Waschedue, Master Baker Gebken for his consoling words, the pallbearers, Handlan-Buck employes, Wackerfuneral floral offerings. Also for the beautiful floral offerings.
HUSBAND, FATHER, BROTHER AND SISTER.

We desire to thank our relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement in the loss of our beloved father, Jacob Mueller. Also Rev. E. Leibner, Rev. E. H. Elfs for their consoling words, the honorary and St. Marcus Ladies' Aid Society, St. Marcus Choir and organist and Wacker-Heldorfe, the undertakers; also for the beautiful floral offerings.
THE BEREAVED CHILDREN. (c)

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear mother Mrs. Louise Fabsalt, who departed this life June 4, 1925.
Loving mother, true and kind,
No friend on earth like her we'll find.
But in our hearts she lingers still.
For all of us she did her best.
God grant her eternal rest.
Sadly missed by CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear sister Alvina Thebus (nee Neulist), who departed this life June 6, 1925.
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home that never can be filled.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER, SISTER AND BROTHERS and all who loved her.

In loving memory of our dear son, Fred Geis, who departed this life four years ago, June 9, 1922.
Today recalls sad memories
Of the loved one gone to rest.
Those who think of him today
Are those who loved him best.
Sadly missed by
FATHER AND MOTHER. (c)

In loving remembrance of our beloved son and brother, Edward P. Zimmermann, who departed this life on June 7, 1925.
The place of our brother is vacant,
The voice of our son sounds no more;
But in his kindness and loving affection
Lives on in our memory forever and more.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTERS AND BROTHER. (c)

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Wilhelmena Bach, who departed this life one year ago, June 3, 1925.
In the graveyard softly sleeping
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly
In her silent, lonely grave.
Peaceful be your sleep, dear mother,
It is sweet to breathe your name—
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
Just one year ago you left us;
How we missed you, Mother dear.
And remember all your kindness
As we drop a silent tear.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN. (c)

In loving memory of my dear, beloved husband and our dear father, William H. James, who departed this life June 3, 1924.
Days of sadness oft come o'er me,
Tears in silence often flow,
Love will always keep you near me
Though you left two years ago.
Never will your memory fade,
Never from my memory fade,
Round the grave where you are laid,
Ever remembered by loving WIFE AND CHILDREN.

American Potash and Chemical Corporation Incorporated.

By the Associated Press.

DOVER, Del., June 5.—Incorporators of the American Potash and Chemical Corporation have stated the actual capitalization to be $1,000,000. The American Potash and Chemical Corporation was incorporated yesterday under the Delaware laws with 1,000,000 shares of no par value stock which arbitrarily is assessed at a value of $100,000,000.
The corporation is to acquire by merger and consolidation property and assets of the American Trona Corporation, another Delaware corporation, for producing, refining and dealing in chemicals, especially sodium-potassium products.

Bond Authentication Authority Asked.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Authority to procure authentication of $14,000,000 of first and refunding 5 per cent gold mortgage bonds was asked of the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad. The bonds would be placed in the road's treasury to partially reimburse the road for additions and betterments expenditures.

LOCAL FRUIT MARKET

Apples Slow—Break in Prices of Strawberries.

ST. LOUIS PRODUCE ROW, June 5.—The apple market was slow and prices unchanged. There was no outside demand. No sales of consequence reported aside from 350 boxes of Washington extra fancy winesaps (100s to 175s) at $2.75.

Apple price range: Ben davis, $1.50 to $3.00; willowtwigs, $4.50 to $5.75; No. 1 Inspirnes, $6 per bbl.

Under the weight of estimated offering of 20,000 to 23,000 trays of homegrown strawberries the market broke sharply. The local consumptive demand was heavy and preserving canners bought rather freely. Prices ranged in extreme from $1 to $1.75 per 12-quart tray loose (exceptional lots fancy berries early sold at some premium); with the bulk of sales between $1.25 and $1.65. Factories paid $1.25 generally and small poor stock sold as low as $1 to $1.15. Considerable quantity came in by express. Sales were made as follows: 132 cases Missouri at $2, 84 cases at $1.75, 5 cases Missouri at $2.25 to $2.50, 10 cases do at $2, 8 cases Arkansas aroma at $2.25 and 100 cases Illinois berries (truck receipts) at $2.75 to $3.25.

Onions lower. Cantaloupes and Watermelons lower.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, June 5.—Wheat futures ranged up more than 2 cents on the local market today. Liverpool closed ¾d to ⅞d higher. Winnipeg was higher. A private estimate on Kansas crop wheat was a factor in the market. Corn sold up fractionally. The fact that the Liverpool market was rising in the face of big world shipments estimated 15,400,000, against 11,691,000 bushels last year, exerted influence. A railroad estimate of prospective Kansas wheat crop received attention. Corn was influenced by wheat trend.

Soft wheat offerings were scarce and buyers were offered but pay 4c to 5c higher prices to secure good soft wheat. Offerings were closely cleaned up. All offers being made after the close. Hard wheat was 5c to 6c higher, mill buyers taking all offerings. High protein No. 2 hard was quoted to arrive basis 40¾c to 41¾c over Kansas City July price delivered. Corn was 5c higher to 2c lower. Low grades met a brisk demand and sold steady to ½c higher, but the cheaper classes were salable only at widening discounts, losses as compared with previous close ranging from 1c to 2c. Elevators and mills continued main buyers and the basis was also better. The liberal offerings were closely cleaned up. Oats were steady to ¼c higher. There was a good local demand for the Local offerings. There were also a few shipping orders.

The reported less promising domestic crop outlook and Southwest was accompanied by unfavorable foreign crop reports. Conditions for rye in Europe were said to be unfavorable.

July wheat opened at $1.36⅜, Sept. wheat $1.32⅜, July corn 71⅝c and September corn 76⅛c.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 1020 cars of wheat, compared with 603 a week ago and 367 last year. Minneapolis receiving 120 cars, Duluth 887 and Winnipeg 812.

Local wheat receipts, which were 67,200 bushels, compared with 50,000 a week ago and 58,500 last year, included 15 cars local and 33 through. Corn receipts, which were 278,800 bushels, compared with 110,600 a week ago and 81,200 last year, included 191 cars local and 8 through. Oats receipts, which were 72,000 bushels, compared with 56,000 a week ago and 76,000 last year, included 16 cars local and 20 through. Hay receipts were 19 cars local and 2 through.

Primary receipts of wheat were 527,000 bushels, compared with 736,000 a week ago and 820,000 last year; corn receipts were 1,363,000 bushels, compared with 954,000 a week ago and 654,000 last year; oats receipts were 486,000 bushels, compared with 518,000 a week ago and 487,000 last year. Wheat shipments were 701,000 bushels, compared with 621,000 a week ago and 809,000 last year; corn shipments were 470,00 bushels, compared with 436,000 a week ago and 684,000 last year; oats shipments were 327,000 bushels, compared with 377,000 a week ago and 657,000 last year.

WHEAT FUTURES 2 3-4 TO 4 3-8 HIGHER FOR THE WEEK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Wheat had a sharp upturn today, largely the result of covering of big short lines. Locals also bought heavily because of disquieting crop news from Kansas and the report that the French import duty was to be lowered. Closing prices were 1¼c to 2⅜c higher for the day and for the week 2⅝c to 4⅜c up. July $1.41⅛@1.41⅜; September $1.35⅝@1.35¾; December $1.37⅝@1.37¾.

It has been a week of interesting developments largely because of lowering of estimates on the Kansas crop. Experts felt that the prolonged drouth in spots has cut down the prospective yield.

Cutting of wheat has started in Oklahoma and that State promises to exceed all records as to yield and quality. The cash wheat situation continues strong, the receipts light and millers urgent buyers. Shipping sales were 11,000 bushels. A moderate business in export wheat was reported over night. The weather map showed showers over Oklahoma, Texas and Western Canada. Missouri had some good rains in parts. Local mills reported a slight betterment in the flour demand. Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 60,000 bushels for one day.

Corn was inclined to lag most of the week. Prices were ¼c to ⅜c higher, and for the week 1¾c to 2⅜c higher. July 72¾@72¾c; September 77⅝@77¾c; December 78⅛@78c. The present big receipts of corn are not expected to

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

A noteworthy improvement in sentiment and in the stock market are the most interesting developments of the week but how significant they may be is by no means clear. It is now easy to say whether the better feeling about everything has stimulated fresh confidence in the market or whether the outturn in stocks has brought new faith in the trade position. Probably the rallies in the stock market have encouraged the prophets to interpret the signs from industry more cheerfully and, at the same time, the trade reports have helped stocks. To get at the bottom of it all involves an understanding both of the incoming reports on business and of the psychology of the stock market itself. Undoubtedly the March 31 downswing in stocks carried many issues to positions relatively lower than were, in the opinion of many investors, warranted. In Wall street an upward movement almost always is overdone and on a reversal of sentiment the downward swing usually carries stocks too low. In the present instance the change from a falling to a rising market came overnight and in the absence of any real turn in the news.

What Mire Means.

"It very plainly reflects a reversal in the attitude of professional traders. Having been oversold for the time, the market they must have reasoned, should be in a technical position to move up at least temporarily. A substantial recovery from the March 31 low level in the stock market has been made but no conclusions on the general business situation can be drawn from such an upturn since. A break such as in March would almost inevitably have been followed by a rally. Alternating advances and declines of short duration such as we now are having will not impress the prophet that is awaiting signs of a major movement in the stock market. A certain amount of buying for investment account has made its appearance again in the market but the underlying force that now is lifting stocks is not the volume of new orders from investors. With the aid of cheap money speculators still are endeavoring, by making various issues active, to encourage buying on a wider scale. To a certain degree they have been successful but in the end the movement of the market will be controlled by the underlying trend in trade.

Weather a Help.

"Except for an improvement in the weather which, of course, should tend to stimulate retail trade and better growing conditions for the crops, the week has brought no real change in the position of trade. Competition is keen in many industries but production remains unusually high. Net earnings of industrial corporations ran 30 per cent above the year previous in the first quarter of 1926, if we may judge by a compilation of representative concerns, whereas the net earnings of public utilities for the first quarter of this year exceeded a year ago by 11 per cent and those of the final class railroads by 19 per cent. This showing is encouraged even when recognition is made of the fact as it must be, that the increase is not earnings is exaggerated largely by the increased volume of business for the first quarter of 1926 over the same period of 1925.

Check to Decline.

"In this connection the increasing evidence of a check to the decline in commodity prices has encouraged producers. The general trend of commodities has been downward since late last year and another loss was recorded for May but the rate of decline gradually has been reduced until it now is insignificant. From this point commodity price swings will be narrow for a time, perhaps, since good reasons why the general level of prices should move sharply upward are as difficult to find as those that a further pronounced decline may come.

Irregular Range Saturday.

Price fluctuations were narrow and irregular in dulness trading on the stock market today. Profit taking went ahead in leading stocks that had enjoyed good advances during the week. Scattered selling copped us in some of the rails, which gave the market a weaker appearance but in the main support was encountered at slightly lower levels. Prospects of continued easy money conditions helped to steady the bond market with the high grade rails and many foreign bonds in fairly good demand. Some of the semispeculative favorites were a trifle lower.

Inequalities in Dull Trading.

Except for some of the rail shares and a few specialties, the general market trend was toward lower levels in dull trading. Profit taking in the motor group scattered selling in the oils and pressure against a few sugar shares accounted for lower prices in many of the more prominent industrials. Steel, General Motors, Mission, Cuba Cane Sugar preferred and the like lost ground, but Pathe, Electric Refrigeration, International Telephone and Midland Steel products preferred registered advances. Rail shares continued to attract attention, Nickel Plate leading a slice at a new top for the movement and Delaware & Hudson scoring an advance.

United States Steel rebounded after a rush and closed almost a point higher on the day. New Haven was strong among the low-priced rails. Some others also closed at net gains for day.

Foreign Exchanges Dull.

Trading in the foreign exchange market was in small volume and fluctuations were narrow. Sterling showed signs of easing off a shade, while francs and Belgian francs were supported. The remainder of the European list was little changed.

Clearing House Statement.

Prospects for continued easy money rates next week were brought to light in the weekly statement of the Clearing House banks, which showed an increase in the surplus of $6,929,120 and an excess reserve of $31,728,900. Loans, discounts, etc., decreased $39,798,000.

Decline in Brokerage Loans.

Sentiment was bolstered by the revelation of the Stock Exchange that brokerage loans had declined almost $270,000,000 from the mark of the year. This indication that speculative excesses had been virtually eliminated was believed to assure more consecutive trading investments. The fact, too, that the decline in commodity prices has at last showed signs of halting is a factor that should make itself felt in security prices.

TRACTION STOCK TRADE VOLUME SHOWS INCREASE

Securities Recording Gains During Week's Trade on Local Exchange Nearly Double the Number of Those on Lower Basis.

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, June 5.—Transactions in United Railways 4s, which in aggregate amounted to $120,000, featured the five-day week on the local market. Sales were made between 76½ and 78¾.

Stock sales were about on par with those of preceding week as far as volume. Nearly twice as many issues, however, showed net gains for the period as recorded declines. Then, too, the number of unchanged issues were about equal to those advancing. Sales of St. Louis Public Service were on lowered basis. Ely-Walker gained 1¾ points during the week.

Among the securities that showed improvement during the period were Brown Shoe, International Shoe, Johnson-Stephens-Shinkle, Waltke and Polar Wave.

PERSONAL AND BUSINESS NOTES

Lee Major, formerly Deputy Bank Commissioner of Arkansas, will become associated with the Boatmen's Bank as a vice president on June 15. He will move here from Little Rock, Ark.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, June 5.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted foreign exchange review says:

Movements this week in the leading foreign exchange markets were mixed and irregular, including advances in leading continental rates at the beginning of the week followed by sharp declines on important developments in connection with the French financial position, including ratification of the debt settlement plan by the House of Representatives and quasi-satisfactory statements by French political leaders had an influence in causing advances, which were quickly turned into declines without any special unfavorable development. On Monday, when our market was closed, French was strong in London and after business commenced here on Tuesday checks on Paris moved up 3 points to 3.29. This movement was followed by a reaction which turned into a sharp decline yesterday, when French checks yielded to 3.08½, following a break in the London market.

Italian exchange, which had been firmly held around 3.85 the greater part of the week, also broke yesterday, its check falling to 3.74¾. Sweden followed French on its movements ranging from 3.24 to 3.10. A brisk demand appeared for Norwegian exchange early in the week and brokers had reports on Thursday that a bid for 5,000,000 crowns was in the market at 25.15. Banks also ignored these reports, although there was sufficient demand to carry the crown rate up to 22.15 a new high for the year and a gain of 8 to 11 points over the low of the week. The strength disappeared over night, crown checks falling to 21.91 yesterday.

Danish exchange was in steady demand all through the week, advancing from 26.30 to 26.43, a new high for the last three years. Belgian exchange moved within a narrow range, trading being small in volume. The rates indicated establishment of the prospective re-establishment of the gold basis. There was little movement in Japanese exchange, yen cables holding close to 47 cents all week.

Trading in the foreign exchange market Saturday was in small volume and fluctuations were narrow. Sterling showed signs of easing off a trifle, while French and Belgian francs were supported. The remainder of the European list was little changed.

COTTON CLOSES LOWER AT FINAL SESSION OF WEEK

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 5.—More favorable weather news from the South was reflected by moderate declines in the cotton market today. October contracts sold off to $17.48, or 8 points net lower, and closed at that figure with the general market closing steady at net declines of 6 to 10 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 2 to 5 points in response to lower Liverpool cables, but offerings increased after the call, owing to confirmation of yesterday's private reports of rains in the Eastern belt. These rains were considered beneficial following recent drought complaints, and the prospect of further showers in the Eastern belt with clearing and warmer weather in the Southwest made a favorable impression on sentiment. July sold off to $18.18 and December to $17.40, while March declined to $17.52, making net declines of 2 to 11 points.

The selling was by no means general or aggressive, however, and the decline was checked by covering, with the market rallying steadily in the late trading, although the close was within a point or two of the lowest. There was considerable price fixing during the earlier trading, with spot houses brokers and buyers of July on the decline, but otherwise the bulk of the business was attributed chiefly to the evening-up of accounts and the demand for July was supplied by selling supposed to represent liquidation of Wall street long interests.

Private cables attributed the easier ruling of Liverpool to hedge selling and liquidation, influenced by the better weather news from the South, and to a better demand for cotton cloths was reported from China, they stated that renewed lists in Lancashire were interfering with Manchester business from India. The amount to be put on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 57,296 bales, against 30,317 last year.

Weekly Metal Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The steel market during the past week presented a rather irregular appearance both in regard to the demand and to values. Steel bars were firmer and fairly active while pipe also sold in considerable volume but other products were in only fair demand. On the whole, business was better than a month ago and the monthly loss in orders was expected to be smaller, with further reductions in production.

Pig iron production was also curtailed and some fairly good sized orders were placed at concessions.

Copper remained quiet. Buyers for domestic consumption have holdings of probably in anticipation of lower prices as a result of unsatisfactory trade conditions abroad and a continued full production. But the selling pressure of consequence has developed and some of the producing interests are still asking 13¾c for electrolytic delivered. The figure was entirely nominal, however, with small sales reported at about 13.80c, while comparatively few buyers came in evidence above the 13¾c level.

Tin has declined to a new low for the year in response to larger arrivals and continuance of the English coal strike. Consumers bought liberally on the decline, some of the demand coming from plate manufacturers who opened their books for the third quarter at unchanged prices. Lead remained firm. Large producers are well booked up for June in consequence of recent well distributed buying of both June and July.

Zinc was firmer in sympathy with the steadier London market, with a better inquiry reported.

Antimony advanced, due to the strength in China, with a better consuming demand.

AUTO DRIVER HELD FOR DEATH OF WOMAN

Mrs. Julia Perkowski Was Struck April 18 and Died of Injuries Friday.

A Coroner's verdict of criminal carelessness was returned yesterday in the case of Mrs. Julia Perkowski, 40 years old, of 2704 South Thirteenth street, who died Friday of injuries suffered the night of April 18, when she was struck by an automobile at Seventh boulevard and Sidney street.

The driver did not appear at the inquest, and he is being sought. The night of the accident he submitted to arrest and described himself as Lee Malone, 26, a painter, of 7326 Hoover avenue, Richmond Heights, but police reported at the inquest that he was not at that address.

Witnesses were Joseph Kircher of 2715 South Seventh and his son, Chris, and Jesse West, a garage mechanic. They testified that the traffic signal at Seventh and Sidney read "Go" for north and south traffic, and Malone, accompanied by a woman, was driving south when Mrs. Perkowski and her daughter, Sophie, 14, darted into Seventh street from the southeast curb. The witnesses said Malone had just passed the Kirchers' car at a speed of 25 miles an hour, and dragged Mrs. Perkowski about 30 feet. She suffered fractures of the skull and spine. Her daughter was slightly injured.

The odor of liquor was detected on Malone's breath, it was testified, and police reported he was examined at City Hospital by physicians who found he had been drinking, but was not intoxicated.

CHURCHES SUE CITY FOR STREET GRADE DAMAGES

Restitution Asked for Cost of Retaining Wall and Depreciation of Property.

Suits have been filed in Circuit Court against the City of St. Louis for a total of $6500 by Attorney Michael J. Hart, representing Archbishop Glennon and the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, 8333 Hall's Ferry road, for damages to church property caused by a change of street grade.

The Archbishop sues in behalf of the Holy Cross (German) Church, 8115 Church road, alleging that Church road, in front of the property, consisting of a church, school and residence, was lowered 5 feet and the church was put to an expense of $5000 to build a brick and concrete retaining wall. The suit by the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel is for $1500 on account of the lowering by 3 feet of the street in front of school property at Bittner street and Church road, causing a depreciation, it is alleged.

Herman Bell Pitches Team to Victory in Second Contest—Hornsby Hits Home Run.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Charles Flint Rhem and Herman Bell, right-handers, pitched the Cardinals to a double victory over the Phillies here, this afternoon, 4 to 0 and 7 to 4. The double triumph put the Cardinals in fourth place, the Dodgers losing to the Giants. Further than that, the two conquests placed Hornsby's men over the .500 mark for the first time in a long while.

The double defeat shoved the Phillies into last place. The Braves, by winning their fifth successive contest, passed the Baker entry in the National League marathon.

In downing the men of Fletcher twice, Hornsby's team showed a real punch against Jack Knight and Clarence Mitchell, the only southpaw "spitballer" in captivity.

All the scoring in the first game was done in the first two innings against Knight, who made a spring training trip with the Cardinals some years back. In the nightcap, hitting rallies in the third and fourth accounted for all the runs.

Nine Straight for Rhem.

When Rhem blanked the Phillies in the first tilt, he won his ninth game of the season, against but one defeat. It was his best pitching effort of the year. He held the Phillies, who are by no means weaklings at the bat, to six well-scattered blows. To top it off he was given fine support, three double plays helping the right-hander's cause along.

The former Clemsen College star is now one of the leading pitchers in captivity for the 1926 season, with a 9-1 record for a winning percentage of .900. His victory today was his sixth straight. This places him just 390 points ahead of his team.

While Bell, who accounted for the nightcap, was hit harder, he nevertheless pitchel well enough to land his second triumph on the present road trip.

On Memorial day at Chicago he was the winner over the Cubs, 5 to 3.

Hornsby Hits Homer.

All the excitement in the first clash was centered in the first two innings. Blades greeted Knight with a single and was sacrificed to second. Then Manager Rogers Hornsby stepped to the plate and pounded one into the sun seats, scoring Blades ahead of him. It was the 1925 home run champion's fourth four-bagger of the season. That blow put Rhem two runs to the good and as matters turned out would have been more than enough.

But the Cardinals started all over in the second round. O'Farrell started it with a double and Thevenow and Rhem singled, the catcher scoring. Thevenow counted when Douthit forced Blades at second.

Thereafter Ulrich and Pierce held the Cardinals safe, but with Rhem going along at a fast pace, it did not matter. Rhem turned in his best pitching in the second round. Wrightstone opened with a double, but got no further as Rhem retired the next three batters, Huber, Henline and Friberg on strikes. All told, the Cardinal right-hander had six strikeouts to his credit.

Phillies Lead in Second Game.

The Phillies started in front in the second tilt, putting over a pair in the second. One out, Huber doubled, Henline walked and Friberg doubled the two runs across.

The two-run margin for Fletcher's aggregation did not endure for long.

Hornsby's men got busy against Mitchell in the third. One out, Blades and Douthit singled. Hornsby went out, but Bottomley walked. Holm singled and when Sand made a wild throw, the three base runners came home, putting St. Louis in front.

Paula Shay Setting Track Record in the Fourth Race at Fairmount

Paula Shay ran the mile-and-one-sixteenth in 1:46 2-5, beating Eight-Sixty by half a length, after leading all the way.

Bagenbaggage Is Winner Of $25,000 Latonia Derby; With Boot to Boot Second Rhinock Runs Third, Shutting Out East Completely — Time for Event, 2:32 1-5, Is Two Seconds Slower Than Record.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LATONIA, Ky., June 5.—The Idle Hour Farm Stable's colt, Bagenbaggage, captured the forty-fourth running of the Latonia Derby at one mile and a half before a crowd of 30,000 at the Latonia course this afternoon. Boot to Boot, his stablemate, was second, and the Parkview Stable's Rhinock, third. Blondin was fourth. Recollection fifth, and Navigator last.

The winner covered the distance in the comparatively slow time of 2:32 1-5, two seconds behind the best time for the stake.

The victory enriched Owner Bradley to the extent of $24,500, together with second money of $3000. Rhinock earned $1500 and Blondin $750.

The entry was an overwhelming favorite and paid a straight price of 60 cents on the dollar. Rhinock was next in demand at 6 to 1. Blondin was $6.10 to 1, while Recollection and Navigator were the outsiders.

The race was run under ideal weather conditions, while the track was at its best.

Race Is Truly Run.

The race was truly run. The unsuccessful starters had no excuses. E. Blind, who rode the winner, put up a well-judged ride and is entitled to much credit. G. Johnson had the mount on Boot to Boot and also performed creditably.

As in the last running of the Kentucky Derby, in which the Idle Farm Stable also supplied the winner and second horse, easterners were again forced to taste the bitterness of defeat. Navigator and Blondin, which were sent here to start in the race, might just as well have been left at home, for neither cut much figure.

Today's victory marks the stable's second consecutive success in the Latonia derby, as the Bradley colors were carried to victory in the stake last year by Broadway Jones.

The Bradley representatives had matters pretty much their own way, but Bagenbaggage did not win with much to spare. Boot to Boot was pressing him hard and contesting every inch of the final quarter. Both colts were driving hard at the end with the winner gaining the decision by a length. A length and a half separated Boot to Boot and Rhinock, while eight lengths back, Blondin drove into fourth place. Recollection and Navigator were far out of it.

Bagenbaggage Takes Lead.

Recollection was in a running mood, and he took command after a delay of only one minute at the

Bradley's Horses Finish One - Two In Three Derbies

E. R. BRADLEY'S Idle Hour Farm stable probably has set a unique record for derbies this year. Including today's Latonia classic, the entries of the Idle Hour Farm have run one-two three times in derbies, this year.

In the first instance, on March 17, at New Orleans, Bagenbaggage won the Louisiana Derby with Boot to Boot second.

On May 15, at Churchill Downs, Louisville, Bubbling Over won the Kentucky Derby and Bagenbaggage finished second.

Today Bagenbaggage and Boot to Boot again led the procession. In all, the three derbies have netted the Bradley stable about $108,000.

Mehlhorn Only Victor for American "Pro" Golfers; Emmet French Gets Tie

British Team Defeats United States Stars in Ryer Cup Competition 13½ Points to 1½ — Hagen and Barnes Badly Beaten.

By Walter Hagen
Twice Winner of British Open Golf Title.

(Copyright, 1926.)

LONDON, June 5.—The British professionals triumphed over the Americans in singles matches at Wentworth today and took possession of the Ryder Trophy. After yesterday's disaster our forces appeared to be demoralized and could not make it interesting for our opponents who put the finishing touches on our slaughter in the most approved manner, looking at it of course from a British standpoint.

There is very little to say about our overwhelming defeat and what I would like to say would not be interesting so we will leave out all allibis and give credit where it is due. The British boys outplayed us in the singles just as they did in the two-ball foursomes leaving our remains strewn along the fairway pretty far removed from the eighteenth hole, as most of the matches were frightfully one-sided.

Arthur Havers left little Freddie McLeod in a sand-bunker way back at the eighth hole where he buried him by a 10 and 9 score. Joe Kirkwood was hopelessly beaten at the end of the morning round, being eight down to George Gadd, who shot a 70, one of the best scores of the day. Joe couldn't pick up holes on his opponent after luncheon and succumbed finally by 8 and 7. Long Jim Barnes was toppled over by just as wide a margin as he found Abe Mitchell playing his best brand of golf both morning and afternoon. Big Ted Ray smothered Al Watrous by 7 and 5 and then I came next, taking a very bad beating from George Duncan, by 6 and 5. George got the jump on me in the forenoon and finished the first half four up. He increased the lead by two holes in the second round polishing me off neatly and without any excuses to offer except that I was playing badly.

Mehlhorn the Only Winner.

Cyril Walker never had a chance and was taken into camp by Fred Robson by 5 and 4. Tom Armour made a game fight against Aubrey Boomer and only lost by two holes. Joe Stein, the boy I have been boosting, carried his match along well but finally was forced to capitulate to H. C. Jolly by 3 and 2. Jolly defeated me in the finals of a big match play tournament here three years ago.

There was some satisfaction in the victory of Bill Mehlhorn over Archie Compston, our only win. Bill was three down at the fifteenth hole in the morning, but he won two holes before finishing the round, and went to luncheon only one down. This afternoon he played brilliantly and outfought Compston all the way on the last

*Keeneland Stud entry.

Forest Nymph raced like a good filly, showed early speed, but bolted when reaching stretch and lost much ground, came stoutly when urged hard and wore down Thirteen Sixty in the last 70 yards. Thirteen Sixty dwelled at start and was away poorly, saved much ground by staying close to inner rail and tired after seemingly having the race won. Shasta Negra also saved much ground, but hung a trifle near end. Old Lace showed a good effort before tiring. Floranada and Joan D'Albret were raced into exhaustion in first three furlongs.

$2 certificates earned: Forest Nymph $7.80, $2.70, $2.40; Thirteen Sixty, $3.50, $2.30; Shasta Negra, $4.30.

By Dent McSkimming.

To most of the 10,000 spectators at Fairmount Race Track yesterday afternoon it appeared that Forest Nymph, winner of the Illinois stakes, the $5000 feature fifth event, outraced Thirteen Sixty merely because she was the faster horse of the two.

Close observers, however, noted that little Willie Garner, who rode Forest Nymph, rated his mount perfectly, maneuvered to a favorable position at the head of the stretch, held on close until they reached the sixteenth pole and only then got really active in calling for speed from the Nymph.

Thirteen Sixty had spent most of her energy in recovering from a very bad start, being practically left at the post when the barrier went up at the five and one-half furlong pole.

Thus, after passing up every rival, coming from a bad last to first at the head of the stretch, Thirteen Sixty had nothing left with which to answer the call of Willie Garner on Forest Nymph. It made for a very thrilling finish, the horses racing head and head for 100 yards before the Keeneland entry obtained a scant advantage. Beaten, Thirteen Sixty was not disgraced, for she had accomplished a great deal in getting up into the field at all after so poor a start.

Captain Hal Shows Up Field.

Either Captain Hal is a great race horse or he got mixed up with a bunch of pretty poor ones in the sixth race. In spite of the fact that Jockey Earl Pool restrained him through half the journey, the Captain won by at least 10 lengths in capturing the Midwest Handicap, in which Under Fire, Beau Butler, and others made a very sorry looking picture, strung out a sixteenth of a mile behind the leader at the finish. The Captain set a track record for the mile and 70 yards, doing it in 1:43. The old mark was 1:44 1-5.

This was Captain Hal's second impressive victory of the present meeting, for he galloped home an easy winner in the Collinsville Handicap on opening day. It was not difficult to pick the winner yesterday and most of the spectators had a ticket on Kaiser's son of Block Toney. He paid only 20 cents on the dollar to win.

The track was in wonderful condition for a fine day's running. Track records were equalled and broken.

In the fourth, Paula Shay, in beating Eight Sixty and Jubal Early, the best of a field of nine starters, established a new track record for one mile and a sixteenth. The time was 1:46 2-5.

Another Record Equalled.

In the second, a five furlongs dash, Shasta Bullet equaled the record of 1:01 1-5. Miles Prior took second money in this event and Prevail, the favorite, finished third.

George Groom, an old favorite of Fairmount patrons, galloped home an easy winner in the third race, not at all hard pressed after the first furlong of the six-furlong dash.

Longpoint finished second and Beautiful Addie third. The latter was given a hustling ride in the last 50 yards to nose out Bradley's Toney. Happy Bob, a factor in the early running, fell far out of it in the stretch.

Glister set the fashion for shot prices when she captured the first race and paid only $2.50 to a $2 ticket. Glister was never anywhere but in front of the field of nine starters. August Busch's Chief Uncas made a move as if to overtake the leader at the head of the stretch, but swerved strangely at the sixteenth pole and lost ground. He finished second, with Lathrop third.

Eight Sixty Shows Speed.

Eight Sixty showed a wonderful lot of speed in the stretch and nearly overtook Paula Shay in the fourth race and those who backed the Sixty horse are sure to follow her the next time she tries the distance. Paula Shay might have won more handily, but Earl Pool appeared to grow over-confident when his lead seemed sufficient at the head of the stretch. Paula Shay relaxed, Eight Sixty came on as if just getting started. Jubal Early was third.

Super King beat several well-played favorites in taking the seventh. Reap was second and Bucko third. Ramkin and Gray Gables had a host of supporters but neither was dangerous.

LATONIA WINNERS ARE EXPECTED AT FAIRMOUNT TRACK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LATONIA, Ky., June 5.—FOUR leading Western horses are expected in the Fairmount Derby as a result of the outcome of the Derby here today. The horses are: Bagenbaggage, Boot to Boot, Rhinock and Recollection. Boot to Boot may be withdrawn in favor of Bubbling Over, the latter horse being again in training.

Rhinock and Recollection will be better suited for the Fairmount Derby distance—one and one-quarter mile.

Rosenbloom Wins Bout From Shade

New York Middleweight Gains Decision Over Californian in 10 Rounds.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Dave Shade of California, outweighed by nine pounds, tonight received a setback at the hands of Maxie Rosenbloom, losing a judges' decision to the New York middleweight in a 10-round fight at the Queensboro Stadium.

Newspaper men at the ringside gave Shade a slight edge on points going into the final round, when Rosenbloom staged a whirlwind rally, carrying the fight to the Pacific Coast man and landing heavily with both hands. Shade's plucky battle against his heavier opponent drew a big ovation for him at the finish.

By J. Roy Stockton.

George Sisler worked his second-string pitchers against the expensive Lefty Grove in the opening game of the series with the second-place Athletics of Connie Mack yesterday afternoon, and Messrs. Giard, Ballou, Jonnard and Falk, in contrast with the $106,000 southpaw, looked like counterfeit trinkets from the 10-cent store.

While Grove was striking out 10 men, holding the Browns to five scattered hits and one lonely run, the Brownie pitchers were being slammed all over the lot for a total of 14 hits and 10 runs.

There might be a slight retraction in the comment on the pitchers as far as Ballou was concerned. He pitched to only one batter and retired that one, ending a Philadelphia rally that had been started at the expense of Giard, but Ballou was in bad company, and inasmuch as Sisler took him out immediately for a pinch hitter, he will have to go in the category with the other second-string throwers.

Giard Wild, So Wild.

Giard started the game for Sisler, and it was his first start since an exhibition game in Baltimore early in May, when he developed a sore arm. Later he was sent home, and complained bitterly about the pain in his pitching arm. There was much of the painful about Giard's pitching in this game with the Macks, but it was not all in his arm. Giard was wild. He walked a man in the third inning and one in the fourth. The Macks turned this second pass into a run, Simmons clicking a single to left, Dykes reaching first on Giard's fumble and Pool, who had drawn the pass, scored on French's sacrifice fly to Bennett.

In the fourth Giard gave some more bases on balls. With one out he walked Cochrane and Lamar, and when Joe did get the ball over the plate for Poole, Jim socked a single to left, scoring Cochrane. Giard threw out Simmons, but he walked Dykes, filling the bases. Then French took advantage of a strike and singled to center, counting Lamar and Poole. At this juncture, as the fellow says, Ballou went in and Giard departed. Ballou ended the rally, but retired for Pinch Hitter Hargrave, and Jonnard went in to take some punishment. He got it.

Cochrane Wields Big Stick.

Cochrane, second up in the sixth, hit into the right centerfield pavilion.

In the seventh, Dykes led off with a single to left and after French had fouled out, Galloway hit over Jacobson's head in center for a triple, scoring Dykes. Grove struck out but Bishop walked and Cochrane tripled to right, scoring Galloway and Bishop.

Jonnard also retired for a pinch-hitter and Falk started pitching in the eighth. He, too, was treated rudely. Pool started the attack on the Texas southpaw by beating out a roller to Gerber and Simmons clicked a single to left. Pool going to third and Simmons to second when Bennett fumbled the hit. Dykes poled a double to center and Pool and Simmons scored. Falk stopped the Athletics' rally there and was not scored upon in the ninth, though Cochrane singled without out.

Only Run on Wild Pitch.

Grove was invincible and would not have been scored upon, had it not been for a wild pitch. The only St. Louis run was produced in the ninth. Wil hone out, Jacobson singled to center and Dixon walked. Jake went to third on Gerber's sacrifice fly and then, with Lamotte at the plate, batting for Falk, Grove threw a wild one past Cochrane, Jake scoring and Dixon racing to third. Grove then struck out Lamotte for the final out.

Grove gave great exhibitions of Pinch-pitching in the seventh and eighth innings. In the seventh, Bennett led off with a double to left and passes to McManus and Jacobson filled the bases with none out. Dixon, however, popped to Galloway and Gerber and Schang, the latter bunting for Jonnard, struck out an dthe three Brownies were left stranged on the sacks.

In the eighth Rice doubled to left with nobody out, and went to third on Melillo's sacrifice fly to Lamar. Grove then struck out Sisler and retired Bennett on a polite looping liner to Dykes.

Cochrane was the hitting hero for the Mackmen. He hit a home run, a triple and two singles in five official times at bat and also drew a base on balls. Pool got three singles and drew two walks. It was a great day for the visiting batsmen.

The victory enabled the Mackmen to gain a full game on the Yankees, who were taking a pasting at the hands of the Cleveland Indians, and today the Macks are only 6½ games behind the slugging men of Miller Huggins. The Browns, if it matters, are again 16 games below the .500 mark, and unless somebody buys some pitchers to help Gaston and Zachary, the .500 will be an unattainable objective for the Sislermen, who, if they had good pitching, would be a very respectable team.

Elam Vangilder will try his hand against the Macks this afternoon in the second game of the series and he will draw Sammy Gray as his opponent. Sammy will be remembered as the right-hander who won eight straight games last year before coming to St. Louis, where he was incapacitated by being hit on the pitching hand by George Blaeholder, a prominent member of the Browns, who now is at Tulsa, where several members of the Brownie staff could do less harm than in a St. Louis uniform.

Tris Speaker Is Awarded Diploma By Junior League

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, June 5.

TRIS SPEAKER, manager of the Cleveland Indians, was honored here this afternoon. The Indian leader was awarded a diploma from the American League "for being the most valuable man to his team, while a member of the Boston Red Sox in 1912."

This honor was voted Speaker, who is ineligible to the regular trophy competition because he is a manager, by the eight sports writers, who make up the commission.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Means Little.

BILL TILDEN is spoofing the second raters again, apparently. William permitted himself to be defeated by A. H. Chapin Jr., who is not quite among the elite of the tennis world, in this country.

It was the fifth time this year that William has gone down to defeat. But build no niches in the Hall of Fame for his conquerors—yet.

William has a habit of relaxing when things are not "jake" for him to extend himself. Bill, in jocular vein, likes to kid the opposition. He has some peculiar ideas about sportsmanship which hold that it is right to be clubby with opponents — when nothing much is at stake.

Bill Tilden

Many Have Trimmed Bill.

WILLIAM'S history will show that junior players have beaten him; that J. O. Anderson, an inferior, won from him; that others of lower class have either beaten him or run him to hair-line finishes at times, and that, in general, his ante-championship and post-championship form have not always been strictly Tilden.

Here in St. Louis we saw him beaten in a most strenuous match by George Lott, a player who has not the remotest right to be in William's class.

Bill likes to look defeat right in the eye and then bat him in the same place.

He doesn't always succeed. But because he loses occasionally don't think William is "done."

He is a real world's champion; and unless he is sick he will come back next July and August when the hot weather and the hot competition roll around again.

They haven't grown any new talent during the winter months capable of taking Tilden's measure.

Lajoie Forgotten.

TRIS SPEAKER, the first of the ex-post-facto "most valuable players" of the American League to be honored, was formally ushered into the Hall of Fame, yesterday. Although not eligible under the American League trophy rules to compete for the prize, his past record earned him a place there, according to a vote of the trophy commission.

The awards to Ty Cobb and Eddie Collins, other veteran American Leaguers who gained the commission's favor, will be made later.

Many will wonder why the name of Larry Lajoie, one of the greatest players of all time, was not included.

There is no doubt about Larry's ability. Many still think that if an all-time major league club were picked, the experts could not omit Lajoie from the post, at second base. But instead of Lajoie being named, Eddie Collins, a rival at the same station, has been chosen for the American League honor.

But—

How It Happened.

ONCE upon a time, some 15 years or so ago, Larry and Ty Cobb were coming down the stretch, neck-and-neck, for the batting honors of the American League.

It came down to the last day of the season, and Larry Lajoie needed about eight or nine hits to pass Ty Cobb and gain the Chalmers trophy, an automobile then donated by a private corporation to the successful American League star.

Larry's friends were his undoing. Among them were Jack O'Connor, then manager of the Browns, and Harry Howell, a former pitcher for the St. Louis Americans and at the time a candidate for a position as umpire in the American League.

Lajoie's friends planned for him to get the eight hits needed to put him in front.

He Needed Eight Hits.

IN the double-header played against the Browns, Larry was at bat eight times. He bunted seven times and received seven hits, because Red Corridon of the Browns played so far back at third base that he could not get up in time to throw out Lajoie.

The other time at bat resulted in a roller to shortstop on which Larry reached first base. It might have been construed a base hit or an error; but the official scorer, then a reporter for the old Republic, called it an error. This made the Cobb-Lajoie race so close that the Lajoie followers tried to play it safe.

They sent Harry Howell with a written message to the official scorer. It offered a suit of clothes if the scorer could see his way clear to make the error a hit.

The official scorer couldn't see anything but an error.

But he did see a most amazing breach of baseball etiquette. He reported the same with the result that—

Lajoie has not yet received his award of merit, as his playing might have deserved.

Harry Howell never became an American League umpire, a job for which he was in line.

That Jack O'Connor lost his job as manager of the Browns.

And so, because of his friends, the Hall of Fame in the American League will be minus the name of one of its truly great players—Lajoie.

BAGENBAGGAGE WINNER OF LATONIA DERBY; BOOT TO BOOT SECOND

post; starter Hamilton getting the six away to a good start. Boot to Boot was the closest in pursuit closely followed by Blondin and Navigator. Bagenbaggage was last as they dashed past the stand for the first time. Rounding the turn into the back stretch, Recollection began to back up, and simultaneously Bagenbaggage moved up on the outside, and showing good speed was in front when the first mile was completed.

Recollection was second, hard pressed by Blondin, while Boot to Boot had dropped back to fourth place. Rounding the far turn, Boot to Boot under Johnson's urging had moved up, and was right at his stable mate's throat latch as they dashed around the turn into the home stretch. The pair then started to fight it out through the long stretch drive with Bagenbaggage only a head in advance of the other colt.

Rhinock Shows Speed.

In the final sixteenth, Blind went to work in earnest with Bagenbaggage and under the lash of the whip, he drew slightly away and in the hardest kind of a drive outstayed his sturdy opponent.

Rhinock under restraint for the first three quarters, gained speed in the final quarter when given his head, and coming fast in the last eighth found no real opposition for third money, Blondin dropped back in the stretch and was a bad fourth.

Both the winner and second horse were acclaimed upon their return to the scales, where the massive floral horse shoe was placed on Bagenbaggage. Boot to Boot came in for almost as much applause as the winner.

Boston Braves Scalp the Reds For Third Time

Bancroft's Men Take Fifth Straight—Benton Fans Three in Crucial Inning.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, June 5.—Boston ran its winning streak to five by beating up the Cincinnati Reds for the third consecutive time, today. The score was 5 to 1, with Benton holding the leaders to six hits and striking out nine, three of whom whiffed in the eighth when Hargrave singled and Dressen doubled, without a score. In these five games the Braves have made 49 runs. Ryan, pitcher, was released unconditionally today by Boston.

Ruth Gets 19th Homer; Indians Turn Triple Play

Pennock Loses His Second Game of Season, Cleveland Winning, 15—3.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., June 5.—Tris Speaker day was celebrated here today with the Cleveland Indians defeating the New York Yankees, 15 to 3.

Babe Ruth made his nineteenth homer of the season. George Burns hit his twenty-first and twenty-second doubles of the season.

The Indians made a triple play in the seventh inning.

Pennock was driven from the box and lost his second game of the season. Buckeye held the Yankees to five hits and won his first game of the season.

Speaker had a field meet in center field and pulled down nine flies.

MEHLHORN SCORES ONLY VICTORY FOR AMERICAN PROS AGAINST BRITISH

eighteen. This match and the tie by Emmet French, who was playing against C. A. Whitcomb, were the only two battles that reached the home green in the afternoon.

I was very uncertain from the tee, which left a lot to do. My second shots, or in most cases, my recovery shots, were finding traps just as they did yesterday, and when I was fortunate enough to land on the green I managed to take more putts than necessary. Jim Barnes told me he had much the same trouble. One cannot afford to wander very far from the straight and narrow path when he is up against stiff opposition. Duncan never lost an opportunity to take advantage of my mistakes, and Mitchell, after getting the jump on Jim, never ceased his relentless attack.

British Open Coming.

If this one-sided defeat in the Ryder Cup matches is an indication of the way we are going to play golf over here I hate to think what will happen to us in the British open. I am of the opinion that all of the boys will improve with more play. Perhaps we should have played more practice rounds, but this was impossible for some of us who got off the boat on Tuesday and only had two days to tune up.

CARDS WIN 2 GAMES FROM PHILLIES AND REACH FOURTH PLACE

One out, Thevenow was safe on an error and Herman Bell singled. Blades singled, Douthit and Hornsby walked, Holm singled and the Cardinals had four more tallies and Mitchell was on his way to the showers, Maun replacing him.

Huber's double, an infield out and a sacrifice fly added one to the Phillie total in the fourth, while Wrightstone pounded out a four-bagger for the last run of the game in the sixth.

The Cardinals and Phillies will rest tomorrow, but hostilities will resume Monday. It probably will be Johnson against Dean on the hurling hill.

It was no day for a ball game. A cold wind chilled the 3000 fans and a drizzle which started right after the second game opened, continued until near the finish.

Cleveland Wins As Fists Fly at Title Ball Game

Police Forced to Stop Boxing Match at Second Base; Beaumont Victim.

Wobbly play behind Hoyt "Lefty" Grant, Beaumont pitcher, caused Beaumont to lose the championship of the City High School Baseball League to Cleveland, 4 to 3, yesterday afternoon, as the Cleveland High School Fields, both schools were tied for the lead when the season closed. Yesterday's game was the play-off.

Except for one inning when both Al Vogt of Cleveland and Grant were in superb form, Vogt donated the trio of Beaumont tallies, in the opening frame, by walking two and hitting one of the first three batters to face him. Vogt were shoved around on two hits, outs and an error by Thompson.

Two hits, and four runs spelled victory for Cleveland in the ninth inning. Hennelly, the fourteenth batter to face Grant, was safe when Heuser dropped Grant's throw to first. Grant had Hennelly neatly picked off first, but the relay from Heuser was dropped by Roller. Hennelly being safe at second. The next two batters were retired on pop flys, but Norman revived the dying rally, by getting in the way of a pitched ball. Gitto singled off Fischer's glove, Hennelly and Norman counting.

In stealing second Gitto collided with Neil. The close decision favored Gitto, who had slid off the sack. Then in attempting to tag Gitto, Neil pushed the Clevelander off the bag. The ball game began to look like a prize fight. Gitto created a situation known as fish by raising his fists. Players on both teams rushed to the keystone station. When Coover smacked Moore on the chin, the police rushed into action. The boxing match was adjourned and the ball game continued.

The outbreak however seemed to unnerve Beaumont, and Coover's easy roller was muffed by Neil. Hornsby put the champions ahead with a ringing blow to right field. Gitto and Coover tagging the home rubber.

Hornsby was left stranded when Vogt fouled to Heuser. Each side had a chance to score after the fifth, but fine defensive work prevented further tallying.

Roosevelt, last year's champion, finished the present season with a tie, with Central for third place.

Helen Wills Discusses Three Women Stars—Vlasto, Contoslavlos, Ryan

First-Named Ranks Second Only to Suzanne in France and Has Played as Her Partner.

By HELEN WILLS.

AMONG the women players in France, Mlle. Didi Vlasto holds second place, ranking next to Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen. Mlle. Vlasto has been consistently good since she took part in the Olympic games in 1924, when she won praise for having defeated Miss Kathleen MacKane, who had won that year at Wimbledon. Since then Mlle. Vlasto has improved, judging from her play on the Riviera in the south of France.

Her improvement is due to the fact that she played through a number of the tournaments on the Riviera, and because she was partnered with Mlle. Lenglen in the women's doubles in many matches. From this experience she seems to have gained confidence.

Her main weapon is the drive and a very effective one it is. Her forehand stands out as one of the fastest seen in women's tennis and is surprisingly accurate for all its speed. Mlle. Vlasto, unlike most players, grasps her racquet several inches away from the end. Because of this, and because of the wide swing which is made with the arm held very nearly stiff, the drive has not much top, and bounces low, sometimes skidding. This stroke is an excellent one on hard courts, but should be even better on grass because of its speed and low bound.

Has Not Played on Grass.

Mlle. Vlasto has never played on grass, but has said that perhaps she may go to Wimbledon this year. It will be very interesting to see whether or not her game is suited to a grass surface. If she does like it, she should make an excellent showing. Unusual steadiness marks her playing; and she errs only when hard pressed. Unlike many players she rarely misses the very easy shots, a virtue which is as valuable as it is rare.

By nature keen and high strung, she has educated her temperament admirably for match play, and, now that she has gone through numerous tournaments, her play is consistent. I cannot remember having seen her play badly upon any occasion this winter, and there are few players, as those who are interested in tennis know, who do not have their good and bad days and their ups and downs.

Her appearance on the court is very pleasing. She is small and slender, yet strong and browned by the sun. Her hair is dark and curling, and is usually bound down by a band of ribbon tied tightly. Her movements are graceful, and she can run swiftly. She is accomplished in classic dancing which she has studied since she was a small child. This has probably added to her grace on the court. Although born in France, she is of Greek parentage.

The Other Helen—Contostavlos.

A newcomer in the ranks of French women tennis players in Mlle. Helen Contostavlos. Her home is in Marseilles in Southern France and it was on the Riviera this winter that I first saw her play. She has not played in many tournaments until this season, and so is not yet as well known as Mlle. Vlasto. Like Mlle. Vlasto, Mlle. Contostavlos is Greek, but was born in France. Therefore, she is eligible to play on the French team in the International Matches which are about to take place at the Racing Club in Paris.

There is not a great difference in the play of Mlle. Contostavlos and that of her friend Mlle. Vlasto. Mlle. Vlasto has perhaps more speed on her forehand, but the former's backhand is the more effective. Both players are unusually steady. They met only once on the Riviera this winter, at Cannes, where Mlle. Vlasto won on account of her longer experience in match play, and because she was a shade more decisive at the critical moments in the long rallies.

Mlle. Contostavlos is quite small, yet strong and quick footed. Her ability to cover court is at times remarkable.

She has another quality valuable to the tennis player. She never gives up trying for a ball until it has bounded twice. This is an important factor in match play. William Tilden calls it "the ability to scramble," and it is surprising how many seemingly lost points can be thus recovered.

Is Never Careless.

Mlle. Contostavlos concentrates intensely on her play. The onlooker, as well as the player on the other side of the net, feels this power. She is keenly interested in her game, and always tries to make the best showing she can. She is never careless or indifferent and she makes every stroke with the utmost care. As a doubles partner, one is more able to realize how really dependable Mlle. Contostavlos' game is. We played ladies' doubles together through several tournaments on the Riviera, and I found her a most delightful person with whom to play. Her game is so sound, and she rarely makes mistakes. She is amiable and pleasant. The real fun that one can derive from doubles if one has a congenial partner is unlimited. And Mlle. Contostavlos is a delightful partner.

Mlle. Contostavlos' demeanor on the court is most attractive. There is no affectation of any sort, and no remarks, except a very quiet "oh la la!" which is audible only to her doubles partner. She has been a favorite wherever she has played. She is quiet and sweetly serious, which is as one would except of a young girl who has been carefully brought up by a charming mother.

Mlle. Contostavlos may take part in the tournament at the All England Club at Wimbledon. She should win many of her matches, as her sound play will make her a worthy opponent of the very best.

Other Helen Has Ability to "Scramble" — California Player at Her Best in Tournaments.

Unusual Tournament Player.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California ranked as No. 2 among the American players, is unquestionably a good player as well as an unusual one. Her game, based on the chop, has won her many victories in France, England and America. She stands out as the one woman player having more international experience in tennis than almost any other, because of the length of time which she has devoted to the game and because of the number of countries in which she has played.

As a girl, she played in Southern California with the Sutton sisters, the most famous of whom, May, will be remembered as being the first and only American woman to win the singles in the English championships at Wimbledon. Many of the characteristics typical of California tennis remained when Miss Ryan's game reached its best form as it did when she was playing in England and France. She possesses certain characteristics which remind one of May Sutton-Bundy—Miss Ryan's manner of covering court with short, quick steps, for example, also the way in which she begins her service.

For a number of years Miss Ryan has lived in England and France—the summer in England, the winter on the Riviera. She has frequently competed at Wimbledon, and for many seasons has played through the tournaments which precede it. The tennis in the south of France, because of the climatic conditions, the high average of play and the frequency of tournaments, is also conducive to improvement.

Many players have good games, but cannot do themselves justice in match play because of nervousness or lack of confidence or overeagerness. Miss Ryan, on the contrary, makes her best showing in tournaments. Although of a keen and nervous disposition, she has remarkable power of concentration; this, coupled with her long experience in match play and unusual determintion, has won many matches.

Miss Ryan is the only woman player who uses the chop consistently and with good results. It has been said by tennis critics that the driving game is the best one, and that a player who always uses the chop cannot be as effective or have as good results. They point out, too, that there are far more good players whose game is based upon the drive than upon the chop, and that usually, in the end, the drive is the winner. But there are exceptions to every rule, and here Miss Ryan is the exception.

In doubles, she is excellent. Her volleying, which is accurate and carries a side spin, is most effective. Her overhead, too, is good. She has the ability to run up and backwards quickly, which is necessary in doubles. Her drop shot, just over the net wins many points. As Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen's partner, she has acquired many valuable hints concerning the tactics of the doubles game.

Judging from her play as it is seen in the Bois at the Racing Club, it seems that she is even better than she was last season. She shows that she is a tennis thinker as well as a tennis player.

12 Local Golfers Eligible to U. S. Sectional Event

Only Two of the Dozen Will Survive to Enter the National Open Tourney.

Twelve St. Louis amateur and professional golfers have been declared eligible to compete in the sectional tournament to determine which two golfers of the St. Louis District Association shall have the right to compete in the national open tournament, this year.

The 12 eligibles are to start play over the Algonquin course June 14 at 9 a. m.

9 a. m.—Art Longworth, St. Louis; Elliott M. Whitebread, Sunset Hill C. C., St. Louis.

1 p. m.—E. J. Rogers, Oklahoma City, Ok.

9:05 a. m.—David C. Carter, Radio Springs G. C., Nevada, Mo.; James S. Manion, St. Louis.

1:05 p. m.—S. B. Anderson, Oklahoma City, Ok.

9:10 a. m.—Richard E. Buckenkamp, Midland Valley C. C., St. Louis; Clarence L. Wolff, St. Louis.

1:10 p. m.—Ted Longworth, Joplin.

9:15 a. m.—Craig Wood, Louisville, Ky.; Eddie Held, Webster Groves.

1:15 p. m.—John J. Manion, St. Louis.

In order to keep down the number of entries for the U. S. Open, which will this year be held at the Scioto Country Club course, Columbus, O., July 8—10, the sectional tournaments have been arranged. There are 697 entries at the present time in the various districts, and these must b reduced to 112 actual players of which the St. Louis district has been allotted only two.

The heaviest entries have been from the New York and Chicago districts which entered 106 and 113 respectively. The State of California entered only 14, Cleveland had 83, third high and Detroit was fourth with 44.

Bobby Jones, Francis Ouimet and 28 professionals who finished among the first thirty at Worcester last year, are eligible without competing; while Archie Compston for England, Peter O'Hara of England, T. E. Howard of Australia and Fred McLeod of the District of Columbia are also eligible without having to qualify.

LYONS GAINS TENTH VICTORY, BEATING RED SOX, 8 TO 2

CHICAGO, June 5.—Ted Lyons ran his string of winnings to 10 today when the White Sox beat the Red Sox, 8 to 2. Lyons was ahead of the opposition all the way. He had excellent command and plenty of stuff to fool the invaders.

THE real season for fishing is now open and the ban on the use of artificial bait has been removed.

Speaking of artificial bait, we feel that if fishing of any kind is permitted between April 10 and June 1 the use of the fly should be allowed, for we all know that fish during this season will take a worm or minnow much quicker than it will strike at an artificial fly.

The intent of the law was to exclude the use of the wooden minnow with its gangs of treble hooks, and was not aimed at the fly with its single hook.

As a matter of fact (with the exception of trout), no fishing of any kind should be permitted between April 10 and June 10.

Trout have finished spawning by March 1, and the use of any bait, except salmon eggs, should be allowed.

The use of gig or spear should not be permitted at any time.

Our Game and Fish Laws.

As a whole, our game and fish laws are good and, under the guidance of Commissioner Keith McCanse, our deputies are doing good work, but we need more than just law enforcement. We need the hearty co-operation of every citizen of the State—they should make game and fish protection a personal job. Our legislators should make a careful study of the subject and post themselves on all phases of forestry, fish and game and enact sensible game laws. The preservation and propagation benefits directly or indirectly everyone in the State, because hunting or fishing affords healthful amusement and necessary recreation to hundreds, who help to keep money in circulation by spending money from the time they begin to think about a trip until they return.

Benefit of Public.

It is generally conceded that Missouri has better bass streams and more of them than any other State in the Union, with one or two exceptions. If our people could show the anglers from other states that our streams are well stocked, thousands of dollars would flow through the State, benefiting the citizens of our smaller towns and the farmer as well.

Besides the outside money brought in, families living near the streams can save quite a bit on their food bills, while having the pleasure of taking fish in a sportsmanlike manner.

If the constituents of any Legislator want a clause in the game bill or an amendment attached allowing the use of gig or spear, this member should be big enough and well enough posted to show his friends where they are wrong.

Joseph Schuster announces that he has some fifteen applications for membership in the St. Louis Fly and Bait Casting Club, and that within the next two or three weeks the clubhouse will be located near the old boat house.

There were a great many disappointed fishermen who took advantage of the two holidays, for neithcrappie or bass were striking to any extent.

Where to Go.

During the coming week we believe that a trip to Huzzah Creek in Crawford County is a good bet. Take LeMay Ferry road to Potosi, then a straight shoot west to McGinness' place, where you will find good quarters. From this point it is not far from the Courtois, so that you will be able to fish both streams.

CRUSADER GAINS FIVE-LENGTH VICTORY IN SUBURBAN HANDICA

AMERICAN FLAG IS SECOND IN $10,000 STAKE

Man o' War Sons Make Show of Field—Time for Mile and a Quarter Is 2:03—Sarazen Scratched

By G. F. T. Ryall,
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Crusader and American Flag, two sons of Man o' War, ran one-two in the fortieth renewal of the Suburban Handicap, at one mile and a quarter at Belmont Park this afternoon. Thus the bad luck that seems to have followed the fortunes of the Glen Riddle Stable, ever since it changed trainers, turned.

The Suburban was just a gallop for Crusader. He went into the lead half way around the stretch turn and was only breezing five lengths in front of his stablemate all through the stretch. American Flag, after closing a world of ground—on the outside of the field at that—held King Solomon's Seal safe by a length. Macaw was fourth, with the others strung out down the course.

The time for the mile and a quarter was 2:03, fast considering the going. The purse, worth $13,150, was the first stake the Glen Riddle Stable has won this season.

Macaw First in Front.

Mars Cassidy sent the nine runners away quickly and in good order. Macaw went right to the front at the break, with Chilhowee, Crusader and Joy Smoke in close attendance and American Flag last. Spot Cash having refused to break with his company.

At the end of the first quarter Chilhowee was finding the pace too hot and Crusader moved up to second place as he approached the first turn. Leaving the back stretch, Crusader moved so smoothly, that everything behind him, with the exception of American Flag, who seemed to be jumping up and down in one place.

The 3-year-olds of Man 'O War went to the front half way around the turn and the race was over right there. From then on the interest of the crowd was centered not in whether the stable would run one-two, but whether American Flag would be sent on to win. King Solomon's Seal, always a strong finisher, closed from far back to beat the tired Macaw for third money, but never threatened the leaders.

The fractional time by quarters was: :23 4-5; :47, 1:11 4-5, 1:37 3-5, 2:03.

Nedana Gains Victory.

Nedana and Edith Cavell ran a sparkling race in the fifth event at one mile, the Rancocas Stable filly, which was receiving nine pounds according to the scale, getting the jump at the start and winning by three parts of a length. Ragweed was third.

Never in its long history has there been a colder day for the Suburban, and the 20,000 or so game ones shivered in the stands, though men and women were muffled in coats as though for a football game.

Sarazen was scratched early. He has been sent out in the entries over night to carry 128 pounds, which did not include his penalty for winning the Metropolitan after the weights for the Suburban had been announced. Under the lax system, which is in vogue that five pounds allowance had not been included when the entry was made, so when Hirsch found that his horse would have to carry 133 pounds he indignantly scratched. Sunspero and Cherry Pie also were withdrawn.

A. A. KAISER TOPS PURSE WINNERS AT FAIRMOUNT FOR WEEK WITH $7470

A. A. Kaiser heads the list of owners in the matter of purse winnings for the first week of the Fairmount Jockey Club meeting. His Captain Hal won $1470 in capturing the Collinsville Handicap opening day.

The Harned Brothers are next with $4220.

Other owners whose winnings aggregate $500 or more for the week include:

Brown Shasta Stable, $1000; Mrs. L. M. Holmes, $1024; Polk Laffoon, $1800; Thomas C. McDowell, $1200; Nugent Bros., $1000; J. Limbird, $1024; Pueblo Stable, $1916; H. E. Richard, $1400; Allie W. San Carlos	108	6	8	7½	8ns	8½	8ns	Jones	32.90
Ali Baba	107	4	6	9	9	9	9	Froggatte	29.05

Glister raced as if much the best, showed most speed for entire trip and was well in hand at the end. Chief Uncas took a bad swerve in last furlong but continued gamely when straightened and finished strong. Lathrop began slowly and had to race wide, but finished with determination. Pricemaker raced prominently for half mile before tiring. Ali Baba was far back for entire trip.

$2 certificates earned: Glister, $2.60; $2.60; $2.60; Chief Uncas, $8.40, $6.70; Lathrop, $3.60.

SECOND RACE, $1100 added, "The Monroe," allowances, 2-year-old colts and geldings, five furlongs. Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post 2:33; off at 2:35. Winner, Brown Shasta Stock Farm's br g 2 Bistour-Aunt Elsie. Trainer, W. A. Carter. Value to winners—$800, $200, $100. Time—:23 3-5, :47 3-5, 1:04 1-5.

HORSE.	WT.	PP.	ST.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockey.	Betting.

Foretold	108	3	7	7	7	7	7	Martinez	20.60

Shasta Bullet, hard urged and kept in prominent position from the start, moved up with a rush in the stretch and, holding on gamely scored a lucky victory. Miles Prior was ridden hard and taken back repeatedly, would have won with a better ride. Prevail showed early speed but tired fast in last furlong. Reed raced well. Cloud Idolizer had no mishaps. Foretold showed half form.

$2 certificates earned: Shasta Bullet, $9.40, $4.30, $2.60. Miles Prior $5.70, $2.70, Prevail, $2.40.

Geo. Groom, well handled and racing in his best form, moved into lead soon after start and, saving much ground for entire trip, was well in hand to win with ease in reserve. Long Point raced prominently from the start, but began tiring in last furlong and just lasted for second place. Beautiful Addie came with a rush all during stretch and finished stoutly. Bradley's Toney broke well, but was ridden out the entire trip and gained in last sixteenth. Happy Bob began tiring after reaching the stretch. Special was outclassed.

$2 certificates earned: George Groom $8, $3.10, $2.40; Long Point, $3.20, $2.70; Beautiful Addie, $3.90.

FOURTH RACE, $1100 added, 3-year-olds and up, claiming, one mile and one-sixteenth. Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post at 3:30; off at 3:31. Winner, H. Paula Shay broke well and hard hustled, moved into lead at once, showed good speed entire mile, where she tired slightly, but held Eight Sixty safe. Latter, under improved handling raced well, and with better racing luck would have won. Mike McLuke saved much ground the entire trip and outstayed Jubal Early. Latter closed with an improving rush after beginning. Gatewood began strong in stretch, improved and finished well. Gatewood began tiring in stretch. Edward Gray quit badly in last furlong.

$2 certificates earned: Paula Shay $4.10, $3.60, $2.80; Eight Sixty, $7.20 $4.20; Mike McLuke, $8.70.

Capt. Hall, hard held for the entire trip, moved into a long lead at once and won in runaway style, being eased in last 70 yards. Fire Under raced prominently for entire trip and held on gamely during stretch drive. Beau Butler was far back for first three quarters, but came steadily during stretch and outstayed Golden Mac. Latter raced well for the first mile but tired thereafter. Others were done before going half mile.

$2 certificates earned: Capt. Hall $2.40, $2.60, $2.20; Fire Under $3.70, $2.80; Beau Butler $2.80.

SEVENTH RACE—$1000, added, 3-year-olds and up, one mile and three-sixteenths. Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post 5:00. At post 1 min. Winner, J. N. Driftwood Blaze	90	7	4	2ns	2½	7ns	8	8	Philpot	20.50

Super King moved up fast after going three-quarters, and though losing ground racing wide, wore down Reap in last furlong. Reap, racing in improved form, showed much speed for entire trip and held on well, but was not good enough for winner. Bucko showed a good effort and was going gamely at the end. Firth of Tay was far out of it to last quarter, where she closed a big gap. Rambo broke badly and seemed to sulk. Gray Gables tired badly. Driftwood Blaze quit.

Two-dollar certificates earned: Super King, $12.40, $5.40, $4.20; Reap, $5.10, $3.80; Bucko, $8.90.

Broomster well ridden saved ground all the way and disposed of leaders in stretch to win going away. The Janitor was in close quarters in early stages and had to make a wide turn into the stretch but finished full of run. Pitchfork showed a good effort in racemaking but tired in stretch. The Runt was well up until last eighth, when he tired. Others were always outrun.

$2 mutuels paid: Broomster $5, $3.40, $3. The Janitor $4.20, $3.40. Pitchfork, $6.20.

SECOND RACE—$1400, 2-year-olds, maidens, five furlongs—Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post at 2:40; off at 2:42. Winner, H. G. Sidwell's b c 2 Foreground—Della Mack. Trainer owner. Value to winners $1100, $200 $100. Time, :24, :48, 1:01 3-5.

Barrister	100	7	8	8	7	7	7	7	C. Sanchez	27.10

Phidias was rushed to the front at first turn, led under restraint to just beyond far turn, where his rider was forced to the whip, and he stood a hard drive gamely through stretch. Finnster raced wide at last two turns, but finished courageously. Lady Myra closed a good gap in final quarter. Eager tired in final drive after forcing pace greater part of trip.

Mutuels paid ($2): Phidias, $5.20, $3.20, $2.60; Finnister, $4, $3.80; Lady Myra, $8.80.

FOURTH RACE—$1400, claiming, 3-year-olds and up, six furlongs: Start good, won easily, place driving. Went to post 3:55; off at 3:56. Winner, J. C. Pitts' ch. g. 6 Ultimus-Crazy Quilt. Trainer L. V. Bale. Value to winners, $1100, $200, $100. Time, :23, 46 4-5, 1:12 3-5.

Sandy Hatch energetically ridden throughout, held his field safe at all stages and won in easy style. Jack Bauer was under the whip last quarter and closed gamely. Banter was forced to race wide practically all of the way and this cost him second place. Pani Roma showed good early speed, but tired fast in stretch. None of the others were ever serious contenders.

$2 mutuels paid: Sandy Hatch, $9.40, $4, $3; Jack Bauer, $5.60, $3.60; Banter, $3.20.

FIFTH RACE—The Latonia Derby, 3-year-olds, $25,000 added, one and one-half miles: Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:36. Winner, Idle Hour Farm's ch. c. 3, by Under Fire-Blushing Beauty. Trainer, owner. Hurley. Value to winners, $24,500, $5000, $1500, $750. Bazenbaggage raced under stout restraint first three quarters of a mile, went around his field with a rush on outside, but was hard ridden through final quarter to stand off Boot to Boot. Boot to Boot raced Recollection into submission and made a game effort to overhaul his stable mate in stretch. Rhinock was slow to get on his stride, but finished fast on the outside. Blondin showed some early speed, but tired badly. Recollection set the early pace under steerage, but faltered badly when the real running began. Navigator was outpaced all the way.

$2 mutuels paid—Bazenbaggage (entry) $3.20, $2.60, $2.20; Boot to Boot (entry) $2.60, $2.20. Rhinock $3.40.

Little Visitor raced wide most of the way, but turning into stretch was enabled to slip through on the inside and, under a vigorous ride got up to beat Arcady in the last few strides. Arcady displayed high speed from the start, shook off Senator Norris, but swung a bit too wide into stretch, allowing Little Visitor to come through. Sun Altos finished fast on the extreme outside. Senator Norris hung close to Arcady most of way, but weakened in stretch.

$2 mutuels paid: Little Visitor, $7.80, $3.80, $2.60; Arcady, $4.20, $3.00; Sun Altos, $3.80.

Mom's Boy was saved off the early pace, moved up with a rush turning for home, disposed of Dandy Brush and shook off but had to stand a hard drive to wand off Cloister. Cloister was slightly bothered when he made his move and had to race wide, but finished with a great burst of speed. Balboa was gaining at end after several checks. Bird raced in final stretch. Eminent tired.

$2 mutuels paid: Mom's Boy, $7.20, $3.20, $2.60; Cloister, $2.80, $2.40; Balboa, $5.40.

Bardac	106	5	7	7	7	7	7	7	Dwire	20-1

Peddler, never far off early pace, came around tiring leaders in stretch to win driving. Washington was just up forcing pace and tired under weight in final furlong. Rizzi, rated early, had to come wide turning for home. Olympic dropped back suddenly going to far turn, but cut corner turning for home and finished well under pressure. Shady Sadie had plenty of speed, but bore out and sulked in stretch drive. Peddler place 2 to 1 show even; Washington place even show 1 to 2; Rizzi, show 3 to 5.

SECOND RACE—$2500, Steeplechase Handicap, 4-year-olds and up, about two miles—Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post at 3:09; off at 3:10 Winner, b g ½, by Seahorse II—Belle of Bryn Mawr. Trainer G. B. Tompkins Value, $2250 $800, $300. Time, 3:47 3-5.

STOPPED BY HURLING OF PITCHER ROTH

Sunlights Advance to First Place and Losers Drop to Tie for Second; Tower Camp Runs String to 6 Straight in Commercial.

Royal Arcanum was dislodged from first place in the Manufacturers' League yesterday by the Sunlights on the Triple A grounds in Forest Park. The score was 11 to 3, and the defeat was the second straight for the losers, who drop to a tie for second with Frisco.

Sunlight takes first place with its victory. Rath hurling for Sunlight was largely responsible for the victory. He allowed the losers only five hits.

Sinclair, pitcher for the Motor nine in the Wagner Electric League, turned in a two-hit game in defeating the Office club, 7 to 2.

Two games were forfeited in the Craftsmen's League, Cache forfeiting to Polar Star and Beacon to Euclid.

Tower Camp continued its unbroken march in the Commercial League, running its string to six straight in beating the Gold Dust nine, 11 to 6.

St. James in the Evangelical Intermediate circuit won another, aided by the pitching of Ralph Wunderle, who is one of the stars of the junior muny leagues. The score was 7 to 0. Wunderle allowed only 2 hits.

One of today's best municipal games should be the Schenberg-South Side contest in the South Side League at 3:30 in Carondelet Park. The Schenbergs, last year's titleholders, have not lost this season and the South Sides have one of the strongest combinations in the league.

Laclede Council will meet De Andrels in the feature go of the Knights of Columbus League on Forest Park Grounds No. 6 at 3 o'clock. Eddie Shea's hurling for Laclede will be a sarong element affecting the final outcome.

The Mrazeks will try to stop the leading Southwest Business Men in the South Side League on the Cleveland High School diamond at 1:30 o'clock, following a contest between the Gravois Robins and the Lafayettes which opens at 1:30 o'clock.

HORNSBY'S A'S

Which is the better to use, an extremely heavy bat or an extremely light one.—B. M. O.

Neither. Get a bat that balances in the hands and can be used handily.

What would be the ruling on a pitched ball that hits the ground before it gets to the plate and then hits the batter?—A PLAYER.

It is a ball if the batter did not swing at it. It is also a dead ball.

Runner is on second base with pitcher on plate. The latter starts to wind up. He turns away and also turns toward second but does not throw. Umpire calls a balk and when the rule is shown to him that a similar play at third is not a balk he says there is a difference at second base. Is he right?—S. E. K.

Umpire is wrong. The third and second base plays are identical.

FAMOUS BATTLES OF THE RING — By T. A. "Tad" Dorgan

Cross Kids Packy; Then Takes Mauling

McFarland, Enraged by Jibes of Comic Opera Star, Says It With Fists When Battle Is On.

NO. X.

Packy McFarland of Chicago shunted Leach Cross, the local comic opera star, from the first row near the footlights way back into the spear carriers' class at the Fairmount Club on Oct. 21, 1908.

Yes, Cross went the limit, but he got a tanning he never forgot.

When the pair weighed in the afternoon of that fight, Cross kidded Packey to such an extent that the latter's goat meandered up Broadway some place, and the Chicago gent soaked the Ghetto champ on the jaw. It looked as if Cross had the battle half won, with McFarland shaking like a leaf with anger before the go, and quite a few quiet tips that Packey was a goner.

Even in the ring before the go, Cross started to kid again, and Packey, afraid to lose his temper, again walked to his corner with his teeth set like a vise. He stood in his corner waiting for the bell. He was afraid to look at Cross, he was so mad, and the latter smiled as he thought of the work his kidding had done.

That was the last smile Cross had during the fight.

McFarland jumped out at the sound of the gong and simply smothered the local fighter.

One-Sided From Start.

We could see from the very first minute that Cross was away off on something. He led right hands at Packey's body that didn't come within a foot of their mark, and the regularity with which his head jerked backwards was alarming. You could hardly see what was the cause of it, but just as sure as the second hand moved, Leach's head would go back and then he'd cover.

For two rounds it was as one-sided as a woman's argument.

The Cross admirers waited every moment expecting their man to come through, but minute by minute he was losing and not getting a bit better. In the third Packey went after him again and rushed Leach to a corner. The latter danced away and then slipped in Mac's corner. He got up and danced along the ropes to the other side, where he met Packey coming in and started to trade.

Like a flash Packey whipped over a right and down went Cross to the floor. He was hurt and took the full count before getting up. It looked as if he was through as Packey went after him like a tiger. He batted Cross from one side of the ring to the other, and the latter, with a cut eye and puffed lip, covered and stalled the best he could. The very look in his eye almost told us that the thing was over. He weathered that tough round amid cheers and came up for the next, but he wasn't the most delighted person in the place. It was the same old story again and the Cross crowd couldn't understand it. Here was Cross with a knockout punch, and couldn't even get it over on the boy with the shaved dome.

Bout Seemed to Be Over.

Bang! Bang! went Packey's mitts again, and he whaled Cross all along the ropes. Cross led with wild lefts and rights, but they always went over Packey's head and he was jabbed off his feet time and again. He was never allowed to set, and he was about as accurate in that fix as a sharpshooter would be bumping the bumps.

In a mix McFarland threw Cross to the floor, and when the latter arose Packey rushed him through the ropes into the press stand. Cross seemed like a child in the hands of the Chicago lad, and a bunch near the door started to put on their coats, it was such a lopsided affair.

The surprise was yet to come. We heaved a sigh as the gong rang for the fifth round and waited for Packy to put his man away for good. The first crack out of the box Cross uppercut McFarland on the chin and sent him reeling to the ropes. Packey, with head down, reached out to clinch and Cross chopped both left and right to the jaw like rifle balls. Blood spattered in all directions and there was a gash under McFarland's right eye. His face was covered with blood, his lip was cut and he was really a sight.

A Real Surprise.

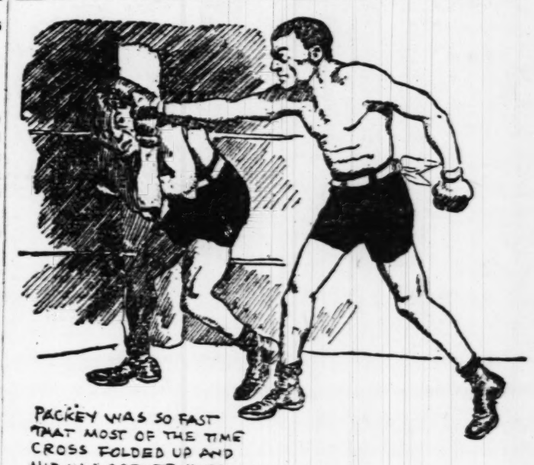
It was so sudden that half the people in the house thought it was a dream. Harry Gilmore was yelling at Packy to clinch, and the rest of the seconds were howling like Indians. Over in Cross' corner they were also howling and the noise the crowd made was more like a salute of guns than anything else you ever heard.

Cross, seeing a possible victory here for him, was crazy with anxiety. He belted Packey again on the jaw, and there was a long clinch, which was broken by the referee. Cross belted his man from one side of the ring to the other, and McFarland made feeble efforts to trade, but he was as weak as a cat. The blood on his face made the sight all the more picturesque for the crowd, and they tried to climb into the ring to help Cross finish the job. Packy revived a bit before the finish and mixed it up until the bell.

His seconds rushed out and grabbed the reeling lad, packing him to his corner. His legs were rubbed, his face washed, and he was sent out for the sixth to get back what he had lost.

Had Cross fought with the same desperation in the last round that he did in the fifth he would have had a gambler's chance, but the Irish in McFarland said "get at him," and he did. He tore after the Ghetto lad exactly as he had at the start, and instead of mixing and slugging, Cross went back to his old style of dancing and covering. Packey won by a mile.

McFarland Kept Cross' Head Back



STARS WIN SERIES OPENING GAME FROM INDIANAPOLIS, 12—7

The St. Louis Stars in the Negro National Baseball League defeated the Indianapolis A. B. C's at the Stars' park yesterday by a score of 12 to 7. The Stars staged a rally in the second inning to collect eight runs.

Miller, who pitched for the visitors was knocked out of the box in the early innings, but was relieved by Riles who was in turn relieved by McCall, the latter holding the locals in check. Creacy collected two homers while his team-mate, Murray, made one.

Martin was the leading hitter for the A. B. C's. The fielding feature of the game was made when Bell raced to deep center to catch a fly off Martin's bat. A sensational play was made when Bobo leaped up and intercepted Creacy's throw to first the same time tagging first to prevent the runner from reaching first safely.

The second game of the series will be played this afternoon.

MICHIGAN U. STADIUM, FOR FOTBALL GAMES ONLY, TO SEAT 70,000

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 5.—Plans for a stadium to seat 70,000 and to be used exclusively for football, were announced today for the University of Michigan by Prof. Ralph Aigler of the committee in control of athletics.

The new stadium, construction of which will begin within a month, will be ready for the 1927 season. It will be near Ferry Field, the present athletic field, and will be so arranged that entrance from three and probably four sides will be from the top, with 70 rows of seats all around.

Approximately 35 acres have been acquired for the stadium site.

TEX RICKARD'S CLASH WITH ATHLETIC BOARD POSTPONED TEN DAYS

NEW YORK, June 5.—Tex Rickard and James A. Farley, chairman of the State Athletic Commission, probably will not come to grips over the Dempsey-Tunney-Wills situation for another 10 days. This was indicated today by Rickard's statement that he likely would not go before the commission next Tuesday as he originally planned, to discuss his plans for a heavyweight title bout in September.

Rickard declined to say whether this shift in his schedule was prompted by Farley's ultimatum to the promoter yesterday, in which the commissioner threatened Rickard with disbarment for continuing arrangements to match Dempsey with Tunney instead of Wills.

The promoter intimated, however, that he is concentrating his efforts preparing for the Berlenbach-Stribling light heavyweight championship battle next Thursday at the Yankee Stadium, preferring to shelve his Dempsey affair until the former is over. Rickard expects the light heavyweight title to draw a "gate" of close to $250,000.

Industries Will Clash on Track

Y. M. C. A. Promoting Event at Francis Field for Saturday, June 19.

An industrial track and field meet, the first of its kind in St. Louis, is announced for Saturday, June 19, at Francis Field of Washington University, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. City-Wide Industrial Athletic Association. The meet will be open to employes of any industries who have been continuously employed by that organization for a period of at least 14 days prior to the meet and who are working at least 30 hours a week.

Six events will be on the schedule: The 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, half-mile relay, running high jump, running broad jump, and the shot-put. Entries are limited to four from each industry in each event, and one team in the relay. Entrants will not be allowed to compete in more than three events other than the relay. A loving cup will be awarded to the industry which wins the meet, and gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded to the winners in each event. Entry blanks have been placed in the hands of officials at various plants, or they may be obtained from the office of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Commission, 1973 Railway Exchange Building. All entries must be in the hands of the committee in charge of the meet not later than June 17.

HARTZ LEADS AUTO RACERS FOR SEASON; DE PAOLO IS SECOND

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Harry Hartz is leading American automobile races for the 1926 American Automobile Association championship, the association announced today after checking points made in the Indianapolis race on Memorial Day.

Hartz has 1740 points against Peter De Paolo's 1250. Frank Lockhart, winner of the Indianapolis race, has 800 and is in third place. Other scores are Bennie Hill 552, Earl Devore 535, Bob McDonogh 347, and Fred Comer 232.

Lockhart's official time for the 400 miles of his winning race was given as 4:10:17.95, and his average speed 95.885 miles an hour.

Grape Fruit Creates More Argument Than the World's Court

I have been all over Florida and California both lately. And all I hear outside of "Binders" and "Escrow" is arguments over who raises the best Grape Fruit. You would think it was as important as Wheat or Corn. They will be having a war just over Grape Fruit. It's supplanted Prohibition as a National Topic.

You would think the success or failure of civilization was hanging by its heels on a Grape Fruit bush. How Abraham Lincoln ever reached his tremendous height without Grape Fruit is a mystery. All he had was Prunes. They are a fruit, not a spray. You take them internally, you don't wipe them off you. Prunes and Apples are a necessity, not a Public shower. They are staples, not just the means of an intersectional argument. Burbank made Grape Fruit just as a joke anyway, same as he did Alligator Pears; then somebody took them serious. To get a Grape Fruit he crossed six Lemons, two Oranges, and a Squirt Gun, and made a fad instead of a food. Grape Fruit started out to be a Pumpkin, couldn't make the grade, got sore about it, and has been sour on the world ever since.

The Mystery of a Stone Highway 10 Centuries Old

Explorer in Yucatan Finds Causeway Fifty Miles Long in Building of Which Million Tons of Stone Was Used—But by Whom, and Why?

In a recent expedition to Yucatan, Dr. T. W. F. Gann, Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, made a number of remarkable discoveries—the ruins of an ancient city, a vast underground cavern, and, more mystifying than any, a marvelous highway, 50 miles long. Concerning this Dr. Gann writes:

By T. W. F. GANN, F. R. G. S.

THIS causeway must have been built long before the Toltec invasion and it represents an almost incredible expenditure of time and labor involving the quarrying, labor, transport, facing and building up of well over a million tons of stone.

It is unique. So far as I know, there is nothing like it in the whole of the Maya Empire, for, although cement covered roads are not unknown around many of the ruined cities, no such elevated causeway as this has been found elsewhere.

Try to realize the magnitude of this work. Roman roads, proverbial for their purpose, have almost disappeared, and in these days can only be traced with difficulty. Our latest roads, if left to such mild forces of nature as prevail in the Northern European districts, probably would disappear within 500 years. Yet this great Maya road has withstood the passage of centuries in a country of heavy rainfall and, to a European, incredibly luxuriant vegetation. Still, apart from the decay of its surface, it is almost as it stood when it was built somewhere around the time of the Norman conquest of England.

Great Road Is Discovered.

We made an early start one morning, and after traveling about two leagues came upon what is really the most astonishing remains of the Maya civilization which I have yet seen. It is only fair to the guide to say that he had given us some vague description of it, but we had utterly disbelieved in the existence of such a stupendous structure. We found that we had done the guide an injustice, for suddenly we were faced with a great elevated road or causeway.

It was built of great blocks of cut stone standing high above the ground. When we dismounted and examined the structure, our wonder deepened to amazement. The road stretched on either side straight as an arrow and level as a die. Where the ground dipped, it was in places eight feet high and where the ground rose it diminished to a height of only two feet.

On examining the structure more closely, we found that the central part was filled with blocks of limestone. The top of these was covered with rubble, which, from traces we discovered at intervals, evidently had been covered with a facing of cement or stucco. This road is 32 feet wide and arched much as our modern roads are. We followed it for over 12 miles as it led directly to the ruins of which we were in search. The guide said it ran straight between Chitchen-Itza and Coba where it finished at the temples of either city. As we followed its course, we saw humerous openings into "chultunes" or underground chambers. We had not time to explore these, as we had only come out with five days' food and were anxious to explore the great ruins.

We, therefore, followed up the road passing on our way several "sartenedas" or rock basins filled with water, which were no doubt scooped out to supply the great body of laborers that must have been employed to construct this road. At one of these holes the Indian drew us some water, but as it was full of insects and inhabited by a number of immense black tadpoles, we, although consumed by thirst, decided that we must wait for a fresher supply.

On either side of this road were great quarries from which the enormous amount of stone used in its construction had evidently been taken. Within the next six miles we came across a discovery which, to me, was the most interesting discovery yet found.

Message on Monoliths.

Just by the side of this road and placed about a kilometer apart, we saw three small stelae or monoliths. They unfortunately were so weatherbeaten that it was extremely difficult to make anything of the Maya hieroglyphics with which they had originally been covered. But the tropical rains and storms had still left us something we could read.

The numerical co-efficient of the first stone undoubtedly were written 8 with a bar and 3 dots, and that on the right of it 10

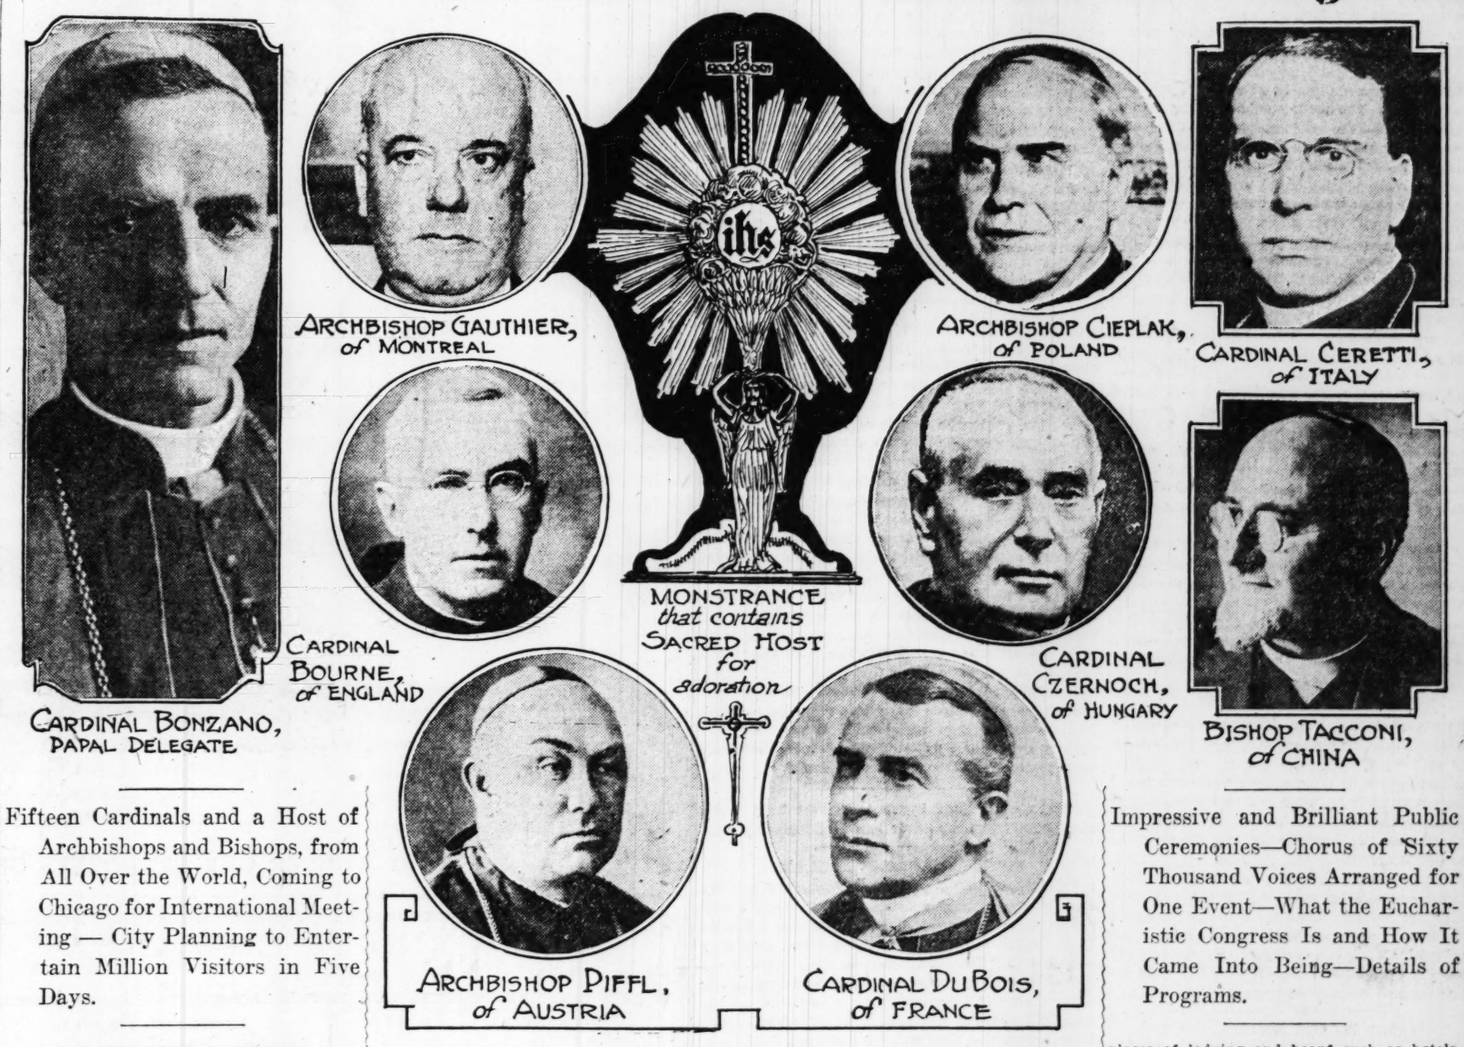
Immense Spectacle of Rare Pomp and Beauty When U. S. Has Its First Eucharistic Congress



Fifteen Cardinals and a Host of Archbishops and Bishops, from All Over the World, Coming to Chicago for International Meeting — City Planning to Entertain Million Visitors in Five Days.

By JOHN DOUGLAS GORDON.

A REMARKABLE demonstration of faith will take place in Chicago when the Twenty-eighth International Eucharistic Congress convenes there on June 20. At this gathering, which will last until June 25, Princes of the Catholic Church, Patriarchs, Archbishops, Bishops, other prelates of various ranks, priests, members of religious orders and congreations, nuns, representatives of the nobility of foreign countries and laymen of every grade and profession, numbering many thousands and drawn from the four quarters of the globe, will unite in ornate and solemn ceremonies in honor and adoration of the great central mystery of the Catholic faith—the Most Holy Sacrament of the Altar.

Some idea of the vastness of the tribute that the Catholic world will render to the Eucharist Christ may be had from the fact that 15 Cardinals, nearly one-quarter of the membership of the Sacred College, 50 Patriarchs and Archbishops, more than 500 Bishops, over 3000 priests and approximately 10,000 nuns, to say nothing of the thousands of lay pilgrims from almost every country in the world, will attend the sessions and services. At one of the principal masses 62,000 school children will sing the liturgy, at another 3800 trained church singers and 6000 nuns will render the Gregorian mass music. On still another day 30,000 voices drawn from Catholic universities, colleges, academies and educational centers will be heard in praise of the Silent Sentinel of the Tabernacle.

Thousands From Erin.

From Ireland alone will come several thousand pilgrims headed by Cardinal O'Donnell, Primate of All Ireland, and it is estimated that during the four days of the Congress more than 750,000 human beings will bow in worship before the Holy Eucharist at the masses and benedictions in the great Stadium at Soldiers' Field in Grant Park, on the lake front. Parking space in and around this vast amphitheater has been arranged for more than 80,000 automobiles.

The chief object of a Eucharistic Congress is to honor the principal sacrament of the faith, which the Catholic Church teaches is not a mere symbol, or memorial, but the actual Christ living under the sacramental veils —the accidents of bread and wine. The church holds that, when the priest pronounces the words of consecration over the bread and the wine in the mass, the substance of the bread and wine are changed by a miracle into the substance of the Body and Blood of Christ, although the taste, color, form and other accidents of which the human senses are cognizant remain unchanged; and that the Living Christ, whole and entire, is present under either species, offering Himself a victim for the living and the dead.

The mass, therefore, according to this doctrine, is a repetition, in an unbloody manner, of the sacrifice of Calvary wherein Christ offered Himself to God the Father for the sins of the world. Further, this sacrament (the consecrated bread in the form of a wafer, generally referred to as The Host) is reserved in the tabernacle on the altar for the worship of the faithful, is placed in monstrances, or ostensoriums, to be lifted up for adoration and to be used in blessing the people with the very living Christ.

Chief Act of Worship.

This sacrament is the center of worship of the Catholic Church. It—the Mass—is the only service that Catholics are bound to attend on Sundays and Holy Days of Obligation under pain of mortal sin and it is for this reason that it is the only service which is accompanied with ceremony. For all the gorgeous vestments, the lights, the incense and the other ritual of the Catholic Church are used because she holds that in this Sacrament she is entertaining, offering and worshiping the King of Kings, the God of Heaven and Earth, actually, corporally present on the altar.

So in this coming Eucharistic Congress in Chicago Cardinals and prelates of every rank, clad in vestments of cloth of gold, will celebrate solemn masses, carry in the gold and jeweled monstrances the Host in processions and make the sign of the cross over the bowed heads of thousands with the monstrance-enclosed Eucharistic God.

So huge is the stadium of Soldiers' Field that the Sanctuary alone will be 224 feet wide by 214 feet deep and the altar dome will tower 125 feet above the ground. On both sides of this Sanctuary will rise the crimson-covered thrones for the 15 Cardinals, including Cardinal Bonzano, the Papal Legate. Each Cardinal will be attended by his secretary, chaplain, deacons of honor and a guard of Papal Knights.

Some idea of the gorgeousness of the coloring of the spectacle may be had from a brief description of the vestments that will be worn by the clergy. The Cardinals enthroned will wear their crimson cappa magnas (long caps), borne by pages, and their ermine hoods; their chaplains in many instances will wear the purple of the monsignori and their deacons will wear cloth-of-gold dalmatics, on wide-sleeved tunics. The Archbishops, Bishops and mitred Abbots will wear cloth-of-gold, copes, an embroidered cloak, and mitres and will carry their bejeweled golden croziers (pastoral staff.) On the breasts of all of these will gleam their large gold pectoral crosses, set with gems. The celebrants of the masses will wear cloth-of-gold chasubles (a sleeveless mantle) and mitres, the arch-priests copes and the deacons and sub-deacons of the masses dalmatics of the same rich fabric.

Papal Chamberlains.

Next in this gorgeous array will come the purple monsignori, hundreds of them of all grades, Papal Chamberlains, domestic prelates, etc. In striking contrast to these will be the secular clergy in black cassocks and surplices of white lace, and the monks and members of religious congregations—white-habited, tonsured and sandaled Dominicans, brown Franciscans, black Jesuits, Augustinians and Benedictines and hosts of others, to say nothing of the thousands of nuns, each wearing a habit of the color and design of her order or congregation. In addition to this mass of ecclesiastical color there will be the Papal Knights and other temporal dignitaries of the Papal Court in their brilliant uniforms as well as noblemen of Europe, like Count Henri d'Yanville, who is General Secretary of the Permanent Committee of the Congress, each wearing the insignia of his rank.

This will be the scene of regal splendor that will be staged when the Papal Legate will raise the Sacred Host for the adoration of thousands of men and women, high and low, rich and poor, crowded into every available foot of space in the enormous stadium, while silver trumpets are blown, golden bells are rung and clouds of incense from gilded censers roll towarn the sky.

Cardinals in Attendance

Among the Cardinals who will attend the Congress, beside the Papal Legate, will be the four American Princes of the church, Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York; Cardinal Daugherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia; Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, and Cardinal Mundelein, Archbishop of Chicago, and Cardinal O'Donnell of Ireland, Cardinal Bourne of England, Cardinal Reig y Casanova of Spain, Cardinal Charost, Archbishop of Rennes, France; Cardinal Cerretti of Italy; Cardinal Czernoch, Primate of Hungary; Cardinal Dubois, Archbishop of Paris, and Cardinal Piffl, Archbishop of Vienna.

When Chicago was chosen for the Congress this year that city at once began plans for the accommodation of the visitors, who, it is estimated, will approach if not pass the million mark. The largest previous number of visitors ever assembled in Chicago was 250,000 on Chicago day during the World's Columbian Exposition, so that for this occasion clubs, lodging and apartment houses, Lake craft and religious institutions have been commandeered to augment the usual places of lodging and board such as hotels, Chicago's hotels will be able to accommodate 85,000. Private householders have volunteered to take care of about half this number; members of the hierarchy and visiting clergy will be guests at the rectories of more than 250 churches in the city and its suburbs, while seminaries and convents and monasteries will care for other thousands.

Many delegations of pilgrims will be housed in the Pullman cars that will bring them to the city of the Congress and Lake steamers have been chartered to be used as floating hotels, which will be moved at the docks along the lake front. Railroads have revised their schedules to provide special and turist trains and the city police force has been augmented by 2500 special policemen to aid in handling the crowds and traffic.

Nun's Hymn to Be Sung.

One of the figures at the Congress who will be conspicuous in spite of her nun's garb is Sister Mary of the Angels, instructor of English in the College of St. Francis Xavier, Chicago, whose verses were chosen in an international contest for the official hymn of the Congress. The verses of this little Sister which will be sung by the throngs at the Congress are:

I

O Christians, raise your hearts,
Oh, magnify your birth;
God of one blood has made
All those who dwell on earth.

All praise unto our Eucharistic King!
All praise unto our Eucharistic King!

II

Lord God of Hosts, behold
What Christ's Blest Prayer has done:
"My Father, may they be
As We are, Father, One."

All praise unto our Eucharistic King!
All praise unto our Eucharistic King!

III

Our lives we consecrate,
Each nation, race by race;
Oh, may we meet again
To sing before Thy Face:

All praise unto our Eucharistic King!
All praise unto our Eucharistic King!

Congress to Open June 20.

Although the Congress will not be opened formally until Sunday, June 20, the Papal Legate and most of the other Cardinals and prelates will arrive in Chicago June 17, and on that day there will be informal receptions to the ecclesiastics at Cardinal Mundelein's

Monster to His Enemies; Patriot To His Friends

Personality Sketch of Russia's Minister of State and Head of Army of Secret Police Surpassing in Power Anything the World Has Known.

By F. A. MACKENZIE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News.
STOCKHOLM, May 20.

A HUNDRED years hence students will be analyzing the character of Dzjershinsky as today they analyze the character of Robespierre. "Monster or patriot?" they will ask themselves.

A strange combination, this great communist: A man sincere, disinterested, kindly in private life, but relentless and merciless in public affairs. Dzjershinsky, the private individual, would pick a fallen child from the gutter and dandy away its tears. Dzjershinsky, Minister of State, is the creator, the director and master mind of the greatest instrument of terror the world has ever known, yesterday named the cheka, today known as the G. P. U.

Dzjershinsky is by birth a Pole. He early came to prominence as one of the active plotters against czarism. Time after time he was arrested. Time after time he escaped, until at last they took such special care and watch over him that even Dzjershinsky could not get away, and they kept him in chains till the revolution set him free.

An Organizer When a Prisoner

Even in prison this tall, blue-eyed, long-faced revolutionary obtained a reputation all his own. He was a dreamer, a man whose mind was obsessed by the vision of a new era. He was from the point of view of his jailers a difficult prisoner, quick to resent wrongs, quick to organize his fellow political prisoners, ready to take any punishment, eager to do the most unpleasant tasks to save his comrades from them.

Idealist, fanatic, visionary.

When the great revolution came in November, 1917, and Lenin ruled Petrograd, it soon became necessary to create a defensive police against counter-revolutionists. Dzjershinsky was given the task of organizing this body.

He started out with no specially harsh ideas. Many of the communists were in favor of abolishing the death penalty, and they actually issued a decree to that effect. But Lenin laughed at them. "How can you make a revolution without killing?" he asked scornfully.

For some months Dzjershinsky and his men had rather to try to stop the amateur killers than to encourage them. All the great cities were overrun by brigands, mostly starving returned soldiers. You could not drive at night for 10 minutes through the dark streets of Moscow or Petrograd without running the risk of being held up and stripped of all. Dzjershinsky's first task was to restore order. It was a long job and the only way to do it was to shoot every robber as soon as he was found. Today you can walk through the streets of any city in Russia at any hour of the day or night in safety.

Chief Instigator of Red Terror

Then came the attempt by Dora Kaplain on the life of Lenin. The anticommunists were plotting to destroy communism by assassinating individually the communist leaders. The communists returned with the red terror and the foremost organizers of the red terror were the cheka and Dzjershinsky.

The full story of how Dzjershinsky's men broke the heart of the white opposition can never be told in full. In every city they took a large house, usually an office building, for their headquarters. The rooms were often packed with men and women arrested on the whim of some minor official and herded together until death by disease or bullet or semistarvation cleared them out. People were arrested by the score of thousands and forgotten, left for months, unknown, untried, almost unfed.

Dzjershinsky, the idealist, Dzjershinsky the fanatic, sat in his room in the old insurance building in Moscow, Loubianka 2, calmly directing affairs. Loubianka 2 itself was full of prisoners enduring untold misery. To Dzjershinsky they were not individuals, they were pawns in the game. The whole nation was starving, why should not the old aristocratic classes who once had plenty starve, too?

The elaborate secret police system developed by Dzjershinsky soon pervaded all Russia. It was said that there were only two men in the communist state who were not watched by the cheka—Lenin and Trotzky. Later on Trotzky was watched, too.

The cheka arrested men, tried them in secret, condemned them and killed them at

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

"The Presumption of Innocence."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE theory of jurisprudence designated by the above title must be a matter of grave concern to be given the treatment it received by an editorial in the Globe-Democrat of Friday, commending as "excellent" the suggestion of Judge Henning that it be eliminated, and yet, if the logic of that editorial is sound, there is no need of all this furor about this so called "bugaboo," as the editorial charges that juries pay no attention to it any way. That is a flagrant insult to courts, jurors, the law and humanity. It is putting the stamp of approval upon jurors who disregard the instructions of the court and the law and the plain dictates of justice. The presumption of innocence is as broad and deep as any concept of justice, and is the foundation of English and American jurisprudence, and to abrogate it would send us back to the "Code Napoleon," which presumes every person guilty who has the misfortune of being accused, and compels that person, no matter how situated, whether among enemies, strangers, without funds, social standing or means of communication, to lay in prison, and await trial, and then shoulder the burden of proving his or her innocence before release is possible, be that person ever so innocent. Such a theory is un-American and inhuman.

Abrogate the doctrine of presumption of innocence and our prisons will be overflowing with people convicted upon perjured and "framed" testimony. Framing Bill Smith to clear John Jones is the favorite device of the underworld, and is breeding more disrespect for courts and law than any other one factor today.

Respectable assistance by citizens, and a few more "he-man" prosecutors and executive officers instead of so many "good fellows," politicians, and vacillating victims of "fronting" will help solve the crime problem without abolishing any of our cherished landmarks—achieved as they were by untold sacrifice and the blood of our fathers. Many persons are accused, and arrested without "probable cause" as shown by the great number of cases dismissed or nolle-prossed for lack of evidence, and yet our wiseacres of these modern Ku Klux Klan days would convict all of them by a "presumption of guilt."

A defendant, though he is charged with a crime, has a right to a fair trial and to require the Government, which seeks to forfeit his citizenship, and incarcerate or fine him, to produce proof of guilt, and that burden should be assumed by the prosecution.

The object of every criminal prosecution is not as the editorial says: "The purpose of a criminal trial is to prove guilt," but is to see that justice is done. Simple, even handed justice never did and never will harm anybody.

Not Too Many Sirens.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT is well that the Board of Aldermen has decided to limit the use of sirens to the Fire Department. It is just as necessary for the police to make quick time in rushing to the location of an emergency call as for the Fire Department to get to fires quickly. But the public is well used to the loud jangling of bells in either case. It is not as trying to most people's nerves as the loud, wailing siren. Too many sirens, also, tend to confuse the listener, who would not be able to distinguish between these noise-makers on fire apparatus and other vehicles using them.

As the only motive in equipping vehicles with horns, bells or other warning instruments is to clear the street when speed is necessary, the use of the sirens is experimental. We may find them too trying. And certainly too many would be a public nuisance. HOOT MON!

Farmers' Co-operative Enterprises.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NATURALLY, any co-operatively owned enterprise which is controlled by the farmers themselves has their interest more at heart than a privately owned business institution. Co-operative institutions are democratically controlled by the directors of the association, and if there be any juggling of accounts or gambling in the commodities sold through the association, the directors can immediately discharge the manager. In other words a co-operative enterprise stands for service.

The main objective of all privately owned business enterprises is to make money for themselves and not to save money for the other fellow. The purpose of private business is just the opposite from the purpose of co-operative enterprise. Private business has for its motto "profit." In this contest between privately owned business and the farmers' owned enterprise, we have profit vs. service. In which side do you believe are the business interests not only of the farmers but of the community as a whole, rural people? The farmers' elevators and shipping associations are the first step towards a great national system of the marketing and the only redemption of the farmer. I believe it is as necessary for the welfare of the farmer for him to own the machine through which he markets his grain as it is for him to own his own land and implements which he works with.

THE CRIMINAL'S RECORD.

"I would lend a man a million dollars without a penny of security," said the elder J. Pierpont Morgan at a formal inquiry. The financier went on to explain that the best security which a man seeking a loan could bring into a bank was character. The statement was featured in the headlines of all the papers. It provoked wide discussion. Character, of course, in this definition meant something more than copybook honesty. It naturally included capacity. The vital element, however, was dependability.

The value of character is not restricted to economic affairs. It expresses itself in almost every relation and endeavor. At no other time is its worth so decisive, perhaps, as on that day in court to which we are entitled. When a man is charged with crime and circumstantial evidence is strong against him his character may then be a priceless asset. Court procedure recognizes this fact.

What of the defendant without character—with a record that is a liability instead of an asset; with a career which smashes the presumption of innocence and raises the presumption of guilt?

This is a point of prime importance in the changes of criminal procedure recommended by Chancellor Hadley of Washington University in his report for the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice. Where a defendant avails himself of the privilege of not testifying, Mr. Hadley proposes that the State shall have the right to show that person's criminal record. Under present procedure the State cannot now introduce that evidence. The consequence is that the Court and the jury are both officially ignorant of the character of the man on trial, and in many instances are actually ignorant of it.

There can be no question that this immunity—for that is what it amounts to—has become the shield and buckler for the professional criminal and a formidable obstruction to the administration of justice. And since the crime wave is a grave problem in practically every state, and since there would be no crime problem, as the term is used, except for the professional criminal, the necessity of removing the safeguards behind which he operates and enabling the State to deal competently with him does not have to be labored.

Common sense approves this proposal of Mr. Hadley's. Public safety urges it. Justice indorses it. The law itself supports this theory in the provisions it makes for the punishment of the habitual criminal. But the habitual criminal law is, and will continue to be, a dead letter so long as a defendant's criminal record may be concealed by his refusal to testify.

THE FLIGHT OF LAME DUCKS.

A kind-hearted New York editor has managed to find a few words of comfort and hope for Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, who was recently defeated for the nomination by Congressman Vare. He points to Frank Kellogg, who, when beaten for Senator in Minnesota, presently found himself in George Harvey's ambassadorial knickers at the Court of St. James, and is now Secretary of State.

It might also be added, in the words of Henry Ford, that "what one man has done another can do." Just the same, Mr. Kellogg holds the altitude record for lame ducks, and while we would add no drop of gall to Mr. Pepper's bitter cup, we believe Mr. Kellogg will swoop up the impalpable reaches of history as the nimblest maimed mallard of them all.

NOT ENTIRELY HOPELESS.

After 30 years as director of the New York Zoological Park, Dr. William T. Hornaday has retired, still warning civilization against the extermination of wild life. Mammals, birds and fish are threatened with this destruction, he says, unless protective measures are taken. That is a warning he has often repeated. Perhaps he was born before vast flocks of passenger pigeons had vanished from our woods. He was near man's estate when the bison vanished from the plains. He has seen the prong-horn antelope, once crowding the prairies, dwindle to a few scattered bands. The game hogs were worst within his time. Motors have brought lake and marsh, field and woodland nearer to city hunters. For one who loves the fauna of the wild, there is basis for a warning.

But Dr. Hornaday is ever the crusader, with the extreme views that go with enthusiasm. Actually, many effective protective measures have been taken. International treaties, to safeguard the migratory birds; refuges and feeding grounds for these wanderers; State, Federal and private game preserves; National forests, better game laws and a broader sense of sportsmanship have helped to offset the increased number of hunters, deadlier guns and lack of cover. Moreover, men have learned that propagation can restore depleted numbers. Fish hatcheries rapidly are developing to a point assuring game fish enough for all our waters, and the fight against pollution of streams gains strength. Game farms also augment the natural increase of furred and feathered game. We know more of the worth of fish and game for food and recreation as the scarcity appears. That means we shall guard it better.

A leader in this fight for conservation has been Dr. Hornaday. Not always reasonable in his demands, his influence cannot be questioned. In his old age he should cease to worry, and feel satisfied that only through his efforts so much has been accomplished.

UNDERWOOD AND DEUCES WILD.

In the evening of his long and notable political career, Senator Underwood has come out flatfooted against deuces wild in poker. Friday in an impassioned defense of the game of poker as it was played in sterner and less degenerate days, he deplored and viewed with alarm such modern innovations as wild deuces, spit-in-the-ocean, Omaha and seven-card pique.

When Senator Underwood's career is analyzed, there will be many theories to explain his failure to reach the White House. But will there be any more plausible one than that the elderly statesman from Alabama waited, until the end of his career to espouse a really popular cause? Even now, though it comes too late, his stand against the corruption of poker arouses heated admiration for the Senator in the breasts of all respectable and right-thinking poker players. Down with dealer's choice and up with Underwood!

Premier Briand has been given another vote of confidence. It may not mean much, but, just the same, we're willing to throw our hat in the air and shout Vive.

MR. COOLIDGE OVERDOES IT.

When Mr. Coolidge was Governor of Massachusetts he was asked by Newton Turgeon, a former classmate, to speak at the annual dinner of the Vermont Association in Buffalo. "Dear Newt," Mr. Coolidge replied, "Won't go. Don't care to make speeches. Nobody cares to hear them. Yours, Cal." This note was exhumed in August, 1923, to show what a terse, laconic person the President was supposed to be.

Since Mr. Coolidge has been in the White House, however, he has changed his mind completely about speeches. He has become an inveterate speech maker. An almost continuous ribbon of words streams from the presidential ticker. He speaks at monument unveilings, on nearly all patriotic days, before Boy Scouts, farm congresses, veterans' conventions, and on a wide variety of other occasions.

In January of this year he declined 20 out-of-town invitations, but he has continued to make speeches in Washington, and on May 16 was lured to William and Mary College at Williamsburg.

We cite these facts to explain in part why the President is looking so haggard these days. It is hard work to make speeches, and the President has overdone it. He has also overdone the hand-shaking business. For months he shook the hands of hundreds who gathered at the White House each day.

The physical drain of the President's official duties is terrific. But when to this is added the job of a political campaigner—for this is what excessive speech-making and hand-shaking amounts to—it is no wonder that Mr. Coolidge is badly in need of a holiday.

SAFETY AT GRADE CROSSINGS.

Again, and willingly, the Post-Dispatch gives its support to the public appeals of the railway managers now being printed, to the drivers of automobiles, to try and lessen the number of accidents at grade crossings. The railway managers are spending money to call attention to the fact that, due to carelessness on the part of motor-car drivers, "Grade-crossing accidents in 1925 resulted in the loss of 2206 lives and the injury of 6555 persons, an average of one person killed or injured every hour of the year."

There are nearly a quarter of a million railway highway crossings—almost one for every mile of line. As the railways point out, safety or danger does not always lie in the crossing, but in the person using it. Many crossings, however, are a menace to the traveling public. The only ultimate remedy is to eliminate all grade crossings. The most tragic feature of crossing accidents is that the automobile driver's recklessness too often involves the lives and limbs of others besides himself, in many cases whole families having been wiped out. Every member of a party going for a drive should use every effort to prevent accidents through carelessness.

Of course, Senator Borah is against light wines and beer. That chap never has been FOR anything.

PAINTING THE DRAGON'S TAIL RED.

Two old giants, Russia and China, are nodding their thick and clumsy heads together above a dangerous brew. A series of articles in the magazine "Asia" suggests calamitous consequences of such a combination. Thus far, however, the results of the Soviet attempt to spread red propaganda among the Chinese are more laughable than significant. It has been a ponderous and heavy-handed comedy; this flirtation of the Slav with the Mongol.

The Kahn of Tartary visits Georg Tchitcherin, Commisar of Foreign Affairs for the Soviet, and soberly dresses himself in European garb as a courtesy to Moscow. The wily Tchitcherin, not to be outdone in naive diplomatic gesture, dons a padded coat and a Tartar headdress. In Moscow there is a school grandiloquently dubbed "The University of the Toiling East" where young Chinese are taught proletarian doctrines. The Kuomintang party of Canton replies to a message of brotherly love from Moscow in the words "We, the heirs of Sun Yat Sen greet you, the heirs of Lenin." China sends delegates to the All-Union Congress of Soviets in Moscow, and Moscow sends aviators on a cross country flight to Peking.

Those who view the situation for its dangerous potentialities generally accept the Russian theory that China is a fertile soil for Bolshevism. Superficially, and Russian diplomatic philosophy has proved very shallow, this would seem correct. China, like Russia, possesses a gigantic mass of illiterates; the coolies and farmers corresponding to the Russian peasants. But China has none of Russia's cohesion. The Soviet dictatorship has a common denominator with which to work. When revolution came it was an All-Russian revolution. But can anyone imagine an All-Chinese revolution? No Chinese leader has yet arisen who could create a national spirit in that disjointed land.

The utter lack of racial cohesion among the Chinese will, we think, prove as great a stumbling block to Moscow as it has to the governments at Peking and to the Councils of the Powers. He who can lead China toward monarchism, republicanism, communism or anything else is yet to be born.

Coast guardsmen at Anacortes, Wash., suspected a 70-year-old skipper, Paul Pietrowski, of being a rum runner. They boarded his launch and found no liquor, but they killed the skipper and called it a day.

THE FANATIC.

What news editors call a second-day story told how Asa K. Bartlett, a Michigan constable, had confessed mailing the bomb which killed August Krubaech, supervisor, his daughter Janet, and her fiance, William Frank, at Three Lakes Tavern last Thursday.

But this second-day story did not repeat the fact that Bartlett was a fanatic on prohibition, a klansman, and that his hatred of Krubaech induced him to pack in the bomb he sent the trigger of an old rifle, which trigger furnished the principal clew to his undoing. It did give, however, Bartlett's confessed reason for mailing the bomb, namely, "I couldn't stand to have Krubaech running the township."

Truly an example of the psychology of the perfect fanatic, dry, religious or simply self-centered. He must "run things" himself—the "things" usually being other people. He has no give and take, no bear and forbear, no patience. All who do not agree with him are enemies of society. They deserve to be whipped, or, if they do not mend their ways, slain.

The spread of education is making the fanatic brand less common. The half-educated, who see but one side of a question, supply a fertile field for the seed of fanaticism.

PANETELA.

No, Luella,
Mr. Borah
Can't be Altogether wise;
People seem
To look upon his Latest stunt
With grave surprise.
While they Understood his dryness,
Since he else
Were bound to fall,
They were hardly
Set to see him
Be the biggest
Dry of all.

Truth to tell,
My little girlie,
Memory
Too fondly clings
To a time
When Mr. Borah
Was reserved
For bigger things.
If there was
A man among us
Could afford
At length to be Intellectually
Honest
And untrammeled,
It was he.

There he stood,
Like some great mountain
Breathing that Ambrosial air
High above
The ordinary Human reasons
For despair.
Did we sometimes
Quail lest freedom
Too far circumscribed
Would pop,
Lo, the sun
Of what We once were Always shone
Upon his top!

After this Superb conception,
What an almost
Comic flop
Had been that
Which found the mountain
Spouting merely Sodapop!
Freedom's citadel
And fortress,
Even liberty's
Last wall,
In the end
Become the greatest Soda jerker
Of them all!

So it goes,
My sweet Luella—
As if those things
Bought with blood
Yielded
To another Noah
On the sodapopping
Flood,
Or as if,
All things for this thing,
Willy-nilly
For the lot,
It could matter
If he ever
Found his Ararat
Or not.

MORE ABOUT KANSAS.

Sir: One of the greatest bugs produced by Kansas was Carrie Nation. She came to our town in 1892. She was born in Kentucky in 1846. Her husband, David, was a minister, a very fine man, but Carrie worried and deviled him so that in 1901 Brother David divorced her, after living with her for 24 years. Foot-loose, Carrie started. Her first overt act was committed in our town. She went into a drug store, grabbed a whisky keg and smashed it to bits. Her first implements of warfare were rocks wrapped in paper. Later she adopted the hatchet, and with the hatchet she became rich—but not stingy. She gave liberally to all causes, and anybody who would tell her they had reformed could make a good touch. In Kansas City, Kan., she built and furnished a home for drunkards' wives, which had to be turned to other purposes owing to a lack of patronage. She went to the wives of the drunkards, and here is a sample of the reception she received:

Carrie: Maggie, the home is finished, and now you can leave that old drunken husband of yours.

Maggie: What! Me leave my husband? Why I wouldn't leave Jim if you would give me that fine building.

Carrie was six feet tall, weighed 175 pounds, had iron gray hair, small black eyes, strong arms and would talk for 24 hours if given a chance. In 1911 she was placed in a sanitarium, where she died of paresis in June of that year. A great many people think she was always insane. It was hard to tell—in Kansas.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

THE NEW ERA OF GOVERNMENT.

SILAS BENT in the Century Magazine for June.

IT IS idle to complain about bureaucracy if beaureaucrats, like middlemen in our economic system, have come into being because they were needed. We may as well face the fact that we are going to have more of them, not fewer. If we can make them safe for democracy, why complain that they are in their essence undemocratic? And it seems useless to discuss state rights in connection with those commissions which exercise functions the states individually are unable to exercise. • • • Any eventual consequence of commission government at Washington is worth considering. To find a way of curbing and making amenable to the popular well-being the imperialist bureaucracy which is growing up there, created within the interpretation of the Constitution, but beyond its purview or the intention of its framers, will require a deal of meditation and debate. There is nothing to show that in the changes which will become necessary, the safeguards which must be erected, there need even be so much as an amendment to the Constitution itself; for the founding fathers, fearful of what one of them termed "a too populous wisdom," left us wide latitude. This very latitude is at once a burden and a challenge. Commission government at Washington is an attempt to reconcile the formula of democracy with the fact of an industrial autocracy. The industrial civilization which has grown up since the framing of our Constitution comprises a system of overlordships based on the market and the factory. • • • We have endeavored to cope with the transforming influences of a gigantic and highly integrated oligarchy by intergrating governmental powers in a group of commissions, and we have achieved, palpably, but indifferent success. Upon the outcome of our gropings, it is not too much to say, depends in large measure the fate of the democratic experiment.

THE COUNTRY DOCTOR.

From the Toledo Blade.

THE country doctor, who has had a prominent place in literature and history and held a warm spot in the hearts of Americans, has not wholly disappeared. Dr. Albert M. Cram is one among the few that remain to glorify the type. He is conspicuous now because he was physician to the President's father in Plymouth, Vt.

Vermont has had a severe winter, and it has not yet loosed its grip. Dr. Cram is not of Plymouth, so he must make a long journey to the bedside of his patient. A few days ago there appeared in the newspapers a picture of the doctor as he arrived at the Coolidge home. He was in a one-horse sleigh—heavy coat and gloves, fur cap, and muffled to the ears. The scene made a picture that might have been cut out of a page of history. The striking thing is that there are regions of the country that have not surrendered to modern ways and modern conveniences. Up there in the Green hills nature still calls for sturdy characters. And what nature demands of men is seemingly forthcoming. Dr. Cram is testimony to this. He is one who has not deserted those who need him.

Reed, Defending Rules, Says The United States Senate Is Forum of Human Liberty

One Place Where None Can Gag Another, He Says in Reply to Underwood in Bitter Debate — Alabaman for Cloture by Majority.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—"This, sir, is the forum of human liberty. It is the one place on earth where no man can gag another, where no master can control his mind. Let it stand!"

Thus Senator Reed of Missouri, in the manner of a priest resisting the defilement of a temple, met with scourging eloquence an attack upon the free speech rules of the Senate.

Reed made what may be called, in all moderation, one of his great speeches. The occasion was an appeal Friday by Senator Underwood of Alabama, former leader of the Democrats in the Senate, for a rule permitting a majority to curtail debate upon revenue and appropriation bills. Underwood's preface, in which he likened the rules to a "deuces wild" game of poker, got the debate under way on a jocular note. It developed soon into a discussion marked by intense feeling.

Reed's first thrust at Underwood turned his own simile against him: what Underwood was giving, said the Missourian, was a demonstration, not of deuces running wild, but of a "very fine ace" running wild. The remark was gentle in comparison with the castigation of Underwood that followed.

"Brilliant Career Sullied."

First Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the present Democratic leader, asserted that Underwood had sullied an otherwise brilliant career; then Reed made his attack; then Underwood's Alabama colleague, Senator Heflin, said he had heard his appeal for cloture with "shocked disagreement."

"To those who believe in the Senate rules as they stand, the defection of Underwood was like the fall of an angel from the highest pinnacle of grace. For it was Underwood who led the famous filibuster against the Dyer antilynching bill; led it so ably and so earnestly that not a particle of business could be transacted on the Senate floor till the sponsors of the bill admitted defeat and withdrew it.

Underwood at the time made no bones about the fact that he was conducting an out-and-out filibuster. He was equally candid yesterday. He was justified, he said, in taking advantage of the rules as he found them. The explanation served only to inflame his opponents.

Underwood had been their leader; Underwood had been a spokesman of the South; Underwood had been the candidate of many in the South for the presidency. Now here was Underwood, who is to retire from the Senate at the end of this Congress, singing a swansong in favor of the plan proposed by Vice President Dawes. The chagrin of Underwood's Democratic colleagues, especially those of the South, is easy to understand.

Limit to Majority Rule.

It remained for Reed to set forth the full implications of the Dawes-Underwood plan as it is sensed by its opponents. These Senators—and they include not only Democrats and Insurgents, but some of the hardest-boiled of the Republican regulars—hold that the plan would break down the country's surest safeguard against invasion of the rights of minority. It was in his fiery condemnation of the theory of "majority rule" that the Missouri Senator reached the peak of his eloquence.

"The Constitution itself," said Reed, "is a direct limitation upon majority rule. You shall not take property without due process of law, says the Constitution, and before we can take that safeguard away what must we do? We must obtain two-thirds majority for a resolution in each house of Congress, and that resolution must be approved by three-fourths of the States. What about majority rule in connection with that proposition?

"The right to trial by jury cannot be taken away by majority rule. The right for the habitation of the citizen to be free from unreasonable searches and seizures cannot be taken away by majority rule. If it could have been so taken away, the Volsteads and man like him would have invaded every home of America and fanaticism would have thrust its ugly face into every habitation of the land long ago.

"Before you can trample upon certain rights of the American people you must have more than a majority, sir, and I believe it to be true that there are certain rights that even by amending the Constitution of the United States, we can not take away from the citizen.

"Majority Usually Wrong."

"Majority rule! Where is the logic to be found back of majority rule, or the reason, except the reason of necessity to dispatch business? The fact that a majority of one or ten vote for a bill in the Senate is not a certification that the action is right. The majority has been wrong oftener than it has been right in all the course of time.

"The majority crucified Jesus Christ. The majority burned the Christians at the stake. The majority drove the Jews into exile. The majority established slavery. The majority set up innumerable gibbets. The majority chained to stakes and surrounded with circles of flame martyrs through all the ages of the world's history.

"The majority in China believe in a doctrine and follow a code of ethics different from ours. Either they are wrong or we are wrong. The majority in India follow a different code of ethics and have a different set of ideas than we, and they far outnumber us. Either they are wrong or we are wrong.

"Majority Forged Chains."

"The majority went down the pathway of the ages wearing chains which they voluntarily forged and fastened upon their arms, and when a minority arose, headed by some brave soul, they hanged him upon a gibbet, they crucified him upon a cross, they pulled his limbs apart with horrible instruments of torture, and the majority stood there leering and jibing at the man who was the apostle of a better day.

"Majority rule without limitation, without any brakes upon the particular set of fools who happen to be just then running the machinery of a Government! The majority jibed and jeered when Columbus said the world was round. The majority threw him into a dungeon for having discovered a new world. The majority said that Galileo must recant or that Galileo must go to prison.

"The majority cut off the ears of John Pym because he dared advocate the liberty of the press. The majority south of Mason and Dixon's line established the horrible thing called slavery and the majority in the North did the same thing as long as it was profitable and only turned reformer when it ceased to be profitable.

"Majority rule! Now, of course, there are times when it becomes necessary to settle propositions and we accept the majority mandate. On many questions we have adopted that rule, but not always. Let us see. A treaty is made with a foreign country. The advice and consent of the Senate is necessary. Can a majority give that advice and consent? It cannot. There must be a two-thirds majority under the Constitution of the United States.

"Thank God we have the Constitution, or another Underwood would be here tomorrow asking that treaties should be ratified by a majority vote.

"Majority rule! In many states, for the protection of the people we have declared that bonds cannot be issued except there be more than a majority voting in favor of them. These safeguards have been put in everywhere. Nearly every state Constitution has them, sacredarchiepiscopal palace and in other churches of the archdiocese. On the following night there will be a civic welcoming fete at the Coliseum, when representatives of the city, State and Nation will make addresses. Saturday will be given over to sight-seeing tours about the city and its beautiful lake front suburbs.

The official opening of the Congress will take place on Sunday with solemn pontifical masses in all of the churches, and one at dawn in the great stadium at which latter the Papal Legate will be the celebrant. It is at these masses that Cardinal Mundelein hopes to have 1,000,000 persons receive Holy Communion as he told the Pope on his last visit to Rome that that was his aim.

At noon on this day the Papal Legate will be officially welcomed and installed. This ceremony will take place in the Cathedral of the Holy Name and a special pontifical mass will be celebrated by one of the visiting Cardinals. This is a colorful spectacle during which the Papal Brief setting forth the appointment of the Legate will be read. This will be followed by an address of welcome, the response by the Legate, and then the formal sermon of the Mass.

That night the exercises of the Holy Hour will be held in all churches of the city and vicinity. On this occasion one of the Bishops will deliver the sermon and, later, pontificate at the solemn benediction.

The general meetings of the Congress will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings at 10 o'clock in the Stadium. This structure was built as a memorial to the Chicago boys who died in the World War and into which may be crowded something like 150,000 persons with sufficient room for another 100,000 to stand nearby to witness the ceremonies.

Four Speeches to Session.

The plans for the general meetings call for four orations at each of the sessions. The subject of each of these orations has been allotted from the special list of subjects selected by the Permanent Committee of the International Eucharistic Congress and prepared by the eminent eucharistic scholar and commentator, Father de la Taille, S. J.

These general meetings will be followed each day by a solemn pontifical Mass, the celebrant of which will be one of the Cardinals. The sermon of the Mass each day will be delivered by a distinguished American pulpit orator.

The sectional meetings of the Congress will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and evenings. The English section will assemble in the Coliseum, Chicago's famous convention hall, wherein more than 18,000 persons may find place. At the same time the various foreign language sectional groups will be assembled in various assembly halls located in several parts of the city. Sectional meetings have been arranged for groups from Holland, Belgium, France, Germany, Spain, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary, Italy and Mexico.

Monday will be Children's day and at the Solemn Pontifical Mass in the Stadium 60,000 parochial school children will sing the famous Tenth Century Mass of the Angels. On Tuesday, Women's day, a choir of 10,000 composed of nuns and trained women choir singers will chant Vito Cornevali's beautiful mass, "Rosa Mystica." This same evening there will be a mass meeting in the Stadium under the auspices of the Holy Name Societies. Wednesday will be Higher Education day and 60,000 students, clerics and educators will sing the mass in the Stadium.

Thursday, the closing day, will witness the great outdoor Eucharistic Procession which is always the outstanding event of a Eucharistic Congress. This demonstration will be in the open air, in the country, on the outskirts of Chicago, and near the little town of Mundelein. Here, on the grounds of the Seminary of St. Mary-on-the Lake, the great Eucharistic Procession will be staged.

Here, within the seminary grounds, are more than 1200 acres of rolling park-land, well wooded and watered; seven magnificent buildings, among these a gorgeous memorial chapel dedicated to the Immaculate Conception. In the center of the plat is an attractive natural lake along the shores of which there winds a paved road. Here the Procession of the Congress will be held. The program calls for an open-air Pontifical Mass, with a sermon by one of the Cardinals, all to be followed by the great Procession. Along the shores of the lake, starting from the chapel, the Procession, rich and colorful, with all the pageantry of the ages and all the splendor of Catholic art and ingenuity, will wend its way bearing the Eucharistic Lord under a golden canopy. A hundred choirs stationed at intervals along the road will catch up the chant of the solemn hymns.

Although this is the first time that a Eucharistic Congress has been held in the United States, the Right Rev. C. M. Dubois, Bishop of Galveston, Tex., was the first to mention a Eucharistic Congress to the Pope. Pope Leo XIII, with whom he spoke on the matter, gave his approval and support by remarking enthusiastically: "I will do anything for Eucharistic works."

A pious woman of Tours, France, Marie Martha Tamisier (Nov. 1, 1834-June 20, 1910), noted for a lifetime of devotion to the Blessed Sacrament, is credited with the first thoughts on the subject. In her early years she had come under the influence of the "Apostle of the Eucharist," Blessed Peter Julian Eymard, and at a later date Father Chevrier of Lyons, gave her spiritual guidance. His first counsel, it seems, was that she should exchange her garments for the rags of the first beggar she met. She was rewarded in this life by seeing 21 International Eucharistic Congresses convened, following upon the introduction of her idea first in a preliminary experimental way at various Eucharistic shrines in France, and then at the Congress of Lille, 1881.

The source of her inspiration was the sight of some 200 members of the French Parliament kneeling before the Holy Eucharist in a public act of dedication. At once it occurred to her that the practice might be extended in a public way to include as many of the faithful as possible. At Avignon, in 1874, under the auspices of the Grey Penitents, a French confraternity of women, pilgrims were invited to participate in Eucharistic exercises. Douay, Paris and Angers followed with similar ceremonies in succeeding years.

Thus were the seeds sown which led to the development of the congresses on a large scale, sanctioned by the Holy See and held under the presidency of Bishops

First International Event.

Lille, in 1881, and Avignon, in 1882, assembled the first and second International Eucharistic Congresses before the movement passed beyond national boundaries to Liege, Belgium, 1883, and Fribourg, Switzerland, 1885. Over this period the growth had leaped from 3000 at the first to 15,000 at the last. At Toulouse, France, in 1886, still larger attendance was noted. In Paris, 1887, the preparations made proved entirely inadequate. Anvers, Belgium, enjoyed a highly successful Congress in 1890, but with the gathering of the VIII Congress in Jerusalem, 1893, the international character of the movement was fixed indefinitely.

The intervening Congresses may be listed, with their dates and places of assembly in the order they were held: IX, Rheims, France, 1894; X, Parayle-Monial, France, 1897; XI, Brussels, Belgium, 1898; XII, Lourdes, France, 1899; XIII, Angers, France, 1901; XIV, Namur, Belgium, 1902; XV, Angouleme, France, 1904; XVI, Rome, Italy, 1905; XVII, Tournal, Belgium, 1906; XVIII, Metz, France, 1907; XIX, London, England, 1908; XX, Cologne, Germany, 1909; XXI, Montreal, Canada, 1910; XXII, Madrid, Spain, 1911; XXIII, Vienna, Austria, 1912; XXIV, Isle of Malta, 1913; XXV, Lourdes, France, 1914; XXVI, Rome, Italy, 1922; XXVII, Amsterdam, Holland, 1924.

Canning in comfort with Focused Heat

A DAY of canning, even in the sultriest summer weather, holds only satisfaction for the woman who uses a Florence—the Oil Range with FOCUSED HEAT.

Florence kitchens are cool and comfortable for the simple reason that the cooking heat goes into the cooking—not out into the kitchen. The burners of the Florence are scientifically designed to focus the heat directly on the bottom of the pot.

For cold-pack canning, for sterilizing jars, for the gentle cooking that keeps fruit whole and tempting—you can adjust the Florence flame to any height you need, simply by turning a lever.

Of course, it's pleasanter to use this oil range that leaves the kitchen cool. It's cheaper and quicker, too. The Florence cuts fuel bills by working hard while it works. It burns a clear, gas-like flame from the vapor of kerosene. There are no wicks to trim.

When you see the Florence Oil Range at the store you will be struck by its beauty. When it is in your own kitchen you show it and use it with pride.

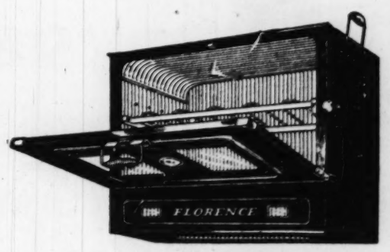
Florence Burner with outer jacket cut away to show how flame is FOCUSED on the cooking vessel. Notice that there is no wick, for the Florence operates on the most advanced principle of combustion engineering, mixing the vapor from kerosene with heated air. This assures complete combustion and intense heat.

NEW GRID-TOP MODEL

Notice the extra-roomy top and the all-over grid of this new model which is now offered for sale in addition to the regular Florence. The single Giant burner over which the oven goes will do all types of baking efficiently and with great economy. This is an unusually sturdy stove with many special features.



The famous Florence Portable Oven is ideal for every type of baking.

MYSTERY OF A STONE HIGHWAY 10 CENTURIES OLD

with two bars. But neither of the glyphs themselves, nor their numerical co-efficients, could be made out in any of the other glyph spaces.

We followed this great causeway to the ruins of Coba, and as we went I could not help wondering for what reason this magnificent road had been made. It links up the two most important Maya cities in Yucatan. I think I am justified in saying this because I feel certain that Coba will be found to be the most important city after Chichen-Itza.

It provides a mystery that in our present state of knowledge seems to me absolutely insoluble. For the Maya had neither wheeled vehicles nor beast of burden, and therefore such a made road which might have served a modern motorist, was absolutely useless. We must, I think, accept the only possible explanation—that it was used purely as a ceremonial road, or "via sacra," leading from the principal center of the last great city of the "Plumed Serpent," that is, the civil and religious capital of Yucatan, which stood for almost a thousand years and was, as we know, in its later times the Mecca of Mayadom.

Ceremonials Are Recalled.

Therefore we can visualize a gorgeously arrayed procession of nobles and priests with bejeweled garments and gorgeous headdresses glittering in the sun. They would set out from Coba, preceded by singers and instrumentalists playing on flutes and drums, with white-robed priests bearing grotesque censers scattering the sweet-scented smoke of burning copal. Probably, if the occasion were an important one, they bore with them, in addition to the usual offerings of jewelry, fine garments and weapons and the most beautiful of their youths and maidens, marching along joyously to their immolation in the great "Cenote," the sacred pool at Chichen-Itza.

They would go joyously, for they were about to attain eternal bliss at the price of drowning in the deep, mysterious waters. The procession would take three days to march along the great elevated causeway which gleamed like porcelain in the rays of the tropical sun, and the inhabitants of all the towns and village along the route would assemble to pay them honor. They would halt in the cool of the evening at one of the many Maya temples.

As they neared the sacred city they probably would be met by a procession of priests from Chichen-Itza, who would lead them to the gloomy waters of the sacred "Cenote," where their offerings would be accepted by the god. Scenes such as these must have been enacted along this causeway over a period of many centuries, and as one walks along it today, impressed by the appalling loneliness of the surroundings, one cannot but reflect on the evanescence of all human institutions and faiths.

The great temples and palaces are in ruins. Gods and religion have pased away. Men and women, with their loves and hates, ambitions and struggles, all have perished—only the road remains.

Photographs in Yucatan, taken by Dr. Gann, will be found in the Rotogravure section of this issue of the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Judge Changes Jury's Sentence.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., June 5.—After denying a motion for a new trial Circuit Judge A. E. Somers ruled that the jury had no right to fix the sentence of Herman Whiteside at one year for assault and made the sentence read as an indeterminate period which carries with it a minimum of one year and a maximum of 14 years. Whiteside, said to have been formerly active in the Ku Klux Klan, was convicted by a jury which sought to give him a lighter sentence than the Judge had ruled permissible.

its pleasure. At last a very high official in the Foreign Office, next in rank to Chitcherin himself, was secretly arrested and lay for months in the cells of Loublanka. Other communist leaders got together. "What is there to prevent Dzjershinsky from arresting any of us, if he wants to?" they asked. A campaign began in the ranks of the party and for a few months Dzjershinsky's power was curbed.

But for a few months only. For quietly and unostentatiously, he recovered it all again.

Dzjershinsky's political police are now a great army. Many of the finest brains of Russia are in their service. They have their own troops and they control many departments of state. That they do much useful work in maintaining order no one who knows Russia would deny. But that they are contrary to every idea of popular liberty every one knows.

Dzjershinsky blossomed out in other departments of state. He is a master organizer, with the necessary ruthlessness of a master organizer. He took over the railways when they were a ruin and transformed them. For a time he had control of the supreme council of national economy, and his agents went through it like a devastating storm. In the great battle between Zinoviev and Trotzky it was he who stepped in at the vital moment and stayed Zinoviev's hands.

An amazing, almost incredible character. "The man with the golden heart," his friends named him. "The devil incarnate" is his enemies' summing up of his character. But those who know him best feel kindliest about the man himself, however much they hate the abuses of his system.

Foreigners Buy German Art.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 5.—Foreigners have successfully executed what is called another "raid" on German art treasures. In Leipsic at an auction of black and white drawings of famous masters, American, English, Swiss and Holland collectors obtained every one of the offerings, paying about $50,000 for them. Rembrandt's "Hut With a Thatched Roof" went for $3025 to an agent for a Netherlands gallery. Representatives of German museums were unable to outbid competitors because of limited funds.

Variety of styles makes the moderate price unusually attractive—sizes 14 to 20 being shown in the Misses' Section—36 to 44 in the Women's Dress Section.

Colors and Trimmings Enhance the Sheerness of These Frocks

Crepe Pannier Frocks in bois de rose, polo blue, palmetto, gray, tan, June rose, sunset and others of the newer hues—also black and navy models.

Filmy laces, embroidery, shirrings, ribbons, pleatings, smocking and drawnwork lend the "just right" finishing touches to these very charming Frocks.

At $16.75 there are also Frocks of crepe de chine, flat crepe, Georgette and radium silk, shown in solid colors, striped and dotted effects.

REED DECLARES SENATE IS FORUM OF HUMAN LIBERTY

ly laid away for the protection of minorities.

"We have heard it ad nauseam, we have heard it until the gorge would rise in the gizzard of an ostrich, that we must speed up the public business. We must enact more laws. We must not consider them. We must not analyze them. We must not talk about them. Of course, if we cannot talk about them, we ought not to think about them. There are a good many men who do a good deal of talking in favor of stopping talking, who never stop talking long enough to do any thinking themselves.

"While we are talking about not having enough legislation let me call your attention to the thing that I hold in my hand."

Holds Up Code Bill.

Reed held up a copy of the pending bill for the codification of the laws—a bill about six inches thick.

"This," he explained, "is the new condensed code of the United States on which we are all afraid to vote because we do not know what is in it. We are not going to vote on it, either, just at present, if some of us can help it. I wish I could find out how many words there are in it. I have made a quick estimate.

"It contains, sir, 1706 pages, very finely printed. There are over 14,000 sections. There are written here for the regulation of the American people by this single body of lawmakers 2,388,400 words, and the whole of the law and the Gospel was put in the 10 commandments."

Senator Neely of West Virginia interrupted with a question:

"If the Jews had had this thing around with them through the wilderness instead of the 10 commandments does the Senator think they would have gotten out in 40 years?"

"I think," replied Reed, "that the Jews would have had too much sense to tote it around, and we are weeping here because we cannot do anything but vote.

Vote Too Much.

"We vote too much," he continued. "We deliberate too little. We have brought within the scope of the Federal jurisdiction a vast number of subjects that do not belong there. I put it upon the conscience of Senators whether they do not every day on the average vote upon more than one measure that they do not understand fully, simply because no human brain can follow all the manifold propositions to their ultimate conclusion and their ultimate results without more time than is given for us for deliberation."

Declaring that Underwood had furnished a complete example of self-contradiction, Reed continued:

"His measure, if adopted, will place it in the power of a majority to throttle freedom of speech upon this floor and enable sinister and wicked measures to be passed without the country being advised of their iniquities.

Gag Rule, Resort of Rascals.

"Gag rule is the last resort of the legislative scoundrel. Gag rule is the last resort of the rascal who presides over a political convention and proposes to accomplish something which will not bear discussion. Gag rule is the thing that men inexperienced in legislative proceedings always advocate at first, and, if they have any sense, nearly always retire from as gracefully as possible at the first opportunity.

"What a spectacle it is for a man to stand on the floor of the Senate and say that he has himself resorted to filibustering methods, that he was right when he resorted to them, that he saved the country from some great calamity, and then, when he is confronted with that fact, to say well, he plays the rule of the game and so appeals to the rule of the gambler's table as a justification for action here.

"Gambling is merely robbery according to rule, thievery according to some set custom of a particular evening. It is a mighty poor precedent for a man to appeal to whose duty here under his oath is to walk the straight path of rectitude and honor. If a filibuster can only be justified by the gambler's rule, if that is the only plea that the distinguished Senator from Alabama has to make in justification, he would better not have made it.

Laws for 10,000 Years.

"What we need to do is to stop passing laws. We have enough laws now to govern the world for the next 10,000 years. Every crank who has a foolish notion that he would like to impose upon somebody else hastens to some legislative body and demands that it be graven upon the statutes. Every fanatic who wants to control his neighbor's conduct is here or at some legislative body demanding that a law be passed.

"So we have people who want to regulate the woman who is about to give birth to a child. We once had here a bill that came near passing—I talked it half to death and I wish to the Lord I had had sufficient physical strength to talk the rest of it to death. We took half of its enormities out of it.

"The bill could have been so used that governmental agents could have demanded that every woman about to give birth to a child should register the fact at a public registry so that a public snooper could come down and investigate this woman and see whether she was really fit to give birth to a baby. It was proposed to regulate the selection of her midwife or her doctor, and when we ran the thing to earth these extraordinary powers were to be put in the hands of a board every member of which was a spinster beyond the age of hope."

Reed branded the proposed child labor amendment as a "damnable and sickening measure" and

ADMITS TWO PRISON TERMS

Man Is Held on Complaint of Common Law Wife.

William O. Clubbs, 54 years old, of 3904 North Wharf, was arrested Friday on the complaint of his common-law wife, Mrs. Millie Clubs, that he had forced improper attentions for three months upon her 13-year-old daughter by a former union. Police Captain Doyle reported that Clubbs, although denying the accusation, admitted he had served a prison term for an attack upon a 15-year-old girl 25 years ago at Hillsboro, and another for shooting a man at Kokomo, Ind.

REED DECLARES SENATE IS FORUM OF HUMAN LIBERTY

expressed gratification that the state Legislatures had defeated it.

"Would it not have been well if somebody had filibustered a little on a proposition of that kind?" he asked. "Why was it passed? Because of some organized bodies in this country, led by self-appointed meddlers who imagine that they live the right kind of life and that everybody else ought to live exactly the same kind of life.

"If they are meat-eaters they think everybody else ought to eat red meat and they want to make them do it by law. If they are vegetarians they want to make everybody else live on potatoes and carrots and compel them to do it by law. If some of them believe that a certain kind of a home is desirable they would make everybody else build a house exactly like theirs.

"If we ever permit that kind of a crowd of narrow-headed, narrow-souled, egotistical people to control this republic, genius will die and liberty will be immolated.

Necessity of Free Debate.

"What has this to do with the question I am discussing? Everything, sir. Before any law to bind 110,000,000 people can be passed it should be somewhere subjected to free bedate somewhere it should encounter opposition, somewhere the fires of keen intellect should burn their heat about it and test it for its metal.

"That one forum reserved of all the places in the world is the Senate of the United States. We have changed the method of electing senators. It undoubtedly comes nearer to responding quickly to a temporary sentiment than it did in the past, but whether that be wise or not is a thing that the history of the future can alone answer. But this I say, that as long as we preserve complete freedom of speech in this body, we will have done much to preserve the prestige of the Senate. That, however, is not important. We will have done much to promote a condition of deliberate and careful action. That is the great desideratum.

"Why should there not be some place in this country where the virtues and the iniquities of proposed legislation can be exposed, without gag, without rule, without limit; some place where every public act must come under the surveillance of men who have complete freedom of speech?

"This, sir, is the forum of human liberty. It is the one place on this earth where no man can gag another, where no master can control the mind. Let it stand. It has stood the test of time. Centuries are rolling slowly by, and in their course they are marking the triumph and glory of a mighty race and of a proud and puissant nation. It has prospered under the old rule. Let us not lay unholy hands upon the ark of the covenant of human liberty.

"I know it is popular to attack the Senate. So many an ass has stood and brayed at the lions. He who would claim for this body perfection would prove himself a fool. But the more imperfect we are the more we need to counsel and to take advice. The less we know, the more we ought to strive to know.

"As long as we can keep this forum free, as long as a vigorous and determined minority can prevent the passage of a statute, so long this country will be safe, reasonably safe, at least, for no great act of tyranny can ever be enacted where there are some brave souls to stand in its way, and to stand to the end."

Plethora of Bills.

Senator Robinson in his speech estimated that in every session of Congress there are introduced in the House from 10,000 to 20,000 bills and in the Senate from 5000 to 7000. No Senator, he said, could possibly be fully advised on all the measures brought up for consideration.

"Last night in less than three hours we passed 90 bills," he continued. "I sat at my desk from 8 until nearly 11 o'clock and worked as conscientiously and intelligently as I could, and yet I know that the best interests of the public would have been conserved if a considerable number of those bills had been defeated.

"The United States is not suffering so much from want of legislation as it is from excessive legislation. We ought to do something to slow up the process."

Robinson declared that every successful filibuster had been justified by the subsequent judgment of the public. In no case, he said, had a measure so defeated ever been brought back for the serious consideration of Congress.

Pointing his finger dramatically at Vice President Dawes he exclaimed:

"Now let me say to you, sir, sitting there in the chair, with broad business experience, with patriotic purpose and motives, that nothing worse could come to the people of the United States than the condition which the resolution of the Senator from Alabama would impose."

BURGLAR FREED BY MISTAKE

Police Seek Negro Released Two Weeks Ago.

Patrolman David O'Grady appeared in Court of Criminal Correction Friday to testify against Robert Thommes, 18 years old, a Negro, reported caught in the act of burglary at the Chouteau Trust Co. last January. Thommes was not in court, and investigation showed he had been released from the House of Detention by mistake two weeks ago. He is being sought.

Chronicles of Social Activities Of St. Louisans

Moving Pictures of Riff Country Shown to Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lon O. Hocker — Parties for Miss Caradine.

AN UNUSUAL entertainment was given last Monday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Lon O. Hocker of 39 Portland place entertained 100 friends in honor of Walter Schnaider of the St. Regis apartment who presented an exhibit of moving pictures of the Riff country.

Mr. Schnaider, who is a Fellow of the National Geographic Society, recently made a trip by airplane from Paris to Algeria, Tunis and Morocco, accompanied by a staff of movie picture photographers. The pictures taken on this trip were those shown to Mr. and Mrs. Hocker's guests. A screen was installed in the Hocker living room and Mr. Schnaider gave an informal talk as the exhibit progressed.

Following Mr. Schnaider's presentation and talk, refreshments were served the guests.

The social calendar this week is filled with parties for Miss Margaret Caradine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Caradine of 30 Portland place, whose marriage to Chester Ellis Wright, formerly of Boston, will take place Saturday. Wednesday night Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter will give a dinner for the bridal party at the St. Louis Country Club; Thursday, Miss Trimble Hoblitzelle, daughter of Mrs. George K. Hoblitzelle, will entertain the young women at dinner and Mr. Wright will give his bachelor dinner at the Racquet Club; Friday afternoon Miss Catherine Louise Crunden will have a luncheon at her home and that evening Miss Alice Scott and Miss Katherine Steedman will give a dinner at the Country Club.

Mrs. August E. Brooker of Cella road gave a garden party yesterday for the board members of the Visiting Nurses' Association to meet Miss Mary Beard of New York, assistant director of studies in the Rockefeller Foundation. Mrs. Louis La Beaume of Waterman avenue gave a tea for Miss Beard Friday afternoon. Mrs. John A. Haskell is president of the board.

MRS. ALFRED BIDDLE of Philadelphia, who was a guest yesterday, at the Carter-Monins wedding. Mr. Biddle was best man.

MISS MARJORIE LITTLE, who, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alden H. Little, will make her future home in Chicago. She will spend the summer in the East. —Murillo.

Carter-Monins Wedding a Pretty Outdoor Ceremony

Bridal Couple Departs for Short Trip in New Hampshire Before Taking Up Residence on Bridegroom's Estate in England.

IN a latticed pergola covered with huckleberry foliage and white larkspur in the garden of their home, Miss Margaret Louise Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter of 8 Portland place, became the bride late yesterday afternoon of John Eaton Monins of Ringwould House, Kent, England, at one of a series of interesting international marriages, in which the brides have been St. Louisans.

The rays of the sun filtering through trees surrounding the lawn reflected a myriad of pastel tints as the bridal party, the young women in soft pinks and greens, emerged through the French doors of the solarium to the strains of wedding music, down the terrace steps and across a white covered path to the improvised altar. Tall wicker vases filled with Easter lilies and larkspur garlanded together with smilax bordered the path, and gladiolas grew at the entrance to the enclosure. Dozens of rose bushes bloomed on the terrace and against the garden walls.

The dainty bride with her tall English fiance made an attractive picture with their attendants grouped around them as the Rev. Dr. Frank L. Wells, presiding elder of the Methodist Episcopal Shurch, South, in the St. Louis district, read the service.

The bride wore white net embroidered in India in a design of silver bow knots over white satin. The material and design are identical with those in the late Queen Alexandra's coronation robe, and the embroidering was done by the same person. It was purchased by the bride's family on a recent trip abroad and made in Paris. Silver embroidery bordered the hem of the skirt which was caught in front with a silver ornament to reveal the satin, and the edge of the bodice. Long court trains of net embroidered to match the gown and bound with broad bands of silver depended from each shoulder. Her tulle veil was held in place with a silver bandeau and orange blossoms. She carried lilies of the valley.

The gowns of the attendants were of chiffon, made similarly over matching satin slips. Motifs of crystal embroidery adorned the short widely flaring skirts, and draperies over the hips, slashed to reveal the trimming, were tied in front with a bow of chiffon. Chiffon berthas about the round necked bodice deepened to a cape in the V-shaped back. Miss Mary Carter, twin sister of the bride, was in shell pink, and the bridesmaids in nymph green. Their broad-brimmed hats were of soft straw with layers of tulle extending over the brims and weighted on one side with a cluster of roses. An innovation in flower arrangement were their bouquets of butterfly roses and blue delphinium in inverted leghorn garden hats which swung from their arms from peach ribbon. Miss Carter carried Columbia roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Eugenie Edmunds, Miss Louise Church, Miss Margaret Caradine, Miss Anne Wallace, Miss Emily Lincoln, of Greenwich, Conn., Miss Anne Brengle of Morristown, N. J., and Lady Sheila Cairn of England, a cousin of Mr. Monins.

Alfred Biddle of Philadelphia was best man, and Maj. Gibson-Watt of England, Wayman Allen, brother-in-law of the bride; Andrew McCreery, Whitelaw Terry, Chester Ellis Wright, Francis Drew, Sproule Love, Arthur Crunden and Samuel H. Allen were ushers.

An al fresco reception followed the ceremony and later the bridal dinner was served in the east room of the house. The table was in the shape of an oval, its center a sunken garden of roses and valley lilies, watered by an electrically lighted fountain.

Mrs. Carter's gown was of black lace over white satin and that of Mrs. Monins of biege lace and chiffon. Each wore a corsage of orchids and gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Monins have gone to New Hampshire for a brief wedding trip before sailing for England to reside.

Conspicuous among the wedding gifts was a letter from the tenants of Ringwould estate, expressing their felicitations and describing a silver salver subscribed for by all of them to be presented to the couple on their arrival. A garden party will be given at Ringwould house soon afterward to introduce the tenants to the new Mrs. Monins.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn. She was to have made her debut next fall. She met her fiance during a residence of several months in England last year with her parents and Miss Mary Carter.

The bridegroom's father, John Henry Monins, died several years ago. He was educated at Eton and Oxford and manages the family estates where he and his bride will make their home. He is a cousin of the late Lord Kitchener and one sister is the Viscountess Broome. His gifts to his bride included an automobile.

MISS NANO GODDARD, who will sail late this month for Europe with a party chaperoned by Mrs. Everett W. Pattison. —Kandeler.

Mrs. James M. Carpenter of 4450 Westminster place, accompanied by her son, Henry Clarkson Carpenter, will leave St. Louis Wednesday to sail June 12 for Europe. They will spend the summer with Mrs. Carpenter's brother, E. Percy Neel, just outside of Paris, and will return home in September.

Miss Jane Matthews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Levering Matthews of 4660 Pershing avenue, has returned from Versailles, Ky., where she was graduated last week from Miss Gaither's school.

MRS. EDWARD BUTLER PARLE, formerly Miss Frances Bradshaw, whose marriage took place Tuesday night. —Murillo.

Many St. Louisans Among Visitors in European Capitals

Summer Rush to the Lido Has Not Yet Begun, But Americans are Numerous in Venice.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, France.

THE charm of Venice is eternal at this season of the year, the Queen of the Adriatic is at its best. The rush to the Lido for the summer has not yet set in but American visitors to Venice have been numerous during the last fortnight. First, 300 American hotel men and their families made a brief stay in the course of a three-weeks' tour of Italy, prior to sailing for home from Naples, June 1. Next came 100 American medical men with their families. Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford were among the prominent guests of the city. Missourians included Mr. and Mrs. David R. Calhoun.

Miss Claire Garneau and Mrs. Warne Niedringhaus of St. Louis are guests of the Hotel Wagram.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar L. Biebinger of St. Louis also have been staying at the Hotel Wagram. They recently made an excursion to Malmaison and Saint-Germain-en-Laye.

The engagement of Miss Georgette Madill of St. Louis to Anthony Mattei, a lawyer, has been announced in London. Mr. Mattei, whose home is in London, is Italian on his father's side and English on his mother's. Miss Madill, who was presented at Court in London two years ago, is a cousin of Mrs. Mennell, wife of Dr. James B. Mennell. The marriage will take place some time before September.

Mrs. Cornelia Koehler of St. Louis and her daughter, Mrs. Hans Georg Schultz, are at the Hotel Bellevue in Dresden, Germany.

Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, widow of the late publisher, was among those present at the new American Embassy in Paris last week when friends of the United States Ambassador, Myron T. Herrick of Ohio, presented him with a bust of himself. The bust was executed by Jo Davidson, the New York sculptor.

Weddings and Engagements Announced

Miss Lydia Obert to Marry James C. Cullen of East St. Louis Next Thursday —Mrs. Frances Simpson Becomes Mrs. Oliver Funsch.

MISS JANET RANKIN FAUNTLEROY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Turner Fauntleroy of Enright avenue, became the bride of Edward Hume Clendenin Thursday at the Second Presbyterian Church, Rev. Dr. MacIvor officiating. An informal reception for the wedding party, relatives and close friends followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fauntleroy.

The bride was gowned in ivory satin, made simply with a tight-fitting bodice, embellished in a berthe of old family lace, and flared skirt. Her train of satin was a foundation for the tulle and old family lace veil. Orange blossoms held the veil to the hair. Her flowers were lilies of the valley made into a shower. She wore a seed pearl necklace, which was made from a brooch and earrings of her great-grandmother Fauntleroy. Her only attendant was her twin sister, Miss Betty Lee Fauntleroy, who was gowned in ashes of roses georgette crepe and lace of the same shade. A horsehair hat of the tone of her frock, embellished in apple blossoms, completed the costume. Her flowers were pale pink roses and blue delphiniums.

Col. William Hume Clendenin, father of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Capt. Rufus Byars and Majors Arthur H. Dolg, E. T. Spencer and Woodruff.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Lewis Wood of Washington, D. C., sister of the bridegroom, and Misses Eleanor Chamberlain and Nelling, both of Waterford, Va. Miss Chamberlain is an aunt of the bridegroom.

Following a honeymoon, Mr. Clendenin and his bride will make their home at Casper, Wyo.

St. Louisans are interested in the marriage of Miss Marie Christiana Helene Wygant, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Henry Sollet Wygant of Camp Hill, Harrisburg, Pa., to Eugene Philpot Curran of St. Louis, which will be solemnized at 10 o'clock, June 16, at St. Patrick's Cathedral, Harrisburg. The Bishop of Harrisburg will officiate. A wedding breakfast will follow the ceremony. The prospective bride made her debut in St. Louis under the chaperonage of her cousin, Mrs. John O'Fallon Delany of 5105 Lindell boulevard. Members of Mr. Curran's family who will attend the wedding will be his brothers-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Sol W. Gross of 4426 Lindell boulevard, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Corley of 4303 McPherson avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Con P. Curran, Jr., of 5968 Cates avenue and John Curran, who will be best man for his brother. After the honeymoon the couple will make their home in St. Louis. Mr. Curran is the son of Con P. Curran of Normandy.

Miss Sarah Bendall, daughter of Mrs. Evan Ogan of 4534 Athlone avenue, and the late James N. Bendall, was married Wednesday evening at the home of her mother to Lester Clarence Bevill of 4122 Castleman avenue. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. W. McClusky of Lebanon, Ill., in the presence of a number of friends of the couple.

Miss Bendall was attended by Miss Bertha Bevill, sister of the bridegroom. George Morrison was best man for Mr. Bevill. The bride wore a gown of white satin and her tulle veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Bevill wore a frock of blue taffeta and carried pink roses. The home was decorated in smilax and early summer flowers.

Following a honeymoon in Canada and Eastern cities the couple will be at home at the residence of the bride's mother.

The marriage of Miss Lillian Frances Lucia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Lucia of 3823 Botanical avenue, and Charles McLeon Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duncan of Troy, N. Y., took place Tuesday evening at Tyler Place Presbyterian Church. The Rev. L. V. Buschman officiated.

Miss Phyllis Lucia, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Miss Marion Schultz and Miss Lucille Brandenburger were bridesmaids. John W. Duncan was best man for his brother and D. Allen Sheppard and Arthur Gildehaus served as groomsmen. An out-of-door reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Mann, 4121 Fairview avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Duncan will reside in the East.

The marriage of Miss Lydia Obert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Obert of 4002 Botanical avenue, and James C. Cullen of East St. Louis, will take place Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Margaret's Church. The Rev. J. J. Flannigan will officiate.

The bride will be attended by her cousin, Miss Adele Obert, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be the Misses Emma and Marie Robert and Miss Florence Griffin. Mrs. Henry Huschle, sister of the bridegroom, will be matron of honor. Louis Ward, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ward of East St. Louis, will be ring bearer. Mr. Cullen will have for his best man, Harry Obert, brother of Miss Obert. The groomsmen will be Dr. Henry Huschle, Adolph Robert, Kevin Kane and Jerome Flannery.

Miss Obert will wear a gown of white bridal satin veiled in tulle and embellished with crystal and pearl beads. Her court train will be beaded in the same design as her gown and will be lined with shirred chiffon. Her tulle veil will be held in place by orange blossoms and she will carry bride's roses and lillies of the valley. Miss Adele Obert, the maid of honor, will wear blue chiffon and silver lace and will carry pink roses. The gowns of the bridesmaids will be made alike in shades of peach, green and orchid georgette. They will carry bouquets of the same color as their gowns. Mrs. Huschle will be gowned in canary chiffon and will carry yellow roses. All the attendants of the bride will wear large hair braid hats trimmed in rhinestone buckles and tulle streamers, reaching to the hems of their gowns.

A reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. The Cullens will spend their honeymoon in the East.

The marriage of Miss Minnie Cohen, daughter of Morris Cohen of 5739 Westminster place, to Samuel Blass, will take place this evening. The ceremony will be attended only by the immediate family. An informal reception will be held from 8 to 11 p. m. at the home of Miss Cohen's uncle, S. Katanik of 5853 Julian avenue.

The marriage of Miss Elsie R. Goodman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Goodman of 5647 Waterman avenue, and Henry J. Lewis of Memphis, Tenn., will take place June 11, at Hotel Peabody, Memphis. The ceremony will be performed at 11:30 a. m., and will be followed by a wedding breakfast. Miss Helen Goodman, the bride's sister, will be her only attendant. Dr. Gilbert J. Levy of Memphis, will be best man. The couple will spend their honeymoon in California.

Miss Goodman will receive her Bachelor of Arts degree from Washington University, June 8.

Brilliant Week Socially in Washington

Dinner to Swedish Crown Prince and Princess by Former St. Louisans and President's Garden Party for Veterans Leading Events.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—A brilliant week, socially speaking, culminated on Thursday with the annual White House garden party of the season given by President and Mrs. Coolidge for the World War veterans in the Service hospitals in and near Washington.

On Monday the Crown Prince of Sweden and the Crown Princess, whose stay in Washington had been the signal for a round of unprecedented gayety, left for New York. The day they were guests at luncheon given by the American Minister to Sweden and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss at the Oaks, their beautiful new $1,000,000 chateau on the heights overlooking Washington. Ninety guests were asked by the former St. Louisans to greet the royal guests and the names were a miniature social register of the Capital.

From Washington the Crown Prince and Princess went first to Philadelphia, en route to New York, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury while they inspected the exhibits of the Sesqui-centennial in the Quaker City.

During the next 10 days the Crown Prince and Princess will be guests of Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, widow of the former Secretary of State, on Long Island. About the middle of June they will go to Newport, where they will be the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, after which they will make their tour of the United States.

Gen. John J. Pershing, who has been on a trip to Nebraska, where he visited his sister, Miss Mary Pershing, at Lincoln, has returned to Washington. He will be joined Monday by his son, Warren, who will come down from his prep school in New Hampshire to be with his father.

Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, wife of the Secretary of War, will go to Bar Harbor, Me., Tuesday to open the Davis villa there. At the close of the schools of the Misses Davis they will join their mother in Maine and Secretary Davis will make frequent week-end trips to visit his family there.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Douglas Robinson went by airplane, Thursday, to Hyde Park on the Hudson, to attend the wedding of his cousin, Miss Anne Eleanor Roosevelt, daughter of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Curtis Dall. His daughter, Miss Helen Douglas Robinson, was one of the bridesmaids. After the wedding ceremony in Hyde Park, Mr. Robinson flew to Albany, where he attended the wedding reception of Miss Emily Smith, who married Maj. John A. Warner, Superintendent of the New York State Police.

Mrs. Bruce Smith, formerly the Princess Bertha Cantacuzene, now of Louisville, Ky., has been visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, at Mrs. Grant's home in New Hampshire avenue, N. W.

Col. and Mrs. George Harvey of Deal, N. J., are guests at the White House.

More than 1000 World War veterans received by President and Mrs. Coolidge on Thursday at the White House garden party in their honor. Mrs. Coolidge was attractively gowned in flowered chiffon in two shades of green, on a white background, made along straight lines with two circular panels falling from each hip. Her neck line was finished off with a circular collar, forming short sleeves. With this she wore a green transparent straw hat of medium size turned up slightly in the back with a plume falling over one side of the crown. Her only ornament was a string of jade beads and she carried a small green beaded bag. The President was dressed in a dark blue serge coat with white flannel trousers and he carried a straw hat.

The President had a cordial hand-clasp for each veteran and guest and Mrs. Coolidge gave a special word and a smile to each.

The members of the Cabinet and their wives passed down the line and then joined the jovial group of notables back of the receiving line. Mrs. Dawes came down the line with service men of her acquaintance and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth arrived early and spent much time greeting the men, passing along the line of wheel chairs and shaking each man by the hand.

Gen. Pershing held informal receptions of his own throughout the afternoon, many of his old comrades in arms among the veterans coming up to greet him. He was most cordial to all of them and was kept busy signing his autograph to the tags of admission each man wore.

After a time President and Mrs. Coolidge came over and joined Gen. Pershing. Just then the band began to play "Onward Christian Soldiers," and Gen. Pershing sang through one verse, to the delight of his audience of President, veterans and guests.

Mrs. Howard L. Hogkins was the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the Continental Chapter, D. A. R., this week.

The Story of Rayon

An Exhibit Displaying the Eight Steps of Its Manufacture Is Presented in the Wash Fabrics Section—This Week

A textile that in the last few years has come to fill a place in nearly every fabric need because it is adaptable to many purposes. This exhibit makes very vivid the simple processes of its manufacture—showing each of the eight steps necessary to transform a slice of spruce wood into a lustrous, gleaming thread.

There Will Be Many Interesting Displays

Thirty bobbins of dyed rayon, together with interesting pieces of the fabric made by the Aberfoyle Manufacturing Company. Two Frocks of rayon that have been laundered a number of times show its practical qualities.

Eight Model Frocks Will Be Worn

Living models wearing Frocks that have been made on becoming patterns, will suggest the possibilities of this fabric—showing not only its beauty but how charmingly it is adapted to present-day modes.

New Rayon-and-Cotton Fabrics on Display

These materials are all novel in design—stripes, checks, plaids, brocaded effects, Jacquard designs and range from 33 to 36 inches in width. Radioux chiffon is one of the most charming of these—36 inches wide, 89c to $1.25 yard.

The "Doublette"

Is a Very Unusual Value at $2.00

Skillfully combining brassiere and girdle, the Doublette as a foundation garment embodies the essentials of the new mode. Of daintily figured pink batiste, it is sufficiently boned to prevent spreading, and eliminates the break at the waistline.

Wide selection of elastic in the girdle provides for perfect comfort.
(Second Floor.)

The "Norwick" Pump

Is New in White Kid

$12.00

The Footwear section is an interesting place indeed, these days when new styles in white footwear are constantly arriving. One of the smartest of these is the Norwick—a Corinne model with tailored bow and the spike heel.

Jefferson Barracks

Items of Social Interest From the Army Post.

Gen. Robert Allen, Chief of Infantry of the United States Army, arrived at Jefferson Barracks Wednesday. A mounted troop escorted him to the quarters of the commanding officer, Col. Moor N. Falls, and the customary salute to the General was fired.

A reception was given Wednesday afternoon at the quarters of Col. and Mrs. Falls for Gen. Allen, from 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock. All the officers and ladies of the post were invited.

The Chamber of Commerce of St. Louis entertained Gen. Allen at luncheon on Wednesday. At 7 o'clock in the evening a Sixth Infantry dinner was given at the Jefferson Barracks Officers' Club. Other officers of the post and a number of Reserve Officers from St. Louis who served with Gen. Allen in the World War attended. During the course of the dinner Gen. Allen spoke on the subject of the Infantry. He departed Thursday night for Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Mrs. Henry B. McIntyre, wife of Major McIntyre of the Medical Corps, stationed at Jefferson Barracks, left Thursday morning for New York City.

Miss Pola Haynes of New York City is the guest of Major and Mrs. C. C. Staples, at their quarters in Jefferson Barracks.

The officers and ladies of Jefferson Barracks gave a reception and dance for Col. and Mrs. Moor N. Falls, Friday night at the Red Cross House on the post.

Lieut. and Mrs. John S. Miller gave a buffet supper at their quarters in Jefferson Barracks on their fifth wedding anniversary, Friday, before the reception and dance for Col. and Mrs. Falls. Those invited from the post were Maj. and Mrs. C. C. Staples, Capt. and Mrs. Thomas S. Sinkler, Capt. and Mrs. Guy L. Hartman, Capt. and Mrs. Harry V. Hand, Capt. Edward L. Moore, Mrs. Knox, who is visiting Mrs. Thomas S. Sinkler, and Miss May Smart. The guests invited from St. Louis were Mr. and Mrs. George Herring, Louis Smutz, Miss Marie Hennessey, Horace Halloran and Mr. and Mrs. Hal Kenaston. Lieut. and Mrs. Edgar M. Fogelsonger and several others were invited from Scott Field, Ill.

Capt. and Mrs. C. J. Gaynor of Jefferson Barracks entertained at the Algonquin Country Club with a dinner dance, May 29. The guests were Col. and Mrs. Moor N. Falls, Maj. and Mrs. Henry B. McIntyre, Maj. and Mrs. Charles Ross, Capt. and Mrs. Robert G. Cousley, Capt. and Mrs. Guy L. Hartman, Capt. Edward L. Moore and Lieut. and Mrs. George J. Engelthaler.

Col. and Mrs. George W. England gave a dinner for Col. and Mrs. Falls Friday evennig, before the reception, at their quarters in Jefferson Barracks. The guests were Col. and Mrs. Ernest G. Bingham, Col. and Mrs. Barker of the Veterans' Hospital, Mrs. Barker's sister, Mrs. Moss; Maj. and Mrs. Charles T. Smart, Capt. and Mrs. Hickey, Capt. and Mrs. George R. Middleton, Lieut. and Mrs. Engelthaler and Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Hammar of 7 Hortense place in St. Louis.

Underselling June Events

The Greatest Sales in St. Louis

BIG 26 EVENTS

"The Big 26"

One Event Each Day

A determination to make June the greatest month in point of sales—to demonstrate our tremendous buying power and to give the people of St. Louis the most wonderful series of sales in our history prompted us to establish 26 Big Selling Events—one to take place each day throughout the month.

Our Buyers and Department Managers have made special trips to the markets and procured wonderful merchandise at most extraordinary price concessions.

The opening events proved that St. Louisans were greatly interested. We sold in Event No. 1 the greatest number of yards of silk ever sold in a single day by our big store.

We offer our apology to those of our patrons who failed to get the color, size or exact article desired in these first events, as the attendance far exceeded our greatest expectations. However, just as soon as more merchandise of the same fine quality can be procured at a price worthy of the underselling events we will repeat the sales.

Watch Papers for Particulars

These Sales Are the Greatest in St. Louis

All the principal departments will take part with a Big Event one day during the month. No matter what your needs may be, you will be able to purchase them at the lowest prices in years. Come every day—there will always be something interesting and at a price that will surprise you. Remember we are setting a new record for underselling and value giving in St. Louis.

The Webster Groves Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held a Flag day meeting at the home of Mrs. E. G. Curtis, 453 Gray avenue, Tuesday afternoon. The regent, Mrs. Frank C. Thompson, presided.

The Rev. Dr. C. D. Meade of the Webster Groves Methodist Church delivered an address on "Democracy." Two groups of songs were sung by Mrs. Arthur Halll, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. C. Stuart.

Those assisting as hostesses were Mrs. C. C. Robinson, Mrs. W. L. Stoecker, Mrs. A. B. Young, Mrs. Jefferson Davis, Mrs. F. U. Whitis and Mrs. Marshall Warren. This was the last meeting of the chapter for the summer. Friday afternoon a large American flag was presented to the Junior High School of Webster Groves by the Webster Groves Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Stoecker made the presentation of the flag. The chapter also took part in the Memorial day exercises Monday morning.

The Mothercraft Class of St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has adjourned for the summer. The last meeting was held Sunday morning, May 30. The class will reconvene the first Sunday in October to resume its work. Following are the officers: Directors—Mrs. Thomas H. Wagoner and Mrs. J. Findley Smart; president, Mrs. Karl H. Hodge; vice-president, Mrs. M. A. Nelson; secretary, Mrs. E. T. Tobey, and treasurer, Mrs. J. A. Berninghaus.

Chairmen of committees: Devotions, Mrs. Ivan Lee Holt; program, Mrs. Frank M. See; hospitality, Mrs. R. D. Drescher; membership, Mrs. R. B. Brooks; cheer, Mrs. Rubens Humphrey, and press and publicity, Mrs. Maurice F. Westoyer.

The next regular meeting of the Barr Study Circle will be held Monday morning at the home of Mrs. S. G. Bryant, of 3310 Halliday avenue. The hour from 11 to 12 will be spent in reading and discussing chapters of M. V. O'Shea's book, "The Child's Needs and His Nature." After luncheon a business meeting will be held, Mrs. W. H. Hipolite, presiding. Children's garments will be completed, this being the last meeting of the season. The first meeting of next season will be held in September at the home of Mrs. F. J. Feineman.

Recently the circle was entertained at the country home of Mrs. Hy. W. Koch at Stone Henge.

The Alpha Delphian Chapter met Tuesday at Cabanne Branch Library. Mrs. B. A. Thompson, the president, presided. "The American Contribution to the World Thought and Development" was the subject of study. Mrs. G.

ought Asthma Would Smother Her

All Night Now. Bronchial Trouble Is Gone.

How to get rid of asthma and severe bronchial coughs is convincingly told in a letter written by Mrs. E. J. Bain, 2008 W. New York St., Indianapolis, Ind. She says:

"I had bronchial asthma so severe that I could not do anything. I was so weak and nervous, it just seemed I would drop at every step. I had no appetite, could not sleep at night, and had to sit in a chair to get breathe. When I would lay down it seemed as if I would smother to death. Since taking Nacor, every symptom of asthma has left me, and I did not have a cold or cough all winter. I can walk quite well, have a good appetite, weigh 159 pounds, sleep fine all night and am stronger than I have been for several years. I owe it all to Nacor and am willing to tell others."

Hundreds of other sufferers from asthma, bronchitis and severe chronic coughs have reported their recovery after years of affliction. Write for letters and a booklet full of valuable information about these stubborn diseases, will be sent free by Nacor Medicine Co., 555 Nacor Life Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind. No matter how serious your case may be, write for this free booklet today. It may give your whole life a new meaning.

B. Lindsay conducted the program. She was assisted by Mrs. Erelin Herrick, Mrs. Frank Kaiser, Mrs. E. Vogel, Mrs. C. B. Hester, Mrs. William Krail, Mrs. George Andrea and Mrs. E. A. Hood.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. Roscoe Bridges, president; Mrs. Frank Kaiser, vice president; Mrs. George Andrea, secretary; Mrs. William Krail, treasurer; Mrs. C. B. Hester; Mrs. Leona Jones and Miss Rose M. Brady, members of the Advisory Board.

The last business meeting of the season of the Mann School Parent-Teacher Association was held May 28. Officers elected are: Mrs. H. E. Johannes, president; Mrs. H. E. Manker, first vice president; Mrs. A. C. Ware, second vice president; Mrs. J. Machacek, corresponding secretary; Mrs. F. A. Becke, recording secretary; Mrs. H. Gerhard, treasurer.

Mrs. Arthur J. Burr of the St. Louis Council of Parents and Teachers installed the officers. The patrons of the school will entertain the Mothers' Circle the evening of June 15. The Mann School Parent-Teacher Association has been invited to a meeting of the Tower Grove District Council at Roosevelt High School, Wednesday, at 8 p. m.

The Junior Girls' Auxiliary of the Jewish Orphans' Home will meet this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the B'Nai Amoona Congregation Academy. As this is the last meeting of the season, a special entertainment has been arranged. Refreshments will be served.

The annual spring festival of the St. Louis Altenheim, 5408 South Broadway, will be held from 3 to 10 p. m., June 13. Groups of children will give fancy dances and the Ladies' Society will hold a bazar and will serve supper from 5 to 7 p. m. The evening will be spent dancing.

The Extension Class in vocal expression of the Harris Teachers' College, presented "The Rivals," May 28. Those in the cast were: Miss Opal A. Wrest, Miss Margaret Lehr, Miss Genevieve Mortland, Miss Helen C. Hyde, Miss Lenore Huber, A. V. Baluka, H. G. Zwinticher, Walter Schroeter, Miss Percy A. Lyons, Frank Ingalls and Lydia B. Gregory. Music was furnished by the Extension Class Orchestra under the direction of Eugene Hahnel.

A regular monthly meeting of the Board of the St. Louis Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, will be held at the residence of Mrs. Robert Lund, 5968 West Cabanne place, Thursday at 10 a. m. A luncheon will follow the business meeting.

The members of the Woman's Association of the Second Presbyterian Church will be guests of one of the members, Mrs. G. A. Green, at her home in Webster Groves.

Corseting the Stout Woman

The Regular-Sized Woman and Little Women Who Are Short and Stout

The Compact

The woman of more than average weight, or who is hard to fit, or who desires a more slender or improved figure, owes it to herself to make the most of the Lane Bryant Compacts, which are scientifically designed to give lines of grace to her figure. The slendering of the figure that is not slender is the art upon which Lane Bryant has founded America's service in the expert corseting of women.

Club Notices And Activities

Tuesday. This will be the final gathering of the association for this season. Mrs. Clay E. Jordan is president.

The Cornelia Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its June meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. J. M. Pfaff, 5700 Bartmer avenue. Miss M. L. Baker was the assistant hostess.

The feature of the afternoon was a playlet entitled "My Lady Dreams," given by Mrs. Eugene Taylor, Mrs. T. N. Harrison, Mrs. Fern Hoffman, Mrs. O. Sauter, Mrs. F. W. Stanford and Mrs. J. A. Tucker of the alumni of Perry School. Miss Martha Ottofy gave piano solos from the composers Rubinstein and Leschetisky.

Delegates and alternates elected to the State convention, to be held in Joplin, were: Mrs. John Zahorsky, Mrs. F. W. Greene, Miss Essie Matlack, Mrs. Ray Burns, Mrs. John Trigg Moss, Mrs. E. F. Jackson, Mrs. Joseph Jamison, Mrs. J. L. Carney, Mrs. Frank Ruf, Mrs. L. M. Ottofy, Mrs. J. M. Pfaff, Mrs. Laurence McDaniel and Miss M. L. Baker. Mrs. J. T. Moss read resolutions memorializing Mrs. Lavinia Crow Reilly, charter member and a former regent of the chapter. Reports of the dedication and opening of Arrow Rock Tavern were given by Mrs. Ray Burns and Miss Essie Matlack.

The St. Louis chapter, Daughters of 1812, will hold its annual meeting Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the residence of Mrs. L. M. Ottofy, 5228 Vernon avenue. Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. J. Richmond and Mrs. W. C. Lewis. Reports from the annual council held in Washington will be given. There will be election of delegates to the State council, to be held in Joplin.

The St. Louis Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will be entertained at the home of Mrs. John C. Roberts on Partridge avenue, at 2 p. m. tomorrow. This will be the last meeting of the chapter until fall. The guests of honor will be the members of Camp No. 731, United Confederate Veterans, and their wives.

The chapter united with the other four chapters, the Veterans and Sons Camp Sterling Price, in the celebration of Jefferson Davis' birthday Thursday at Jefferson Memorial.

The board was entertained at luncheon at the home of Mrs. Walter L. Prehn on Berry road Friday.

The Kirkwood Study Hour Club of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs held the last meeting of the year May 25 at the residence of Mrs. George Baumhoff of Valley Park. The assistant hostesses were Mrs. J. H. Wright, Mrs. R. J. Ralph and Mrs. Frank Knabb, all of Valley Park. After luncheon, the annual play day program was given in the presence of 50 members and guests. The club will not meet again until October.

St. Louis Chapter Hadassah will hold its final meeting of the season Tuesday at Bnai Amoona auditorium, Academy and Vernon avenues. Mrs. M. J. Slonim, who has been active in the work of Hadassah in Florida for some time, will speak. Mrs. William H. Goldman was selected to represent the St. Louis Chapter at the Southwestern Conference in Kansas City last week.

Mrs. Selden P. Spencer will be the speaker at the Vesper service of the Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street, at 4:50 p. m., today. Certificates are to be awarded to those in the Federated Bible Classes who have completed, satisfactorily, the first year of the three-year course in Bible study offered at the Y. W. C. A. Members of the two Bible classes that Mrs. Spencer organized many years ago will be present.

Prince J. E. Blayechettai of Abyssinia will speak at the story hour at 6:30 p. m.

Montebello, the summer camp of the Young Women's Christian Association, near Kimmswick, Mo., on the bluff overlooking the Mississipi River, will be the site of the Inspirational and Bible Conference to be held by the association from June 26 to July 2. Mrs. Albert L. Berry of Tryon, N. C., and author, formerly of St. Louis, a niece of the late Richard M. Scruggs, and a conference and Bible teacher, will be one of the speakers. Dr. James Oliver Buswell, newly elected president of Wheaton College of Wheaton, Ill., will also be one of the speakers.

Early morning bird and nature walks, athletics, stunts and many unusual features will make the stay a happy and healthful one. Information and registration at Central Building, Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street.

The Sylvan Delphian Chapter held its regular meeting at 10 a. m. at Sherman Community Center, May 26. The following officers were elected: Mrs. M. G. Keown, president; Mrs. Edwin Pitzman, vice president; Miss Shirly Hall, secretary; Mrs. Fred Roth, treasurer; Mrs. Scott Miller, delegate-at-large; Mrs. Alma Woods, Mrs. W. L. Bohmencamp, Miss Carrie Landwehr, Advisory Board. The final meeting of the season will be Wednesday at 9:30 a. m., at Sherman Community Center.

The last regular meeting of St. Louis Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was held May 28, at Jefferson Memorial. Capt. R. A. Byers, U. S. A., spoke on the citizens' military training camps; a report was given by Miss Margaret Jackson of her duties as page at the National Congress, D. A. R.; Mrfs. Willard Bartlett gave a group of songs, with Mrs. W. M. Weatherford at the piano, and Miss Udolpha Phillips presented two readings.

A greeting was read from the D. A. R. Chapter of London, England, and an announcement was made of a new chapter which will be organized in Korea by Mrs. Henry W. Lampe, missionary of the West Presbyterian Church of this city, who will return to her foreign home following a furlough spent in this country during the past year. Flourishing chapters now are functioning in China, the Philippine Islands, Hawaii, France, Alaska, Panama Canal Zone and Cuba. Chapters are organized in every state of the Union to the number of 2164, with a membership of 156,000.

Election of representatives to the State Conference, to be held in October at Joplin, Mo., resulted as follows: Regent, Mrs. Howard Bailey; delegates, Mrs. Arthur M. Wilson, Mrs. O. S. Wilfley, Mrs. Shelby H. Curlee and Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee. Alternates, Mrs. Walter Fabricius, Mrs. John E. Ritchey, Mrs. Joseph M. Long, Mrs. James H. McCabe, Mrs. W. M. Weatherford, Mrs. A. W. Southward, Mrs. J. D. Marshall, Miss Clara L. Tufts, Mrs. Henry H. Denison and Mrs. Louis E. Melick.

The St. Louis chapter will present the name of Mrs. Arthur M. Wilson for the office of State treasurer of the organization at the conference.

The Civic Council will meet Tuesday at noon on the roof garden of Hotel Chase. Mrs. Mamie Ousley, former Mayor of St. James, Mo., will be the principal speaker and will talk on "Activities of the Women of Rural Missouri." George A. Pickens of Jefferson City, Mo., will speak on "A Greater Missouri." Mrs. Philip M. Moore is chairman; Mrs. N. A. McMillan is vice chairman; Mrs. Oscar Johnson is chairman of finance, and Mrs. Virgil Rue is secretary. Those interested may attend the Tuesday meeting.

St. Louis Tercentenary Shakspeare Society has issued invitations for a 7 o'clock dinner Friday, at the Garden Theater in honor of Thomas Wood Stevens and artists of the Goodman Memorial Theater, Chicago, who will appear this season at the Garden Theater in a cycle of Shakspeare comedies. Mrs. Charles H. Hoyle is hospitality chairman.

The annual outing of Tercentenary was held last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Alfred Carr in Glencoe, Mo.

Delphi Delphian Chapter will have its last meeting of the season Monday, at Community Center. Officers for the coming year will be elected.

At the last meeting in May, "Italian Painters" was the subject for discussion led by Mrs. Alice Torrance. Text reports were given by the president, Mrs. R. E. Singleton, Mrs. G. M. Chapman, Mrs. M. K. Gillespie, Mrs. W. T. Brown, Mrs. Bertha Voit, Mrs. A. Melsheimer, Mrs. A. Schueddig.

Enjoy June with the Most Wonderful of all Vacations in the OZARKS
"The Land of a Million Smiles"

PACK up the grips! Stuff in the swimming suit, the fishing tackle and grab the golf clubs! For it's June—time to enjoy the most wonderful of all vacations in this alluring region of cool, tumbling streams and mirror-like lakes in a setting of heavily-foliaged, friendly mountains where refreshingly cool nights fit you for a full day of Ozark sports: —fishing, boating, swimming, exploring, hiking, horse-back riding, golf, tennis and motoring over beautiful scenic highways.

In spite of the joyous opportunities of the Ozarks, vacations here are much more economical than in most resort regions. And it is only a short night's ride or an easy day's drive for the Middle-West.

Write today for the new, beautiful Ozark book, describing and picturing nearly a hundred resorts and resort towns of the Ozark Playgrounds Association. It's FREE!

Summer at ~ MIAMI

YOU who have waited all your life to visit Florida, but could not get away in the winter—here's your opportunity. Spend your summer vacation at Miami. Enjoy the varied attractions of the Summer Resort of the Southland—its pleasant days and nights, cooled by the trade winds from the Gulf Stream—its surf-bathing, motorboating, golfing, dustless motoring, and the best fishing in the world. Get the thrill of the wonderful growth that has caused Miami to be known as the "Magic City."

It Costs Little to Come to Miami

Excursion rates are in effect on steamships and railroads. Take a sea-trip vacation unexcelled on one of the luxurious ocean steamers running direct to Miami from New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. Or ride on one of the fast De Luxe trains from Mid-western and Eastern points over the usual Florida routes. Consult your nearest ticket office.

It Costs Little to Stay in Miami

More than 7,000 hotel rooms are available at Special Summer Rates. Hotels, large and small, are ready to accommodate you comfortably at small cost. Single, $3 to $5 per day; double, per person, $2.50 to $5.00. Many accommodations at even less.

To Montreal Via Hudson River and Adirondack Mountains

TRIP RICH IN SCENIC BEAUTY

Allegheny Mountains, Bear Mountain Bridge, Storm King Highway, Lake George and 1000 Miles in Canada Among Features of 2660-Mile Tour.

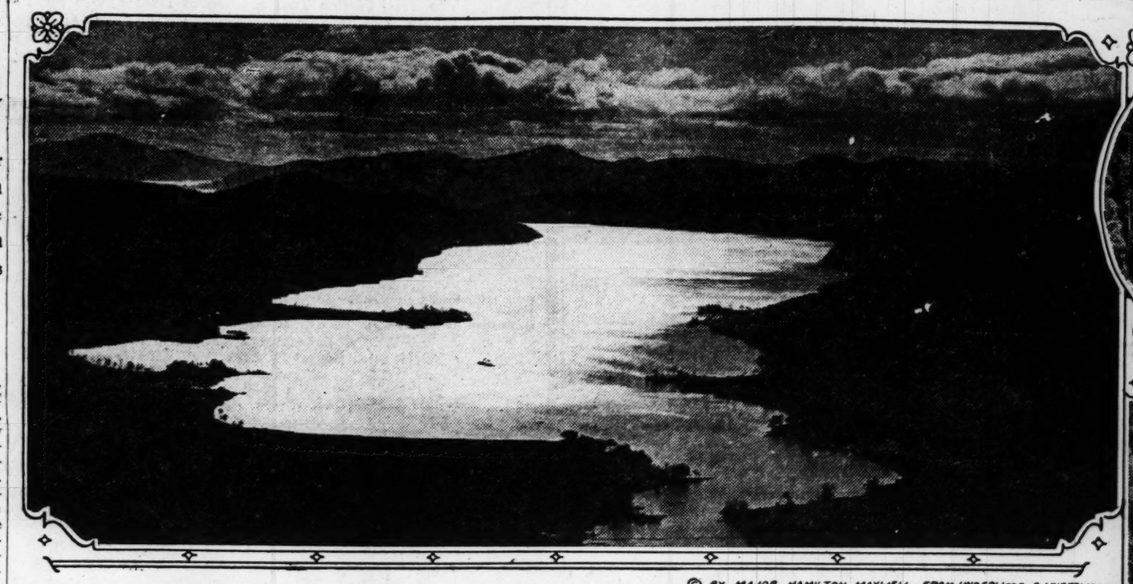
By JAMES SPENCER,
Automobile Editor.

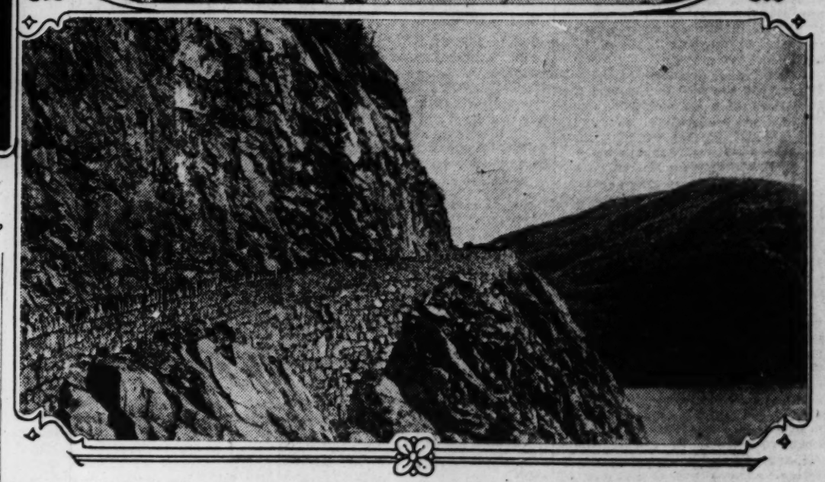
A 2660-mile tour, starting at St. Louis and traversing some of the finest scenery in America, may be made in two weeks by cramming, may be done comfortably in three weeks, and is a continual delight if made in a month. The scenic high lights are the Alleghenies, the Hudson River, the Catskill Mountains, Lake George and Lake Champlain, the Adirondack Mountains and Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto, and the country between these three Canadian cities. It may be extended to include Quebec and the French Canadian country. The roads in the United States part of the tour are all paved. Those traveled in Canada are paved or graveled with few exceptions.

St. Louis to New York.

The tour starts over the Free Bridge and follows the National Old Trails route (Illinois Highway No. 11 and Indiana No. 3) through Collinsville, Highland, Effingham, Marshall, Terre Haute, Indianapolis, Richmond, Dayton, Columbus, Wheeling and Uniontown to Hagerstown, Md., where it turns north on Pennsylvania Highway No. 13 to Chambersburg. In Pennsylvania and Maryland, this route goes over the mountains, with many beautiful views. From Chambersburg, the tour follows the Lincoln Highway to Philadelphia and on through Trenton, New Brunswick and Elizabeth to Newark.

At Newark, one has choice of carrying to New York or continuing north along the Hudson River.





© BY MAJOR HAMILTON MAXWELL, FROM UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

On the way to Montreal. Left—Lake George and its mountains, as viewed from an airplane. Above, at right—Bear Mountain Bridge and vista up the Hudson river. Below, at right—Storm King highway as it clings to shelf on mountain precipice, 380 feet above the Hudson river.

If one wishes to avoid New York congestion, yet see something of the city and some of the cities and villages along the Albany Post road, he can ferry at Engelwood to Dyckman street, New York, and go north on the east bank of the Hudson through Yonkers, Tarrytown and Ossining to Peekskill.

Storm King Highway.

At Annisville, two miles north of Peekskill, a concrete road goes through a military reservation to a bold, mountainous point known as Anthony's Nose, which juts into the Hudson River. There one can recross the river on the Bear Mountain bridge, from which are splendid views up and down the river. This is a toll bridge, open for travel all day and all night.

Beyond Bear Mountain is West Point, with its military academy, its picturesque site and buildings. Then comes the Storm King highway—one of the world's finest scenic roads—is about four miles long and follows the shore of the river at the north end of the Highlands. Part of this magnificent road circles the face of Storm King, a mountain that towers almost vertically above the water. It was necessary to blast the roadway out of the rock, so the highway traverses a shelf of rock 380 feet above the river.

The Catskill Mountains.

At Newburgh, about half way between New York and Albany, there are wonderful views up and down the river and of the Catskill and Ramapo Mountains. Beyond Newburgh, are numerous towns and villages on the way to Roundout and Kingston, whence one may take a number of side trips into the Catskill Mountains, several of whose peaks reach elevations of 3500 to 4200 feet. Continuing north from Kinston through Saugherties, the highway goes through the foothills of the Catskills to Albany.

Going north from Albany, one has choice of two routes—one through Schenectady, the other through Troy to Saratoga Springs, which at one time was the country's most famous watering place. Passing through Glen Falls, one soon reaches the foot of Lake George, one of the world's loviest bodies of water.

Lovely Lake George.

The lake winds among the mountains of the Southeastern Adirondacks, its glimmering surface broken by many islands. It alone is worth motoring a thousand miles to see.

From Lake George there is choice of two routes. One goes around Schroon Lake to Elizabethtown and is the more direct and rather pretty.

The other is among the world's most picturesque highways. It runs from Chestertown across Hague Mountain to Fort Ticonderoga, skirts the shore of Lake Champlain through the pretty village of Westport then turns inland through the mountains to Elizabethtown. The views are truly magnificient, both from the mountain and from the shore of the lake across to the Green Mountains, in Vermont.

Fort Ticonderoga will be recalled as the scene of Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys' greatest exploit during the Revolutionary War. Built in 1756, the fort played a prominent part in the French and Indian War also. It has been partially restored.

The ruins of Fort St. Frederic, still stand on a commanding point of land on the west shore of Lake Champlain, some seven miles from the station of Crown Point. This fort was built by the French in 1731, and was taken by the British in 1759.

Lake Placid and Ausable Chasm.

From Elizabethtown, one motors westward to Keene, then north along the east branch of the Ausable River to Jay, where he can swing up the west branch of the Ausable to Lake Placid, which lies 2000 feet above the sea with heavily timbered mountains slipping into its clear waters, while the reflection of Mount Whiteface, 4872 feet high, darkens the shimmering surface. Lake Placid has become one of the East's notable resorts. A special attraction for hikers is the climb over the South Meadows Trail or via Indian Pass to the summit of Mount Marcy, 5344 feet high, the loftiest peak in the Adirondacks.

One can continue on into the Saranac Lake country, then return to Jay, and go north again down the Ausable River to Keeseville and Ausable Chasm, where the Ausable leaps down 70 feet to race furiously along the bed of a two-mile canyon and foam and fret its way into Lake Champlain.

A short side tripe takes one to Port Kent, on the shore of Lake Champlain, which here is about 10 miles wide. There are superb views across the Lake to Burlington and the Vermont mountains. Northward tohe route runs to Bluff Point, Plattsburg and Chazy and

ROUTE OF SUNDAY TRIP TO MORSE'S MILL AND DE SOTO

Distance Is 103 Miles, 64 of Them Over Concrete and the Rest Gravel in Good Condition.

One of the most attractive of the weekly series of short Sunday tours that are being prepared for the Joint Touring Bureau of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Automobile Club of Missouri, by Robert H. Hall of the Press Bureau and George E. Drummond of the Touring Bureau of the club, is that to Morse Mill, on the Big River.

Morse Mill, so named because of a waterpower grist mill which for years has been in operation there, is fast becoming known as an ideal one-day picnicking and resort place. Nature has made ample provision for the holding of outings there with many shady nooks along the banks of Big River. Here one may have a basket picnic, or, if not so inclined, nearby resorts, catering to one-day tourists, furnish excellent meals.

The building of a dam across Big River near the mill has caused the formation of a large pool of clear water, ideal for bathing. Recently, too, several parties of fishermen have been successful in angling.

Leave City on No. 30.

The mileage from St. Louis to Morse Mill and return, as charted by the speedometer of the official scout car of the Automobile Club of Missouri, is 103.4 miles. Of this distance 64 miles are of concrete construction, while 38 miles are of gravel.

One leaves St. Louis over highway No. 30 (Gravois road) to Fenton. To this point, and shortly beyond the bridge over the Meramec River, a distance of 15 miles, the highway is concreted. Thereafter, through High Hill, House Springs and to Cedar Hill, No. 30 is of gravel. The road has recently been resurfaced by the Highway Department and is in excellent condition. There are a number of lengthy hills encountered on this highway from the tops of which excellent views of the country for miles around are to be had.

From Cedar Hill the county road is of gravel construction to Morse Mill. (Avoid the turn to the right into No. 30 about half a mile beyond Cedar Hill.) On the return trip follow the county road to De Soto, from which point the autoist takes highway No. 21, also of gravel. No. 21 is followed to a point 11 miles south of Festus, where concrete highway No. 9 intersects No. 21. Straight into St. Louis, a distance of 35 miles, on concrete, with the exception of a three-quarter mile slag detour at Peveley, which is unusually rough due to heavy traffic, over No. 9.

Log of Trip.

The following log of the trip, as compiled by Drummond, gives the mileage between various points on the trip:

0.0—Automobile Club of Missouri, 4228 Lindell boulevard, west on Lindell.
0.3—West Pine boulevard, turn right.

Route of Adirondacks-Montreal-Toronto Tour

Map showing route to Montreal and back via Ottawa and Toronto to St. Louis.

TO MONTREAL VIA HUDSON RIVER AND THE ADIRONDACKS

Rouse's Point, on the Canadian line.

Motorists will find the custom's officers most courteous, most of the old annoying formalities have been done away with. However, motorists are cautioned, before crossing the line, to have their registration certificates corresponding with the numbers on their license plates.

A 30-day permit will be given without charge to motorists who contemplate touring through Canada. If more than a 30-day stay is to be made, it will be necessary to take out a bond.

To Montreal and Ottawa.

From the boundary line, it is 45 miles through St. Jacques le Mineur and St. Philippe to Montreal, the metropolis of Canada and a city full of interesting people and things. Montreal is 410 miles from New York and 1450 miles from St. Louis.

Good roads radiate from Montreal in all directions. The 180-mile highway to Quebec offers a trip that one certainly should take if the time can be spared.

Side Trips From Quebec.

From Quebec, one can motor over the new Simeon Highway, which links the famous Saguenay district to Quebec. It runs part of the time through a broken and virtually virgin country, with many scenes of typical French-Canadian life. Three world famous places are met along this road—Montmorency Falls, 274 feet high; the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre, and Point a Pic, a popular resort. Theer is also the highway to Rimouski, along the south shore of the St. Lawrence River.

Turning toward Toronto, one may go over the lake shore route through Cornwall, Prescott, Kingston and Belleville, or may turn north at Vaudreuil and, traversing a distinctly French-Canadian agricultural region, enter the Province of Ontario at Point Fortune, then follow more or less closely the winding of the Ottawa River for 70 miles of interesting scenery to Ottawa, the capital of all Canada and truly a city beautiful.

Scenic Trips From Montreal.

Returning to Montreal, one has choice of three routes to Toronto. One is along the north bank of the St. Lawrence River. This is all-weather.

Another route turns north at Vaudreuil and, traversing a distinctly French-Canadian agricultural region, enters Ontario Province at Point Fortune, then follows more or less closely the winding Ottawa River for 70 miles of interesting scenery to Ottawa, Capital of Canada, and truly a city beautiful.

The third route runs inland through fine farming country as far as Grenville, then follows the north shore of the Ottawa River and goes via Hull to Ottawa. The last part of the trip, with the Ottawa River in sight most of the time, makes fascinating motoring. This route is likely to become the popular one from Montreal to the Dominion Capital.

An immense territory, dotted with lakes and fishing streams is available over the highway from Montreal to Mont Laurier, traversing the Laurentian Mountains, whose average height is 1500 to 1600 feet with some peaks as high as 2500 fet. From first to last mile this is a scenic route.

From Ottawa, one may drop south to Prescott on the St. Lawrence River and opposite Ogdensburk, N. Y., center of several paved highways to New York State cities. Continuing, one motors through Brockville and Gananoque, the latter opposite Clayton, N. Y., and a gateway to the Thousand Islands.

Along the Lake Shore.

Beyond Gananoque lies Kingston, gateway to the Rideau chain of lakes. Kingston stands on the site of old Fort Frontenac, built by the French in 1673. It is a modern city, but quaint stone towers and buildings recall the old days.

There are fine views of the deeply serrated Bay of Quinte around Deseronto. Belleville is a pretty city on the Bay of Quinte, at the month of the Moira River.

A side trip takes one across the bay to Prince Edward County, a peninsula jutting into Lake Ontario. Near Picton, on a long arm of the bay, is Lake-on-the-Mountain, a charming little body of water, without apparent inlet, nestling on the very edge of a 100-foot cliff. Another side trip takes one into the beautiful Kawantha lakes district.

Toronto and Ontario.

Then, 113 miles farther on, is Toronto, a city of more than half a million population, finely located on the shore of Lake Ontario.

From Toronto it's a very pretty drive of 42 miles along the shore of the lake to Hamilton, a city of 120,000 people, situated on a land-locked bay with a fine beach a mile or two away.

From Hamilton one can follow a route, mostly paved and the rest graveled, via Brantford, Woodstock, London, Chatham, Tilbury, Maidstone and Windsor to Detroit. Pretty scenery and good camps make this part of the trip attractive. From Detroit and home over Michigan Highway No. 1 7to Benton Harbor on Lake Michigan, south on No. 11 to the Michigan line, then No. 43 to Gary, Ind., south on No. 8 to Merriville, west on the Lincoln Highway to Steger, Ill., then No. 1 to Momence, No. 17 to Kankakee, No. 25 south to Effingham, then No. 11 to the Free Bridge.

A month ago, the direct route from Montreal to Toronto was all-weather.

Over the route given above it is about 1040 miles from St. Louis to New York; 410 from New York to Montreal; about 410 from Montreal via Ottawa to Toronto, and around 800 from Toronto back to St. Louis. The trip from Montreal to Quebec and back will add 360 miles. Fast time can be made on the 1040 miles to New York and on the 800 miles from Toronto back home, making it possible to linger amid the beautiful scenery between New York and Montreal and between Montreal and Toronto.

While camping places are not as numerous in the East as in the Middle West and West, motor campers will find plenty of places to stop overnight. There are also many farm houses and private homes in the smaller cities and the towns which offer overnight accommodations at reasonable prices, and there are literally thousands of summer hotels and resorts throughout the East.

Many Truck Fleets in California.

There are 885 fleets of 10 or more motor trucks operating in California.

Glycerine Used on Pole

The dirigible "Norge" flight to the Pole, used glycerine in its motors as freeze solution. This fact vealed in an interview with Oscar Omdahl of the Navy Aviation Corps and engineer on the "Norge."

TIRE THAT WAS ON CAR OF RACE WINNER SHOWN HERE

One of the Firestone gum-dipped balloon tires that was on the car that Frank Lockhart drove to victory in the 500-mile Indianapolis race Monday is on display at the St. Louis Firestone branch, 3203 Locust boulevard. W. G. Sabine, manager of the local Firestone branch, said this was the second year that balloon tires were used in this speedway event, the first time being at the Indianapolis race last year, when Peter de Paola made a new world's record at an average speed of 101.13 miles per hour. Frank Lockhart, who won this year's race, averaged 95.88 m. p. h. for the 402½ miles when the race was called on account of rain. Not only did Lockhart drive the full distance on Firestone balloons without a change, but all winners who participated "in the money" also rode on Firestone balloons.

This Indianapolis race was the ninth time that the winners rode on Firestone tires.

Today's Chrysler "70"—changed in no way except new lower prices which save you $50 to $200—is more than ever the car of public preference.

Long lived; characteristic Chrysler beauty; compact to meet today's traffic needs; roomy for comfort and luxury; easiest to handle on any road; flashing pick-up; 70 miles an hour plus; safe—little wonder that none of its more than hundred thousand of owners who have driven their cars thousands upon thousands of miles will ever willingly go back to the less modern type of cars.

And now with its savings of $50 to $200, Chrysler "70"—the identical car in every single respect that has won such universal enthusiastic admiration—is beyond all doubt the best motor car investment in its class.

We are eager to demonstrate its outstanding superiorities.

INDORSE AUTO SHOW AT ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION

Dealers Promise to Display Fall Models on Large Scale in September.

The participation of the automobile industry of St. Louis in the St. Louis Industrial Exposition, to be held at the Flying Field in Forest Park Sept. 4 to 19, will be a showing for the first time in the United States of the new models of closed and open cars, production of which in most factories will begin Aug. 1. Several group meetings of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association have been held and the promise to show at the Industrial Exposition was unanimous at each of the meetings.

The automobile show will be a separate division of the exposition. Cars, trucks and trailers will be shown in three large decorated tents. Each of these tents to be 100 feet wide by 300 feet long. They will be floored and the decorations will be placed inside and outside.

The automobile display is to be conducted exactly as is the annual Automobile Show of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and Capt. Robert E. Lee will be manager. An advisory committee consists of Edward Weber, of the Weber Motor Car Co.; Guy W. Oliver, of the Oliver-Cadillac Co., and Walter H. Vesper, of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co.

UUp to yesterday morning the following firms had indicated their intention to display their fall models in the automobile section of the exposition: Autocar Sales & Service Co., Benjamin Motor Co., G. M. Berry, Inc., Berry Motor Car

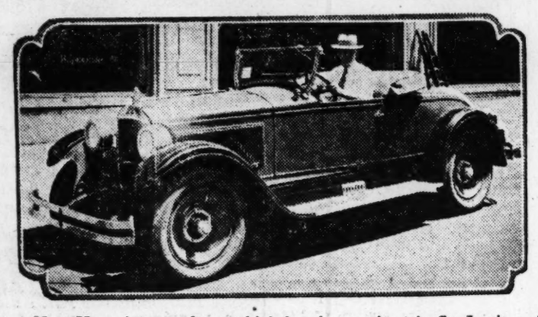
What's New in Cars



New Hup eight roadster which has just arrived in St. Louis and is being shown by the Weber Implement & Automobile Co.. It is a speedy, colorful car.

Blue and Gold for Official Car.

IN CONNECTION with the Sesquicentennial celebration in Philadelphia, the city of Philadelphia has just purchased for Mayor Kendrick a Pierce-Arrow enclosed-drive landau, with 100 horsepower engine.

A combination of blue and gold is the color scheme. The exterior is finished in Daytona blue, with belt and fenders in black and stripings in gold leaf. The exterior hardware is in brass and gold.

Since this is a formal car, the interior carries out the color design of the exterior. A blue broadcloth with gold stripe is used for the rear compartment upholstery. Narrow gold braid is used for door paneling and below the division window. All interior hardware is gold plated. A gold clock is so placed in the rear compartment that it can be seen by day or night.

Palm Beach Diana 8 Roadster.

THE "Palm Beach Special," the newest addition to the Diana eight group of roadsters, is announced by the Moon Motor Car Co. It has brass instead of nickel-plated fitments. The radiator shell is of polished brass, as are also the head-lamps, cowl and tail lights. This Diana is the first car to have brass in the radiator shell. The body finish is of coach blue medium with red striping. Equipment includes two-tone green leather upholstery, Burbank top with Burbank side curtains to match; sea green Diana statuette; newly designed headlamps; cowl and tail lights with polished brass finish, special brass courtesy light; arm rests in the rear seat compartment, deck rails, step plates, windshield side arms and radiator shell are of polished brass. It has the distinctive Diana lanceolate panel on hood and cowl.

F. N. Car Has Odd Front Brakes.

FRONT internal brakes expanded by a ball moved betweeen two inclined shoes or jaws by a push rod in the center of the wheel pivot are a feature of the F. N. car, made in Belgium. The push rod is actuated by a screw thread. The design is said to do away with the need of universal joints in the brake mechanism. The F. N., which is rated at 10 horsepower, has been timed at better than 70 miles an hour. It has a 4-cylinder engine of only 2.75 bore and 3.94 inches stroke, with double inlet and exhaust valves.

Rear Wheels of Steyr 6 Independent.

EUROPEAN engineers are watching the behavior in owners' hands of the six-cylinder Steyr car, made in Austria, because of its novel spring suspension. The front springs are ordinary type semi-eliptics, but extra long. A transverse spring in the rear is combined with independent wheels. It is said that this spring arrangement damps out any tendency of the car to roll or pitch and results in astonishingly steady running even on rough roads.

Novel Features on Belgian Car.

A BELGIAN car with four-cylinner sleeve valve engine of novel design, that has won the praise of European experts is the 10.4 horsepower Imperia. Its engine has a bore of 2.67 inches and stroke of 3.94 inches. The sleeves surround only part of the circumference of the cylinders. So there is nowhere more than one thickness of sleeve, though there is one exhaust and one inlet slide. The frame is very much pinched in front to permit sharp turning, but is wide in rear. The wheelbase is 106 inches. Magneto and battery ignition, thermo syphon cooling and total weight of only 1800 pounds, are other features. The car is supposed to do 40 miles to the gallon of gasoline and is good for more than 60 miles an hour. The sports model sells for around $2100 in England.

FORTY OF MICHIGAN STATE PARKS OPENED FOR SEASON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., June 5.—Forty of the Michigan State parks that have been developed are now officially opened to tourists for the season. Nearly half of these are in the lakes and woods region adjoining Detroit.

To assist tourists, the parks department has prepared a descriptive folder giving the frontage of parks on lakes and rivers, bathing facilities, extent and nature of wooded areas, and a statement of the outstanding features of each park. On one side of the folder is a map of Michigan showing all the parks and the roads by which they can be reached.

The folder will be distributed through Chambers of Commerce, automobile clubs, tourist information bureaus and park custodians.

All conveniences, such as tables, seats, stoves and good roads, have been built in each park.

The conservation department is seeking additional land, mostly in the copper country, fronting on Lake Superior. Those lands, however, are available to tourists now, being especially interesting to those who seek the primitive.

CHRYSLER BREAKS ROAD RECORD IN SCOTLAND

What is said to be a motoring record for England and Scotland was set recently with a Chrysler six by J. D. S. Inglis of Edinburgh, when he beat the regular train time from London to Aberdeen, according to the Edinburgh Scotsman of April 25. Inglis is reported to have made the 547-mile run in 12¼ hours' actual running time, apart from stopping 12 minutes, mainly for gasoline.

TELLS PART SERVICE PLAYS IN CAR SALES

Kellerman Speaks at Meeting of Managers of Maintenance Departments.

Joseph N. Kellerman, sales manager of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., was the principal speaker at the monthly meeting of the Service Managers' Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association at the Claridge Hotel. His topic was "How the Service Department Can Help the Sales Department." Kellerman said that too frequently department heads were inclined to consider sales and service as separate and distinct. In his opinion, they belong together and are inseparable, so service department men should do all they can to familiarize themselves with everything that constitutes good sales practice. He said the more they acquired the sales slant, the better service men and service executives they would become. The inefficient, poorly functioning, carelessly run service department can drive as many customers out the back door as new car salesmen can bring in the front.

Until seven or eight years ago, he said, little thought was given to the importance of the service department as a factor in new car sales, and proprietors of many big automobile institutions overlooked the fact that it frequently required as much sales ability to sell the customer on the justice and fairness of a $35 or $40 repair bill, which he was averse to paying, as to sell the same man a new car.

He emphasized that while many service departments of the large distributors are anything but profitable from an investment standpoint and are operated for the convenience and satisfaction of new car owners, these same owners frequently take exception to maintenance charges which are absolutely fair. In such cases a competent service man or manager with an understanding of sales values can quickly straighten out the situation by telling the facts in an attractive manner and selling the owner on the justness and necessity of paying a proper and fair amount for all work that comes under the heading of "automobile maintenance."

Kellerman said that many a new car sale was made impossible for some of the following reasons: Carelessness by the service manager or man who contracts with the owner; ill temper; intolerance and lack of patience with the customer's viewpoint; lack of understanding of the customer's reaction to various derangements and conditions which develop in his automobile.

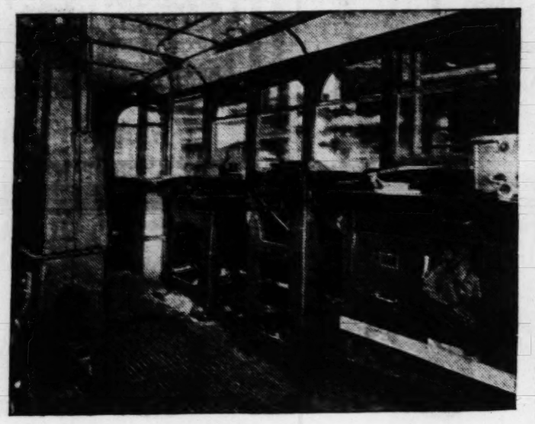
George D. Carter of the Black & Decker Manufacturing Co., explained interestingly the proper and improper use of automotive machinery and tools manufactured by his firm. Many questions were asked of Carter.

The meeting was attended by 72 managers of service departments and shop foremen. The chairman of the bureau, W. C. Miller, presided.

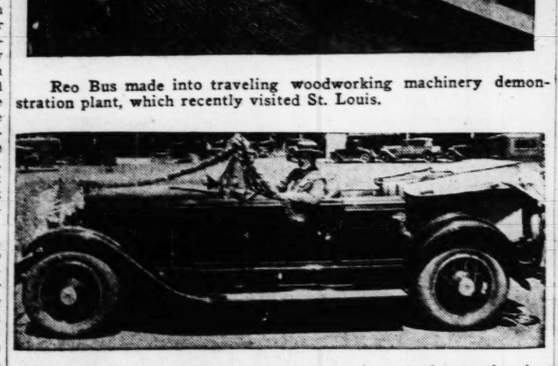
Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, told of some of the topics to be discussed June 1-4 at the meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers. Among these were "Safer Automobile Headlights," in which glare would be eliminated and orange glass screen filters used to eliminate blue rays, also a new drop center balloon tire rim, which would eventualy be adopted generally.

Chairman Miller read a letter from the Better Chauffeurs' and Garagemen Bureau, an organization of colored drivers and shop helpers, in asking for speakers from among the service managers.

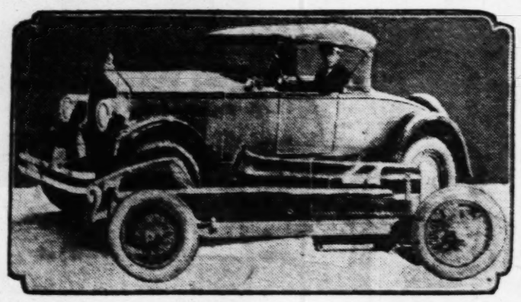
Of Interest on Auto Row



Reo Bus made into traveling woodworking machinery demonstration plant, which recently visited St. Louis.



Reginald Denny, movie actor, who was given the key to the city the past week by Mayor Miller, photographed in the custom-built Cadillac phaeton which he used while in St. Louis.



Frank Lockhart, winner of the 500-mile Indianapolis automobile race, at the wheel of his personal car, a Moon roadster that he bought at El Paso, Tex., during a race meet on the Juarez, Mex., track, in which he won three races. Beside his Moon is his racing car.

NOVEL AUTO SIDE BUMPER

A novel side bumper, which protected the rear wheels and running board as well as the rear of the car, was seen at the Rickenbacker St. Louis Co. the past week on a Rickenbacker eight from Michigan. The side bumper consists of a strip of spring steel, about two inches wide, hinged at one end to the rear bumper, extending past the wheel, then dropping to the level of the running board and running along its outer edge, then bending in around the front end of the running board to be bolted to the frame. With such a side bumper, a car is safeguarded from being sideswiped. When a rear tire must be changed, a bolt midway in the side bumper is loosened, and the bar of iron is swung out of the way, pivoting on the hinge in the rear bumper. This type of bumper has been used on some custom built cars, and is made by the Angle Bumper Co. of Pontiac, Mich.

MACHINERY DEMONSTRATED IN SHOP BUILT IN BUS

Illustrating the trend toward utilization of motor busses in industry, a Reo bus, which had been made into a traveling wood working machinery display shop, attracted much attention recently in front of the Kardell Motor Car Co., Reo distributer. This bus is sent around the country by a company which makes wood working machinery, to demonstrate the machinery at mills and at the places of business of buyers. It has its own dynamo, driven off the transmission and suplying power to operate a band saw, planers, jig saws and other machinery.

Fewer Automobile Fatalities.

Nineteen cities of more than 100,000 population had fewer motor fatalities in 1925 than in 1924.

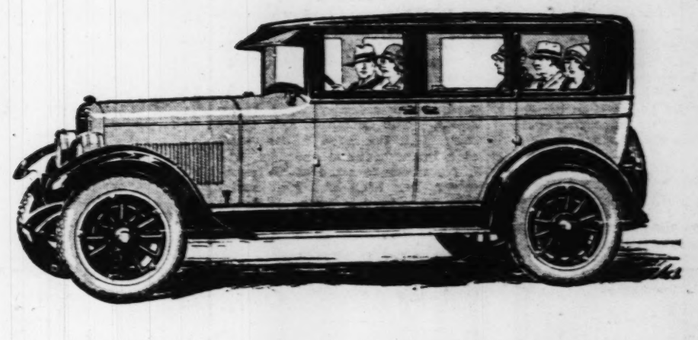
Buy a Car That Keeps You Happy



Here It Is!

ANY number of men who were aviators in the War now own Cleveland Sixes—simply because aviation gave them a good understanding of real engineering, and a love for sweet-running powerful motors.

One thing is sure—Cleveland Six could never win all the performance records it wins, or stand up as it does, or hold the friends it holds, if it were not for the wonderful way the car is built.

Quality goes all the way in every step of designing, in every feature of engineering, in every phase of workmanship. Cleveland's strapping big motor is of advanced "L" head design—smooth as smooth can be, and quiet as a whisper—a mechanism that keeps itself in the pink of condition by utilizing the full benefits of high-pressure lubrication.

And think of the convenience of this car's famous "One Shot" System of centralized chassis lubrication! At a mere press of your heel on a plunger, the "One Shot" System automatically feeds fresh, clean oil to the various bearings and bushings throughout the chassis—all at once!

In eye-value, performance-value, comfort-value, money-value, in every way you judge an automobile, Cleveland Six stands right up front in its price class—a car you can keep and prize for a long, long time. Come in. There is a ride all reserved for you.

JOINT TOURING BUREAU PRAISED BY MOTORISTS

Demand for Maps at Small Cost and Free Information About Roads Increases.

The demand for road information and maps is increasing rapidly at the Joint Touring Bureau maintained by the Post-Dispatch and the Automobile Club of Missouri on the ground floor of the Post-Dispatch building. Motorists from almost every state in the Union have called for the free information on roads and touring conditions all over the country, and have expressed gratification at being able to obtain excellent road maps so cheaply.

As has been told, a special free map service is given through the bureau by the Automobile Club of Missouri to its own members and to members of all American Automobile Association Clubs. But these maps are available to the public at nominal cost.

Road information is free to everyone, and the charge for Post-Dispatch maps is small.

Individual State road maps, at 10 cents each or 12 cents by mail; maps of the roads for 50 miles around St. Louis at 20 cents or 24 cents by mail, and touring guides, at 25 cents or 31 cents by mail, are the backbone of the map service to the general public.

One guide has maps of the roads of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York.

Another maps the roads of Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan.

Another guide covers the roads of Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, New England, Delaware, New Jersey, Virginia and West Virginia and the Province of Ontario, Canada.

Another covers the roads of Maryland, the Virginias, the Carolinas, Kentucky and Tennessee, Georgia, Florida and Mississippi.

AUTO SHOW AT INDIANAPOLIS DURING RACE WEEK PROPOSED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 5.—A national motor show, to be held annually in May during the week of the 500-mile automobile race at Indianapolis, with the infield of the big brick oval as a setting, an exposition which would be primarily for the consumer and would add immeasurably to the color and picturesqueness of the meet, is suggested by H. H. Brooks, general sales director of the Marmon Motor Car Co.

"The New York and Chicago shows are par excellence trade expositions," he says, "though well patronized by the consumer. The national summer show I have in mind would supplement these displays and would be dedicated to the motorist himself.

"The crowds that gather for the race number approximately 150,000, and this attendance is the largest at any sporting event in America," says Brooks. "The additional attraction of a motor show would swell the attendance by at least 50 per cent, and would draw motor enthusiasts, dealers, manufacturers, engineers and designers from all parts of the United States."

Average Time Sale Note Less.

The average note on new cars sold on time was $528 last year, as compared with $810 in 1920.

Here Is Real Circulating Library

A Chevrolet chassis, fitted with a special "library" body holding hundreds of books on shelves, is entering its sixth year of service with the Evanston, Ill., public library, taking books to suburbs during the summer months when school branch libraries are closed.

The visits of the "circulating branch" are eagerly awaited by hundreds of children and adults in communities near Evanston, according to Miss Ida F. Wright, librarian of Evanston.

On Auto Row

NIEKAMP ELECTED BY ACCESSORY MEN

GEORGE H. NEIKAMP of the Beck & Cormitt Iron Co., was elected president of the Automotive Accessory Association of St. Louis to succeed Dan F. Hyland, who had served two terms in that office, at the annual meeting of the association, held at the Marquette Hotel, May 28.

Other officers elected were: Frank Quan of the Fred Campbell Auto Supply Co., vice president, and J. K. Courim, Black & Decker Manufacturing Co.; G. G. Giese, Autoquip Corporation; Dan F. Hyland, Stewart-Warner Products Corporation, and Charles A. Marien, H. & H. Machine Co., directors.

Robert E. Lee was elected for the eighteenth consecutive time as secretary and treasurer. On behalf of the association, Hyland presented to Lee a check for $250 in appreciation of his efficient handling of the affairs of the association.

When installed in office, Niekamp, the newly elected president, outlined a plan of vigorous activity by the association to include regular meetings and greater encouragement for the Jobbers' Bureau and the Replacement Parts Bureau of the association.

The remainder of the meeting was devoted to distribution of tickets and invitations for the mass merchandising meeting of the association at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium June 3.

KIRCHHOFF WINNER IN STUDEBAKER CONTEST

J. H. Kirchoff, selling $25,924 worth of new and used cars in the month, won first prize of $100 in a sales contest held throughout May by the Weber Motor Car Co., Studebaker distributer. The contest was a factor in the best month's business the Weber company ever has had, according to J. M. Falkner, sales manager. Kirchhoff was credited with 35 points in the contest. Lee D. Falkner ran him a close race, winning second prize with 33 points; J. L. Toner was third with 30 points. Sales Manager Falkner said that J. E. Carroll also hung up a record by selling 39 used cars in the month.

WRIGHT GETS INTEREST IN FORD DEALERSHIP

H. C. Wright has acquired an interest in the authorized Ford dealership at 8345 North Broadway which formerly was known as the Kuhs-Wiemeyer Motor Co. The firm has been renamed the Kuhs-Wright Motor Co. E. L. Kuhs is president and Wright is secretary and treasurer. Wright formerly was with the Ford branch here, and later was in business for himself.

FRONT WHEEL BRAKES FOR FORDS MADE HERE

Four wheel brakes for Ford cars are made a fact by installation of the Heinzelman front wheel brakes, made by the Heinzelman Brake Co., Sidney and Iowa avenue. These brakes are connected to, and work in unison with, the standard Ford foot brake, and are said to give equalized braking pressure on all four wheels, preventing skidding and lengthening transmission band wear.

TIRE DEALERS TO MEET.

The Associated Tire Dealers of St. Louis will meet at the Claridge Hotel at 8 p. m. Tuesday evening. There will be a buffet luncheon after the meeting. Representatives of the tire manufacturers have been invited to attend. The Prosecuting Attorney has been invited to speak on the law on sales of automobile tires without numbers.

BRITISH WRITER PRAISES U. S. CAR FOR EASY RIDING

The London Sunday Pictorial Review, in a "leading article" by E. M. Wright, automotive engineer and motor critic, featured a trial of the "Essex saloon"—as the coach is known in England. Wright wrote: "I liked everything about the Essex (except its nationality)—but, above all, I liked the springing. The makers do not pretend that there is anything out of the ordinary in the design of the latter, beyond the fact that the rear springs are splayed outward. But certainly the results are quite exceptional. On the worst roads the only motion imparted to the body is a slow, gentle rocking. Furthermore, the car holds the road like a leech at any speed within its range."

CHAMPION PLUGS IN WINNING RACE CARS

In the face of the severest test that spark plugs have ever been called upon to meet, Champion spark plugs, for the third consecutive year, were used in the car that won the race at Indianapolis Monday. It marked the 36th victory in major race contests the world over in which Champion plugs have been used. Frank Lockhart, the winner; Harry Hartz, second; Cliff Woodbury, third, and Fred Comer, who was fourth, all used Champions and none of them changed a single spark plug in the race.

WARNS OF 'SPEED TRAP' ON EAST SIDE HIGHWAY

The Automobile Club of Missouri warns that there is a "speedtrap" in National City on Illinois highway between East St. Louis and Granite City. Motorists who in the past few days have been arrested, the Club declares, have been intimidated into paying fines and court costs for doubtful violations of existing traffic ordinances. The speed limit over this highway is 25 miles per hour.

Motorists are warned to shun the "spedsarap" district. If they must travel highways 3 and 4, to drive with care.

VELIE TO BUILD OWN BODIES

The Velie Motors Corporation of Moline, Ill., is purchasing materials and installing equipment to manufacture Velie automobile bodies. Early this year it removed its engine works from Marion, Ind., to the main plant at Moline and installed a department to manufacture its own axles. As a result, the company has become practically a self contained unit, manufacturing within its own plant practically all of the important units in Velie cars.

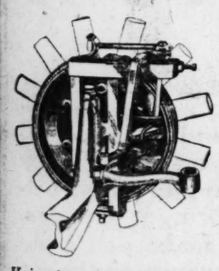
Mr. Ford Owner
You Need Heinzelman Front Wheel Brakes On Your Ford—Now!

Make your Ford a SAFE car for yourself and family—Heinzelman Brakes enable you to stop in half the distance now required and without throwing the passengers forward with a jerk—they will give you a feeling of security that you have never known before—and may save you from many serious accidents.



Heinzelman Brakes are applied to the front wheels. They are connected to and work in unison with the standard Ford transmission (foot) brake, giving equalized braking power on all four wheels.

There are other reasons why it will pay you to install Heinzelman Front Wheel Brakes—your transmission bands will last twice as long—your car will give longer service because there is less strain on the transmission and rear end parts—saves tires—STOPS SKIDDING, even on wet streets—stops brake-band chatter.

You must see these brakes to appreciate their value—now on display and for sale at

ARMY AUTO GOES ANYWHERE HORSE OR MAN CAN TRAVEL

U. S. Engineers Make Ford Car Into More Efficient Machine Than Caterpillar Type.

A motor car that can travel anywhere a horse can go, and can cover a plowed field or a stretch of soft desert sand better than a horse or a man afoot, has been built for the Ordnance Department, it is announced by the War Department.

At the first demonstration of the new car on May 24, Secretary of War Davis watched it climb up and down the steps in front of the State, War and Navy Building.

Three of these cars will be delivered to the First Cavalry Division for work on the Mexican border and one to the Field Artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The new cross-country car, as it is officially called, is a Ford with balloon tires, and an auxiliary gear set, which gives it six speeds forward and two speeds in reverse. These speeds are essential in travel over heavy ground, and are said to make the car more efficient than the old caterpillar cars, designed during the war.

The newly designed car has been stripped of all extra weight, including windshield and most of the body, and has a removable back seat, enabling it to carry ammunition and supplies. This latter, in fact, is its primary function.

The new car was designed, after nearly seven years of tests, primarily with the idea of covering exactly the type of ground covered by cavalry and with the same surety of arriving that a man on horseback has.

It also was worked out with a view to having a type of car that could be produced by the commercial automotive industry, not a specialized type of machine invented by an Army officer and requiring the rebuilding of whole factories for production.

HOW CARS ARE BOUGHT ACCORDING TO OCCUPATIONS

More cars are sold to foremen, machinists, mill-workers, miners and laborers than to any other census classification, according to an analysis by the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co.. The records are based on the combined sales of Paige and Jewett cars.

The classification of foremen, machinists and others listed above in the foregoing, buys 13.2 per cent of the cars, and comprises 28.8 per cent of the business population of the country. Architects, comprising only two-tenths of 1 per cent of the business population, buy 2.2 per cent of the cars. Merchants, who buy 10.7 per cent of the cars purchased, comprise 3.9 per cent of the business population.

Some other classifications are:

	Per Cent of Sales	Per Cent of Business Population
Building Trades	7.4	8.2
Salesmen	7.1	3.4
Executives and manufacturers	6.9	1.5
Government and municipal	3.6	2.2
Newspapermen, engravers and printers	1.7	0.3
Real estate and insurance	1.6	0.8
Bankers and brokers	1.3	0.4
Lawyers	1.1	0.3

GRAND PRIZE IN ANNUAL ECONOMY RUN IS AWARDED

The grand sweepstakes prize in the annual Los Angeles-Yosemite economy run was awarded to a Duesenberg eight driven by Joe Bozzani, a former racing pilot, who won the year before with a Rollin and in 1924 with an Overland. Awards are made on a "ton mileage" basis, arrived at by multiplying the distance (360 miles) by the weight of the car and dividing by the number of gallons of gasoline used. The Duesenberg scored 50.75 ton miles, the nearest competitor scoring only 46.0. It averaged 19.86 miles per gallon.

A Star four averaged 29.09 miles to the gallon.

COMFORT STATIONS PLANNED ON MISSOURI STATE ROADS

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—Public water supply and comfort stations are to be established along the new Missouri highways by the State Board of Health and the State Highway Department, it is learned.

The stations are to be indicated by special highway signs erected by the State Highway Department. Standard signs also will be used at city and town limits to inform the tourist with regard to water supply.

NEW BUS LINE TO CHICAGO AND KANSAS CITY STARTED

A new bus service from St. Louis to Kansas City and Chicago using four Fageol busses with observation platforms, has been started by the Purple Swan Safety Coach Lines, Inc. The busses, of the large parlor car type, are being operated on a daily schedule from the terminal at 610 North Broadway. The first trip was made Friday.

HOW TO REACH AUTOMOBILE CLUB'S TOURING BUREAU

Access to Automobile Club of Missouri headquarters, 4228 Lindell boulevard, during the reconstruction work on Lindell, is through the alley in rear of the club from the Boyle avenue or the Sarah street entrance. Parking space for tourists is in rear of the club.

MILLIONTH STUDEBAKER COMES OFF ASSEMBLY LINE

The millionth Studebaker automobile made under the corporation's own name is now in use. It is a standard six sport roadster. Prior to 1911 cars were made under the names of E. M. F., Studebaker E. M. F. and Studebaker-Garford, as well as Studebaker electric.

HANNIBAL-SHELBINA ROAD TO BE ALL-WEATHER SOON

SHELBINA, Mo., June 5.—The three-mile gap in the concrete on State Highway No. 8, between Lakenan and Shelbina, has been finished. In a few days traffic will be able to use an unbroken stretch of concrete from one-quarter mile east of Shelbina to West Ely, about 23 miles, and a detour on well packed gravel from West Ely to Hannibal.

A force of trucks and men have been gravelling No. 15 north and south through Shelby County, between Shelbina and Shelbyville, and within 20 days this part of the road will be good for travel. There is no detour from Shelbyville to Shelbina.

PLAYERS PURCHASE AUBURNS

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents.

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

Mass Production Cuts Truck Costs

Sales of Graham Brothers Trucks have reached such enormous figures that buyers profit by unequaled low initial costs.

Note the price of the G-BOY, the new one-ton truck.

Only mass production, unapproached building and buying power, plus years of experience, could produce a truck so staunch and sturdy at so low a figure.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY AND GIRL SCOUTS

MERIT BADGES GIVEN TO 56 BOY SCOUTS

Six Presented With Eagle Insignia, Highest Honor in Scouting.

Eagle, Life and Star merit badges were given to 56 Boy Scouts at the Court of Honor held Wednesday night on the lawn of the David R. Francis home, Newstead and Maryland avenues. Thirty-seven other scouts who had passed the required tests, but who were not present at the ceremony, will receive their awards at the next court. The Eagle badge, the highest honor in scouting, conferred after the scout has won 21 merit badges, including the 11 required for the Life badge, was given to six boys. Life badges were awarded to 14 scouts and 16 won the Star badges for the possession of five merit badges.

Frank V. Hammer, chairman of the Court of Honor, presented the Eagle Scouts with their awards, and Chester B. Curtis, a member of the court, conferred the Life and Star insignia. The program opened with the singing of scout camp songs, followed by the showing of a film depicting scouts at work on the requirements for the various merit badges. Branch Rickey, business manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, who was the principal speaker, told of the scout's part in the making of future citizens and the nation.

Win Eagle Badges.

Awards were made to the following scouts: Eagle badges, Fred Gosebrink, Troop 38; Thomas Shepherd, Troop 63; Robert P. Mangold, Troop 81; Meade MacArdle, Webster Groves Troop 5; Glion Curtis Jr., Webster Groves Troop 14, and George L. Hall, Troop 46.

Life Scouts: Dale Douglas, Troop 79; Lazaros Nicholson, Troop 79; George Wilson, Assistant Scoutmaster Troop 84; Robert Kuechler, Troop 104; Irvin Bostrob, Troop 114; Frank Zvanet, Troop 158; Hart Robnett, Troop 5; Sydney Robnett, Troop 5; George Werley, Troop 61; Oliver H. Duggins Jr., Troop 61; William McBratney, Troop 61; Frank Mason, Troop 85; Charles Guletz, Troop 117, and William Wiedemann, Troop 118.

Star Scouts.

Star Scouts: Jewett Lewis, Troop 1; Peter Geist Jr., Troop 18; Paul Heinemann, Troop 28; Harry Laba, Troop 30; Roy Jordan, Troop 31; Lester Levy, Troop 31; Charles W. Thorne, Troop 38; A. W. Baum, Troop 54; Ralph Coldewe, Troop 59; Adrian Ochterbeck, Troop 59; Harold Critchfield, Troop 63; Alfred P. Reber, Troop 63; Russell Brunner, Troop 76; Rich P. Buch, Troop 77; Sidney Levy, Troop 90; Lawrence Varble, Troop 91; Herman Wolf, Troop 103; Charles Hester, Troop 106; Robert Hester, Troop 106; Virgil Biby, Troop 122; Gordon Bulloch, Troop 137; Albert Sokolik, Troop 137; J. L. Messing, Troop 158; Leo Scholz, Troop 158; Howard Robinson, Troop 160; Elmer J. Keller, Troop 178; C. F. Morrill, Troop 186; T. S. McPheeters Jr., Troop 186; Bryan Nicholson, Troop 219; Charles Nicholson, Troop 219; Walter Lutz, Troop 244; Ed Groves, Brentwood Troop 1; Clarence B. Rex Jr., Kirkwood Troop 2; Leslie Sherman, Richmond Heights Troop 1, and Jack Brackbill, Webster Groves Troop 9.

North District.

Troop 197, a small but growing organization, has just completed a 1000-point contest. Patrol Leader Humes of the Wolf Patrol took first prize; Lullman of the Silver Fox Patrol, second, and Landers of the Wolf Patrol, third. Medals will be awarded at a stunt night program to be given soon. On the overnight hike to Meramec Highlands recently more than three-fourths of the troop attended.

Assistant Scoutmaster Wolfert was in charge of the Decoration day hike made by Troop 147. In addition to the scout work, the troop members fished and swam. Tuesday night Inspection Officer Edward Lore passed upon the troop and commented on their good behavior while in camp. Committeeman R. G. Voos explained the use of railroad forms in tracing lost shipments, handling mail and "breaking bulk." Scoutmaster Richard D. Jones has returned from Camp Irondale, where he took part in the classification of plants on the nature trail.

The new neckerchiefs for Troop 32 of the St. Peter's Evangelical Church, were distributed at the Friday night meeting of a week ago. They are green with a white border, inclosing a white star, and made made by the Mothers' Club. For the past three years the troop has used red bandannas, but since this has been adopted as the standard for the Ranger Troop of Irondale, the change was decided upon.

Members of Troop 92 of the Samuel Cupples School were addressed on the subject of the coming inspection night by Scoutmaster Custer, and were put through a number of disciplinary drills at the Wednesday night meeting a week ago.

The annual three-day hike over Decoration day was made by Troop 99 of the St. John's Evangelical Church. A number of tests toward merit badges were passed by the scouts.

Troop 122 claims the largest attendance at the Annual Scoutmasters' Camp at Irondale, Mo., with a total of 18 men, women and children.

West District.

Senior Patrol Leader Murray Gabell was in charge of the Saturday night camping trip of Troop 2 of the Pilgrim Congregational Church because of the inability of the Scoutmaster or his assistant to attend. Scout Richard Bryan passed four of his second class tests. The Blues revenged their beating by the Reds last week by winning the baseball game by a score of 19 to 12.

Three members of Troop 59 of the Eden Immanuel Brotherhood received their star badges at the court of honor Wednes night. The recently appointed Scoutmaster Wallner, the troop committee, and members of the family, made a week-end trip by automobile to Camp Irondale. First-Class Scout Raymond Hoefelmann did his "good turn" last week by notifying county authorities of the location of a stolen automobile left in the woods near Hanley road.

South District.

Scouts of Troop 31 had charge of the Flag ceremony at a meeting of the Tower Grove Heights Improvement Association. Later the troop conducted investiture exercises at which several new members were taken in. The program was concluded with a strawberry festival.

Tests in cooking were passed by members of Troop 178 on the mapping hike to their camp last week. The Panther Patrol is leading in the inter-patrol contest, with the Fox Patrol running second. A week-end trip to Chain of Rocks was made last week by the Pine Tree Patrol.

A camp site on the Big River has been leased by Troop 143, and a number of the scouts attended by members of the Troop Committee are camping there for the week-end. Three new members joined the troop at the meeting Monday night. The standing of the patrols in the point contest is: Silver Fox Patrol, 163; White Eagle Patrol, 64, and the Wolf Patrol, 52.

Troop 180 of the Rose Fanning School will take part in a Community Program to be given Wednesday night at the Roosevelt High School. The troop will put on a camp scene and demonstrate a number of scouting activities.

Beginning last Friday, the meetings of Troop 192 will be held out of doors. A trial meeting was held in the open Thursday night a week ago around their camp fire. Soda pop and "hot dogs" were served.

Troop 198 will hold their second annual "Parents' night" Wednesday. They will entertain with demonstrations of scout work, and by an exhibition of "Patrol Projects," which they have been working on for the last six weeks.

Suburban District.

A junior assistant scoutmaster, Victor Stones of Troop 1, Webster Groves, gave a signaling demonstration last Thursday night. The assistant scoutmaster and 13 members of the troop are on a three-day camping trip on Grand Glaize Creek this week-end.

Webster Groves Troop 1 leads the Suburban District in the number of boys registered for the summer at Camp Irondale. Enough have enrolled to fill two cabins of the second section. On June 8, the troop will hold its first annual stunt night at 415 Kirkham avenue.

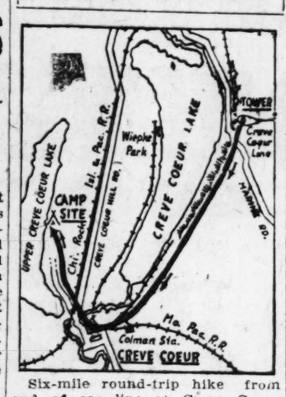
Fifty-one members of Troop 8 of Webster Groves spent last week-end at their camp between Hurstgreen and Big Bend roads. An old corn crib was converted into a kitchen, and the grounds thoroughly policed. Sunday the Rev. James A. George conducted church services, and the camp closed with a council ring.

The annual Parents' Night meeting was held Thursday a week ago by Troop 9 of Webster Groves, and refreshments were served by the mothers. The troop is re-registering this month in order to turn in their application for charter renewal.

O. P. Krell, a committeeman of Troop 1 of Overland, presented the members with a mahogany bookcase, with the Scout emblem and the troop number painted in color on the glass front.

Scout Carl Schneider, of the Tiger Patrol, was elected treasurer, and Scout Junior Tracy, of the same patrol, reporter, at the elections held last week by Troop 3 of Kirkwood.

A SIX-MILE ROUTE



Six-mile round-trip hike from end of car line at Creve Coeur tower to site on Upper Creve Coeur Lake, south along the big lake to the crossing at Lake avenue, then north to camp spot.

ACTIVITIES OF GIRL SCOUTS

St. Louis Girl Scouts are looking for a suitable camp site, it is announced by Mrs. Guy W. Oliver, commissioner. For the last two years the camp has been held on borrowed property: last year on the Christ Church Cathedral grounds at Ten Broek, Mo., and the previous summer at the lodge of George R. Robinson at Eureka, Mo.

The scouts want to rent or borrow a site comprising 100 acres, which lies within 75 miles of St. Louis. It must have a plentiful supply of good drinking water, a cleared space for the camp house, and safe swimming facilities. Hilly land, with if possible, suitable camping equipment upon it, is desired.

The court of awards for the Girl Scouts will be held Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at the Jefferson Memorial. More than 300 girls will be presented with merit prizes by Mrs. Guy W. Oliver, Girl Scout commissioner. The color guard will be formed by the 30 scouts holding the gold star for one year's perfect attendance. A fashion display will be given by the girls who participated in the May festival at the Washington University Field House before delegates to the national convention held here.

Troop 24 of the Rose Fanning School will dance the "gavotte" in period dress at the meeting of the Tower Grove Community Council, to be held Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Roosevelt High School.

Ten new candidates were present at the meeting of Troop 40 held Thursday night. Plans for a scout camp were discussed, and the hike held yesterday was arranged.

A banquet in honor of their mothers was given recently by members of Troop 1. The girls prepared and served the meal, and afterward entertained with a demonstration of scouting activities.

New patrol leaders were elected recently for Troop 15. Nellie Stinginer, Patrol 1; Mildred Blower, Patrol 2; Lucia Foster, Patrol 3, and Emma Mary Biswell, Patrol 4.

Troop 9 will hold a carnival some time during this month at St. John's Methodist Church, Kingshighway and Washington avenue. They have started a troop library, for which cards have already been sold.

Three playlets were presented by members of Troop 7 at the meeting held Friday a week ago. Outdoor meetings will be held from now on. The troop has opened a savings account at the American National Exchange Bank.

Painting by Boy, 13, Hung in Salon.

Homely, Aged Faces Easily Beautified

The plainest faces made beautiful and the complexions of good-looking women improved, oldish faces made young and pretty, blemished and weather-soiled faces made spotless, white and satiny—by a very simple and harmless process that acts almost like a miracle! This is all there is to it: Mercolized Wax, procurable at any drug store (one ounce will do), is applied at night like cold cream, and washed off in the morning. This gradually peels off the lifeless particles of surface skin, permitting the underlying skin to show itself. The newer, fresher skin, when wholly in evidence, forms a complexion which for beauty and youthfulness is incomparable with one produced by other means. A complexion so natural, so free from artificiality, no one guesses the secret of its acquirement. You'll not regret trying this wonderful treatment.

Old Folks Need a Mild Laxative —Not a "Physic"

Most men and women past fifty must give to the bowels some occasional help else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative, in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural, regular bowel movement even for those chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

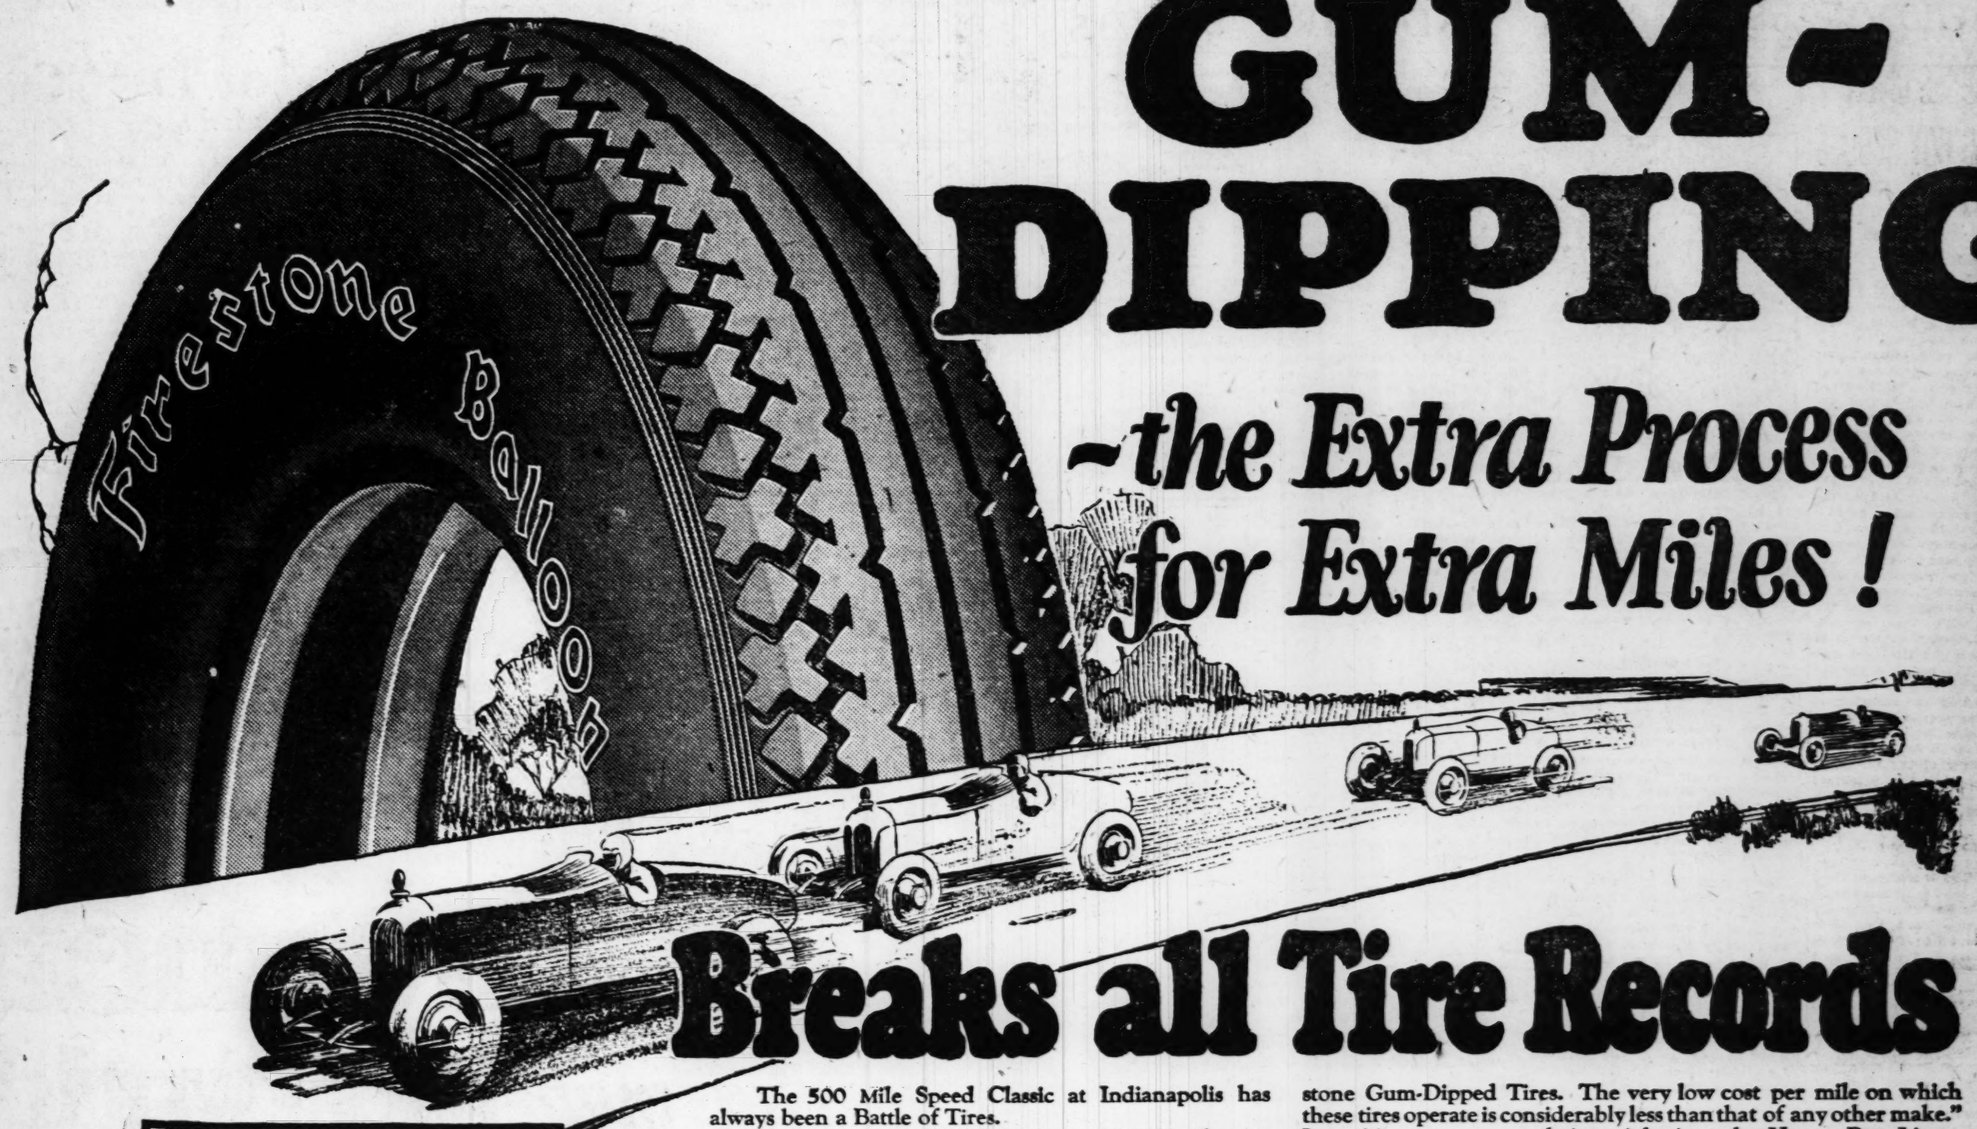
GUM-DIPPING

—the Extra Process for Extra Miles!



Breaks all Tire Records

The 500 Mile Speed Classic at Indianapolis has always been a Battle of Tires.

In 1911, Firestone won with fabric tires at 74.59 miles per hour. In 1920, Firestone won with cord tires at 88.55 miles per hour. In 1925, Firestone won with Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons at the record breaking average speed of 101.13 miles per hour.

In 1926, Firestone again won this great Speed Classic with Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons. The ten cars to finish "in the money" were all Firestone-equipped. These ten cars went the distance without a single blowout and with but two tire failures—one due to a puncture and the other to a leaky valve.

This performance is even more remarkable when you consider the terrific speeds at which the cars traveled over this fifteen-year-old, rough brick track.

Experienced race drivers will not trust their lives or risk their chances of victory on any other tires. And in the commercial field, large truck, motorbus and taxicab fleet operators, who keep careful cost records on their tire mileage are among the big users of Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires.

The City Transportation Company of Tacoma, Washington, writes: "One of our 12 buses on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires has gone over 40,600 miles and still looks good for many miles of extra service. I have no hesitancy in saying that for all around tire safety and mileage, Firestone cannot be beat."

From the Calumet Motor Coach Company, Hammond, Indiana, comes the following: "We operate 40 buses all equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. The very low cost per mile on which these tires operate is considerably less than that of any other make." In writing to express their satisfaction, the Hayes Bus Lines, Columbia, S.C., say: "We operate 19 buses equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. A number of these tires have run over 45,000 miles without ever having been removed from the rim."

The largest taxicab companies in the world standardize on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. William R. Rothwell, a taxicab operator of Detroit, Mich., writes: "Two of my Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have run 76,000 miles."

Hundreds of thousands of car owners voluntarily testify to the safety, comfort and economy of Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons. W. H. Peacock, Birmingham, Ala., enthusiastically writes: "I have had Firestone Balloons for thirteen months and they have delivered in that time 24,469 miles." H. C. Staehle, Minneapolis, Minn., says: "My Firestone Balloons have gone 49,900 miles and are still in good condition." W. H. Miller, Homestead, Pa., expresses his satisfaction this way: "Have driven my Gum-Dipped Balloons 30,000 miles and it is impossible to furnish better evidence of most miles per dollar."

These records of endurance, speed, safety and mileage could only have been made because of Firestone development of the Gum-Dipping process which insulates and saturates every fiber of every cord with rubber, reducing friction and heat and building greater strength and endurance in the cords—assuring you at all times—

RADIO FOR AMATEUR AND EXPERT

TEST CASE PLANNED BY CHICAGO LABOR

Mandamus May Lead to Assignment of Wavelength Outside the Broadcast Band.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—With hopes of radio legislation at the present session of Congress rapidly fading the radio officials of the Department of Commerce have begun to size up the situation that must be met by them this summer in the absence of an assignment of the authority asked of Congress.

The most important issue that is scheduled in the immediate future is the test case planned by the Chicago Federation of Labor station, which has announced its intentions of coming on the air without a license from the department.

Should the labor body go ahead with its plans, the Department of Commerce would request the Department of Justice to file suit against the station and would prosecute the case with every expectation of winning a victory under the circumstances.

It is understood, however, that the Chicago Federation is hesitating to take such a precipitate course and is considering as an alternative step the filing of a petition asking the District Supreme Court to compel the Department of Commerce to issue a license.

Under the existing regulation, it is believed that such a mandamus would have to be granted. The Department of Commerce would then have as its only recourse the issuance of a license with an assignment of a wave length outside the broadcast band. Such a wave length, it is said, would be practically valueless to the Chicago station in that its signals would be audible to only a limited number of radio fans who are equipped with either long or short wave receivers.

It is further pointed out that whereas the Zenith Radio Corporation was able legally to take a wave length other than that assigned by the department, the labor station would not be given the same privilege as the Zenith test case was decided in favor of station WJAZ because of the fact that the owners of the station were radio manufacturers and conducting their broadcasting on an experimental basis.

Other matters that must be considered by the radio section of the department in the absence of legislation are the distribution of the appropriation voted by Congress, reduced considerably by the department, the further building up of the personnel and material of the field forces of the radio section, and the policing of the ether.

Aerial Installation.

In erecting and installing an aerial and lead wires, remember that they should not be strung nearer than five feet to any object. The lead-in wire should be kept this distance away from the walls of the building, and a heavy glazed porcelain tube should be used at the point where the lead-in must enter the building.

ATWATER KENT SERIES RESUMED THROUGH KSD

Tonight's Program by Noted Irish Tenor Will Include Several Gems of Melody.

The presentation of the Atwater Kent programs through Station KSD will be resumed tonight, beginning at 7:15 Central Time.

Allen McQuhae, tenor, has been the artist in the last few consecutive Atwater Kent Sunday evening concerts and the radio audience has commented upon his excellent and pleasing programs. Without question one of the chief factors for this favorable reaction from radio listeners is the fact that McQuhae has never been content to "rest on his oars" and achievements, but continually presses forward for new musical worlds to conquer. Last summer he spent practically all of the time usually used as the season's vacation period in Europe hard at work. He went to Lombardi, the famous teacher of great voices and the man who coached Edward Johnson of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who was heard during one of the Atwater Kent Radio Hour broadcasts last winter and who also has the signal honor of starting Caruso on his career, and studied under his expert supervision.

In a certain sense it was not necessary for Mr. McQuhae to spend his vacation sekeing this additional training for he had gone high on the ladder of fame as a concert tenor and for several years before his European trip was one of the noted tenors in this country.

Tonight, Mr. McQuhae's program will be as follows:

Opening air.

"When Night Descends"..... .....Rachmaninoff

"Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" .....Ben Jonson

"Sakuntala" ..... Goldmark

Atwater Kent Orchestra

"Kerry Dance" .....Molloy

"Goodbye" ..... Tosti

"Now the Day Is Over"..Barnby

In each of the selections Mr. McQuhae will be assisted by the Atwater Kent Orchestra, which is under the direction of Nicholas Berezowsky.

Questions and Answers.

Q. I was listening in on my three honeycomb coil set and heard WSO calling ICC on about 11,000 meters. Can you tell me where station ICC is located? Where can I get a copy of the international call book, which contains the broadcasting and commercial calls of all countries?—F. D. A.

A. WSO is located at Marion, Mass. We have no data on ICC, though it is possibly an Italian station. Write to the Citizens' Radio Service Bureau, 508 South Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill., publishers of the Citizens' Radio Call Book.

Q. I have a five-tube Atwater Kent Model 20 receiver and I think there must be something wrong with it, as it takes too much power. It takes my Willard A battery down from 1300 to 1100 in 48 hours. I have had the set since February and am using my third set of heavy-duty B batteries.—E. A. H.

A. It would be impossible to tell you exactly what is wrong with the receiver without seeing and testing it. It would be advisable for you to return it to the dealer who sold it to you or have him call at your home and inspect and test it. The drain on your A battery is about normal. The B battery drain is too high. This could be caused by a poor C battery or the absence of a C battery.

Q. I would like to know whether the chain programs broacast by KSD are brought from New York by telephone or received by radio and rebroadcast.—G. S.

A. The chain programs come to KSD over a high-quality telephone circuit. The telephone circuit is substituted for the microphone in the input of the speech amplifier, which feeds the audio currents into the radio transmitter.

Radiograms.

Calcutta is to have a 12-kilowatt broadcasting station.

A radio announcer in Chicago was fined $25 under a new ruling dealing with slander by radio.

The first radio station in the world regularly to give all Jewish programs in the Yiddish language is operated in New York City.

Women who listen in on the radio in England, it is said, would rather listen to jazz music than be instructed in how to cook or care for the baby.

Receiving sets are now being constructed for use in all Federal schools in Mexico. It is planned to hold lectures for the teachers to keep them posted on the latest educational developments and systems of instruction.

Because of the soap box orator no longer can attract the attention of the public, the Socialistic party of America is planning to establish a centrally located radio broadcasting station to carry the party's appeal over land and sea.

More than 150,000 "bootleg" radio sets are in use in Denmark as a result of the unpopularity of that country's regulation requiring an annual license of 10 to 15 kroned, amounting to about $3 for each receiver.

Old aerial wires that have become corroded should be cleaned by rubbing with sandpaper, or, better yet, should be replaced with wire having an enamel coating.

NEW ARRIVALS

The Daven Radio Corporation of Newark, N. J., has recently placed on the market a new resistor called "Glastor." It is a radical departure in the art of grid and plate resistor manufacture. The actual resistance element is in chemical form and deposited on the inner surface of a high-grade glass tube. The process then involves the use of high temperature heat treatments with the final result that the resistance becomes an integral part of the glass section.

Manufacturing process and inspection must be highly developed insure a perfect product. A most scientific calibration method assures a resistance well within 10 per cent of its rated value.

"Glastors" have characteristics which will insure a constant resistance of rated value with permanent freedom from a shifting characteristic, which is one of the many faults with ordinary carbon types.

Another ideal feature is found in its ability to withstand high overloads or excessive applied voltages. Some tests in which .5 megohm "Glastors" were placed across 500 volts and run for 12 hours shows these resistors to always come back to their normal or rated value.

For the Notebook.

Location of an aerial is a big factor in radio reception.

Coils that absorb moisture soon loose their efficiency and the adjustments on the set will vary, depending on the weather.

RESULT OF WOK'S TEST

First returns from the high and low power engineering test, conducted last week by Radio Station WOK, broadcasting on 217.3 meters, indicate that reception generally through the country was as good on low power as on high power. The transmitters used in the test were of 2000 watts and 5000 watts input to the antenna, the shift from one transmitter to the other being made hourly while the station was on the air. Norman E. Wunderlich, chief engineer, said later reports may change the situation and that not enough returns had yet been checked up to determine definitively whether high or low power gives better distance reception.

X-RAY MAKES INTERFERENCE

X-ray machines are notorious generators of vagrant radio waves that makes themselves audible in nearby receiving sets as harsh, grumbling noises. The small portable "violet ray" affairs sold for home electro-therapeutic treatment are also bad offenders and their use during evening hours should be as limited as possible.

To Tune a Fixed Coil.

There are two ways of tuning a fixed coil, either by using a variable condenser or a variometer. The variable condenser may be used either in series or in parallel, while the variometer is always used in series.

This Happened in St. Louis Last Week

A man said to a friend, "I know the Reo is a good car, but I don't like its looks. They're so old-fashioned."

He was thinking of the hundreds he had seen on the streets recently that looked like this 1921 model.

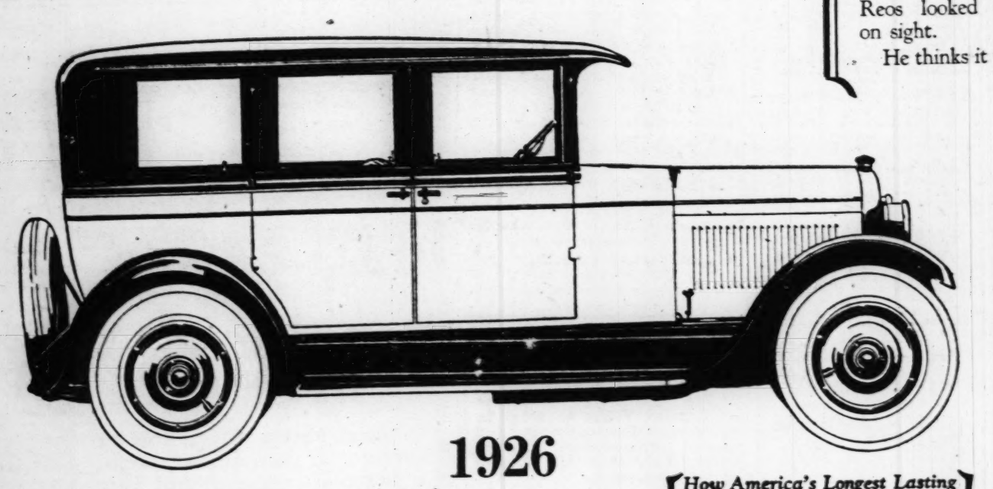
His friend had just bought a New Reo Sedan, so he asked, "Have you seen the New Reos?"

"No," was the reply.

When they finished lunch they went down to the Reo salesroom.

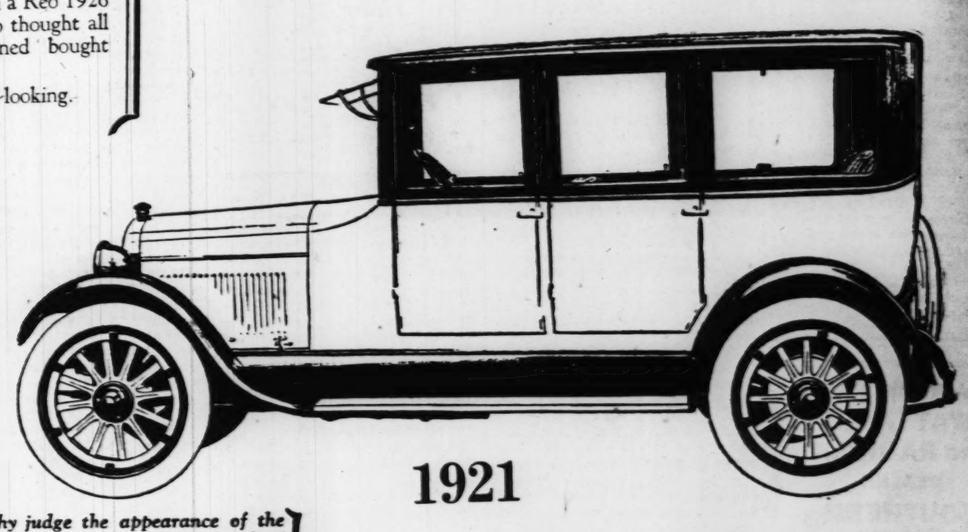
And they rode back in a Reo 1926 Sedan that the man who thought all Reos looked old-fashioned bought on sight.

He thinks it very good-looking.



1926

How America's Longest Lasting Car looks today—the New and Improved Reo Sedan of 1926



1921

Why judge the appearance of the New Reo opposite by the thousands of old Reos like this that are still running?

The Penalty of Being America's Longest Lasting Car

Everywhere, Reo pays a certain penalty for being so very well built.

It's the penalty of having so many old, old models still running that people judge present Reo appearance by that of the old cars.

It's unfair to any car to judge its 1926 lines by those of 1921. All cars have improved wonderfully in appearance in the last few years so that all old cars look old-fashioned when compared with newer models.

But no other car is judged by such old models as is Reo—because no other American car lasts as long as Reo.

Come In and See the New Reo

If you, like many others, have been judging the New Reos by the five, six, eight, and ten-year old veterans that are still giving faithful, economical service, you should see the New Reo.

The Reo of today is the same carefully built car as the Reo of yesterday.

But America's longest lasting car has changed its appearance. Come in and see it—and drive it.

A drive in the New Reo will show you that Balloon Tires can be handled easily and turned quickly—that you can have the comfort of riding on full balloons without the fatigue that comes from the straining and tugging necessary to guide them with ordinary steering wheels.

Split-Second Steering and Braking

You can turn them quickly when necessary—for only one and a half turns of the Reo Steering Wheel are needed to turn the front wheels from extreme right to extreme left position. Most cars require two and a half or three turns.

Split-Second Braking Plus Standard Control gives you all the familiar handling of the ordinary brake pedal and brake lever plus the added safety of the quicker acting Split-Second Braking system.

Come In and See This New Reo—the finest design of America's Longest Lasting car.

Reo does not claim to be the "best" car. But there must be some reason why the Reo, always a moderately priced car, outlasts even the finest creations of all other American manufacturers.

Surely Reo must be well built to make such a record.

Reo does not claim to be the fastest car built. But for emergencies there is the 62 to 65 mile speed that a Reo's honest speedometer will register when you let a Reo out.

More actual speed would mean that Reo's surging acceleration, unflagging pulling power on long and steep grades, huge reserve power at moderate speeds, would be hampered by changed gear ratios.

Reo does not claim to be more beautiful than all other cars. Automobile beauty to one person frequently means something different than it does to another.

But if you are judging Reo appearance by the eight to twelve-year old Reos still so common today, the very good looking New and Improved Reo will surprise you.

Reo does not claim to be the cheapest car to run that there is. But Reo's extraordinary long life means that depreciation, the largest single expense of automobile ownership, is cut to the minimum.

Come In and See the New Reo.

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

PART SIX. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 6, 1926. PAGES 1—4A

Art Theater Group Will Play Here

Next Week's Opening of Garden Theater to Present Chicago Actors in First of Five Classics—New Scenic Methods Are Promised.

By RICHARD L. STOKES,
Music and Drama Critic of the Post-Dispatch.

HAVING launched its career last summer with that transcendent manifesto, Margaret Anglin's presentation of the "Electra" of Sophocles, the Garden Theater this year will ally itself with the art theater movement. For five of its seven productions it will engage direction, and in large part personnel and repertory, from the Kenneth Sawyer Goodman Memorial Theater, a department of the Art Institute of Chicago.

The second term of the open-air auditorium on the Olive Street road will open a week from tomorrow night with Shakspeare's fairy comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream." This will be followed in successive weeks by Shakspeare's "Twelfth Night," Moliere's satire, "Don Juan," and Shakspeare's farce, "The Taming of the Shrew." On Sunday evenings the company will give a celebrated English morality play, "Everyman."

Season of 10 Weeks.

THE fifth, sixth and seventh weeks will be delivered over to popular entertainment under the title of "Garden Varieties," a program of ballets, specialties and musical numbers, including costumed excerpts from grand opera. The St. Louis Fashion Pageant will occupy the last three weeks of the season, which will comprise 10 weeks in all.

The productions of the initial four weeks will be under the management of Thomas Wood Stevens, director of the Goodman Theater. He has been a salient figure in community dramatics in this city. He wrote and staged the Pageant of St. Louis, given during 1914 on Art Hill; a patriotic exhibition, "The Drawing of the Sword," presented at the Municipal Theater in 1917, and also "Missouri One Hundred Years Ago," a spectacle displayed during 1921 at the Coliseum.

Among the members of his Chicago company engaged for the Garden Theater are Eula Guy, Helen Forrest, Arvid Crandall, Neal Caldwell, Jack Daniels, Ellen Lowe, Carl Benton Reid, Howard Southgate, Russell Collins and Hubbard Kirkpatrick. They will be reinforced by several professional players. Whitford Kane and B. Iden Payne will interpret Bottom and Quince in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," as well as Sir Toby Belch and Sir Andrew Aguecheek in "Twelfth Night." William Franklin will undertake Iganarelle in "Don Juan," and Miss Estelle Winwood will play Katherine in "The Taming of the Shrew."

Goodman Died During the War.

THE Goodman Theater is one of the foremost of the hundreds of art theaters which have sprung up throughout the country to remedy the default and bankruptcy of the spoken play in the commercial playhouse. It was presented to the Art Institute by Mr. and Mrs. William O. Goodman in memory of their son, Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, who died in 1918 while serving as aide to Commandant Moffett at the Great Lakes Naval Station. He was the author of more than 30 short plays. His "Dust of the Road" and "The Game of Chess" have had innumerable performances at the hands of little theater and community organizations.

The theater which bears his name was opened last October with three of Goodman's plays. During the season which has just closed the company has offered eight major productions. These include three classics—"Everyman," "Don Juan" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream"—and five modern plays—John Galsworthy's "The Forest," G. Martinez Sierra's "The Romantic Young Lady," George Kaiser's "Gas," John Masefield's "The Tragedy of Nan" and "An Heir at Large," by Mary Aldis and John McCutcheon.

With a seating capacity of little more than 750, the Goodman Theater has an exceptionally large stage, its proscenium arch being 37 feet wide. Over the entire spread of the stage, like a dome sliced vertically in two, extends a great curved shell of plaster, with lighting equipment in a trench around its base. This is designed to give to the plaster surface of the dome various effects of night and day, sunshine and storm, thus doing away with the conventional sky painted on a backdrop. Landscape effects are obtained by placing horizons, trees, buildings and the like against the illuminated dome.

"Wagon Stages" Used.

SINCE this device does not permit the usual rigging over the stage, rapid changing of scene is obtained by means of movable floors, large enough to hold a complete set, and called "wagon stages." These are prepared at the sides and are wheeled into place when a given scene is required, with furniture and properties already arranged.

These contrivances enabled Mr. Stevens to present Shakspeare's comedies without interruption, as they were given on the Elizabethan stage, and also virtually without cutting the text. To obtain the same results at the Garden Theater it has been necessary to devise different methods, since skydomes and "wagon stages" would be impracticable in an open-air theater.

Suggestion Instead of Realism.

ACROSS the rear of the Garden Theater stage will stretch a terrace four feet high, which will provide a background and a new level for formal garden scenes and the like. It may be blocked out when a simple forest setting is required. Movable sections of stairway and plastic screens, which are hedge on one face and wall on the other, will be relied upon to differentiate the various outdoor locales. Rapidity of change, economy and esthetic efficacy are expected ot be combined.

With all their naivete, these expedients will obey strictly the principle of three-dimensional settings, which appears at last to be established in both of the city's outdoor theaters. With its opulent budget, the Municipal Theater Association found it possible to erect the massive inn, walls, arches and church of "Eileen," which were of natural or almost natural size. The method at the Forest Park playhouse is one of realism, which was also that of "Electra." This year the Garden Theater will forsake realistic technique for the suggestive and atmospheric.

"THE RED MILL" GRINDS AGAIN AFTER 20 YEARS

THE sabots in which the late Dave Montgomery and the very much present Fred Stone were wont to clatter about the country in "The Red Mill," towards the ends of the mauve first decade of the present century, will be donned at the Municipal Theater this week by Robinson Newbold and William J. McCarthy. The roles are those of two American innocents abroad, who are stranded in Holland at a tavern, of all delectable spots.

Following tonight's concluding performance of "Eileen," the Municipal Theater Association will begin its second week tomorrow evening with "The Red Mill," which, like its predecessor, has a score by the inimitable Victor Herbert and book by a St. Louis librettist, Henry M. Blossom.

Entire Cast Listed.

THIS extravaganza played for a year, in 1907, at the Knickerbocker Theater in New York. It was written for Montgomery and Stone, to serve them as a conveyance after Herbert's "The Wizard of Oz" ran its course. Like "Eileen," the current production will enlist the organization's entire roster of principals, besides an auxiliary chorus of 40 children. The cast will be as follows:

"Con" Kidder....Robinson Newbold
"Kid" Conner..William J. McCarthy
Jan van Borkem....Detmar Poppen
Frans.....Davis Andrada
Willem .....Louis Rupp
Capt. Doris van Damm.....
.....Edward Molitore
Governor of Zeeland.....
.....Thomas Conkey
Joshua Pennefeather .....
..... Roland Woodruff
Gretchen .....Dorothy Maynard
Bertha .....Irene Dunne
Tina .....Maude Gray
Countess de la Fere.....
.....Bernice Mershon

Two Handy Americans.

ACCORDING to the story, the two Yankees aforesaid, Messrs. Kidder and Conner, try to flee from their board bill by climbing

BEHIND THE SCREENS

MARY PICKORD and Douglas Fairbanks are invading France on their European tour, after spending some time in Italy and Germany. It is understood that the couple are seeking production facilities in Europe, in the hope of making one or two films there. Miss Pickford has made virtually all her films without leaving the State of California, and she is known to be desirous of working abroad. If it is decided to make a picture in Europe, it will undoubtedly be done in Germany, where the better studios are located.

Gladys Unger, novelist and playwright, has arrived at the De Mille Studio from New York to prepare the adaptation and continuity of "The Heart Thief," the screen version of the Lajos Biros play, "The Highwayman." Joseph Schildkraut, who starred in the stage play, will be featured in the title role in the screen version.

After five years' separation since "The Sheik," Agnes Ayres and Rudolph Valentino are in love again—but only for the movies. Miss Ayres terminated a screen vacation of 12 months when she appeared with Valentino before the camera in scenes for Valentino's new film, "Son of the Sheik."

Corinne Griffith, who has been in New York for several weeks filming exteriors for her screen version of Reginald Goode's "Ashes," has left New York on her return journey to Hollywood, where she will complete the picture. Richard Wallace is Miss Griffith's director in "Ashes," and Tom Moore her leading man. The story deals with stage life, the star playing the role of an actress who is torn between the desire for a career and the love of an infant daughter whose health is endangered by her mother's roving existence.

Hale Hamilton, lately featured in "The Manicure Girl," is on his way to New York to appear in "Tin Gods," an Allan Dwan picture starring Thomas Meighan. The cast includes Renee Adoree, Aileen Pringle and William Powell.

This week will see the completion of "Mismates," Doris Kenyon's latest vehicle, the screen version of Myron Fagan's stage play of the same title. Doris Kenyon and Warner Baxter have the featured roles. In the cast are Philo McCollough, Mae Allison, Charlie Murray, John Kolb, Cyril Ring, Nancy Kelley, Maude Turner Gordon, Charles Beyer and many other screen players.

Clara Bow has been given one of the outstanding roles in "Kid

At the Movie Houses

LOEW'S STATE—Florence Vidor, Jack Holt, Mary Brian and Noah Beery in "The Enchanted Hill"; on the stage, "A Night at the North Pole."

NEW ST. LOUIS—"The Johnstown Flood," with George O'Brien, Florence Gilbert and Janet Gaynor, and five acts of vaudeville, featuring Harry M. Snodgrass, pianist.

KING'S GARDEN AND RIVOLI—"The Lucky Lady," with Lionel Barrymore and Greta Nissen.

LYRIC SKYDOME, GRAND CENTRAL, WEST END LYRIC AND CAPITOL—Colleen Moore in "Ella Cinders," with Lloyd Hughes.

MISSOURI—Cecil B. de Mille's production, "The Volga Boatman." On the stage, John Murray Anderson's "Melodies Eternal."

Scala's Orchestra Depleted by American Dollars

By SAMUEL CHOTZINOFF,
Music Critic of the New York World.

MILAN, Italy (By Mail).

AMERICA and her high wages were a factor in Arturo Toscanini's recent withdrawal from La Scala, where he had labored on and off for the last 40 years. He says he can't keep good men in Italy any more.

When I arrived in Milan I did not know the maestro's address, but I took a chance and called to the driver of my taxi, "Maestro Toscanini," in the confident tone of voice in which one asks to be driven to the Cathedral.

Without a word the driver took me straight to Toscanini's house, 20 Via Durino, in the heart of the town. The maestro presently received me in a high-ceilinged room facing an enormous flowered courtyard.

Loved by All Save Gatti.

HE LOOKED worn out and troubled. "Why," I asked myself, "doesn't the maestro abandon Milan for good and go to America, where everybody but Gatti-Casazza loves him and none would dream of interfering with him." I leaned forward and spoke earnestly:

"Come to America, Maestro. We need you badly over there. You can have everything you want. New York is yours for the asking."

He smiled and shook his head.

"Why not?" I insisted. "We will even build you a brand-new opera house, where you will be the sole and absolute dictator. How is that?"

"No, no," he murmured. "I can't leave my home. Besides, I am not interested in opera. I have conducted operas for 40 years and I have lost interest."

"Italy Has No Philharmonic."

"WELL, then, how about an orchestra? You can take over the Philharmonic entirely for as many rehearsals as you want." I knew his weakness and counted on the mention of unlimited rehearsals to fetch him. The maestro's face lit up.

"Ah, the Philharmonic," he exclaimed. "A marvelous orchestra. Italy has no Philharmonic, alas."

"How about your own Scala orchestra?" I asked.

"Trouble, trouble, always trouble," he replied. "The good men leave. They go to America, where they can make more money. They say I left Scala because of the Fascisti; because Mussolini did not

Skinner Is Falstaff in "Henry IV"

Romantic Star Turns to Comedy as Fat and Roguish Knight in Players' Club Revival — Gertrude Lawrence Quits Charlot.

By WELLS ROOT,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FORMIDABLY ahead of everything in the revival of the first part of "Henry IV," made this week at the Knickerbocker Theater by the Players' Club, was Otis Skinner's Sir John Falstaff. The production, with a cast of 40 under the direction of Henry Herbert, opened Monday night and closed tonight. It was scheduled to run only a week.

Perhaps Mr. Skinner had more of Santa Claus and less of Satan in his personation than would please the fat rogue's disciples. It must have been with regard to Falstaff that someone first expressed the axiom that seamy jokes are admissible if they are funny enough. Mr. Skinner was genial rather than ribald, and took the harder path to humor. He pleased the first-night audience immensely.

Peggy Wood was unbelievably lovely as Lady Percy, and Eileen Huban, as Lady Mortimer, sang a Welsh song agreeably. Basil Sydney and Philip Merivale, while perhaps not exact choices for the roles of Prince Hal and Hotspur, played resolutely and well. In the cast also were William Courtleigh, Rosamond Pinchot, Thomas Chalmers, Gilbert Emery, J. M. Kerrigan, James T. Powers and Blanche Ring.

Prologue for John Drew.

THIS chronicle is a rare visitor upon our stages. It is 30 years since its unwieldy pageantry has unrolled before the eyes of the metropolis. It is perhaps the knottiest revival in the Players' distinguished string.

There were two interpolations. The Shallow and Silence scene from the second part of "Henry IV" was inserted, imperceptibly enough, in the interest of comedy, and a Brian Hooker prologue was read by John Drew. If Mr. Drew does not play in the annual revival, place must be made for him even at the cost of injecting alien melody into the symphony.

Musical Comedy for Her.

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE will desert her London associates next season and play for Aarons and Freedley in their musical comedy with Gershwin melodies. Aarons and Freedley have thus far favored America and England with "Lady, Be Good" and "Tip-Toes." The new show will be a sequel to these. No name has as yet been chosen.

Miss Lawrence is appearing on the coast in "Charlot's Revue." She will finish the season with the show. Thereafter she will be lost to London and Mr. Charlot for some time. When she does return to London it will be under the management of Aarons and Freedley. It is understood the new Gershwin show will be devised directly to fit Miss Lawrence's talents.

The Brox sisters, notable in various Music Box Revues, will go into the cast of "The Cocoanuts" Monday night at the Lyric.

Capacity for Standard Hits.

BUSINESS failed to improve last week but the standard hits continued to virtual capacity. "Lulu Belle" did $21,655 at the Belasco at $3.85 and was second only to "The Shanghai Gesture," which had $21,800 in its last week at the Martin Beck before moving to the Shubert. "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" did about $14,500 at the Fulton, also at $3.85. "Cradle Snatchers" remained at $13,000 at the Music Box with a $3.30 top.

The Theater Guild's "At Mrs. Beam's" took in $13,500 at $2.75. Barrie continued to excellent business at the Bijou, where Helen Hayes and "What Every Woman Knows" grossed $10,000. The last few performances of "The Dybbuk," which were played to full houses, brought the total at Neighborhood Playhouse to $5492. "The Romantic Young Lady" divided the week in Grand Street.

"Sunny," as usual, kept way up with $42,000 at the New Amsterdam. Its nearest contender was the new Winter Garden revue, "The Great Temptations," which, with a $5.50 top and three matinees, went above $25,000. "The Vagabond King," at the Casino, remained around its $25,000, but "Song of the Flames" dropped a trifle to a bit more than $23,000 at the Forty-fourth Street. At the Lyric, "The Cocoanuts" was about Boots," the film version of the Broadway success which Director Frank Tuttle is preparing for production in Hollywood, starting June 14. Eddie Cantor, star of "Kid Boots," has closed his show in the East and will start for the West Coast soon. In addition to Miss Bow, the cast will include Esther Ralston, who is now playing in "Old Ironsides," and Lawrence Gray, who has just finished appearing opposite Bebe Daniels in "The Palm Beach Girl."

In "Midnight Lovers," Anna Q. Nilsson will have the opportunity of an aerial voyage for the first time. Lewis Stone will play the role of the reckless aviator. John Francis Dillon will direct the picture, which is from the play "Collusion," adapted by Carey Wilson.

Esther Ralston will play the leading role in Ziegfeld's "Glorifying the American Girl," soon to be made into a Paramount picture.

There is every reason to believe that Skouras Brothers, the local motion picture theater magnates, will soon announce the taking over of the West Coast Theaters, a chain of 150 picture houses in California. Spiros Skouras has been in Los Angeles for several weeks considering the deal and it is reported that satisfactory terms have been decided upon. The Skourases have not been idle at home in the meantime. Yesterday they announced that, preliminary to the opening of their downtown Ambassador Theater, they have reorganized their managerial force by promoting Cullen Espy to the management of the Ambassador and transferring Leto Hill from the Shenandoah to succeed Espy at the Lyric Skydome and West End Lyric theaters.

At present Espy is in Chicago studying theater service and laying plans for a comprehensive service system here. He will return to St. Louis in about a month to organize his force for the opening of the Ambassador in the middle of August.

Espy, son of J. C. Espy, former secretary of the Board of Police Commissioners, has been with the Skouras Brothers for the last five years.

Hill, who has previously managed the Arsenal, Lafayette and Shenandoah, has been with the organization for seven years.

Bryant Washburn, who made his entrance into the films as a villain, later to become one of the screen's leading men, has returned to his first love. Washburn is playing the deep-dyed trouble-maker in "Young April," which co-features Rudolph and Joseph Schildkraut at the De Mille Studio.

out of a window at The Sign of the Red Mill, but are captured by the burgomaster of Kawtky-an-Zee, Mynheer jan van Borkem, who sets them to work as servants.

Partly in revenge and partly out of chivalry, the Americans plot to save the Burgomaster's daughter, Gretchen, from a distasteful marriage with the Governor of Zeeland, and to help her elope with her sweetheart, Capt. Doris van Damm. She is locked up in the Red Mill, and escapes by swinging on its wings.

The shifty Americans disguise themselves as organ grinders, and then as Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson. Gretchen is restored to her lover, who is found to be heir to an English estate; the Governor consoles himself with Gretchen's aunt, who is equally wealthy, and "Con" Kidder takes unto himself Tina, daughter of Willem, the innkeeper.

Next week the association will present a revival of "The Chocolate Soldier," an operetta by Oscar Straus, based on Bernard Shaw's comedy, "Arms and the Man."

OTIS SKINNER PLAYS FALSTAFF IN MASSIVE REVIVAL OF 'HENRY IV'

$22,000. Admission to the above shows is $5.50.

"TIP-TOES" grossed $21,112 at $4.40 at the Liberty and at $3.85 "The Girl Friend" had its most prosperous week at the small Vanderbilt with $12,000. "Iolanthe" did $17,600 at the Plymouth. Charges there are $3.30. "The Garrick Gaieties" again did capacity business at the Garrick with $8500 at $2.75.

The Actor's Fidelity League, sometime antagonist of the now dominant Equity, met Tuesday and elected officers. The death of Henry Miller deprived them of their president of many seasons. Holbrook Blinn was elected president, George M. Cohan, vice president; Louis Mann, second vice president; Howard Kyle, secretary; and Edward J. Mackay, treasurer. As directors for three years: Fay Bainter, Amelia Bingham, Ruth Chatterton, Ina Claire, Mrs. Fiske, Albert S. Howson, Helen G. Judson, Marjorie Wood, Francis Starr and Leonore Ulric.

Musical Educator to Lecture.

John M. Williams, educator and composer of New York, will lecture at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at Hotel Statler, on "The Musical Education of a Child." Admission will be free. His present tour includes Philadelphia, Chicago, Kansas City, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

come to the premiere of Puccini's 'Turandot,' which I prepared and conducted. That's all nonsense."

He Demanded Perfection.

TOSCANINI stopped speaking abruptly, as if he thought he had said too much. I did not press him and took my leave.

From some of the orchestra men of the Scala I learned the rest of what Toscanini had only hinted.

The Italian conductor had always been a very devil to get on with, but since his return from America nothing has seemed to satisfy him. Italians are not as docile as Americans when it comes to being disciplined. Simply asking a man to sound his "A" is enough to start an argument.

Toscanini demanded perfection. He could not get it and quit.

EVA LE GALLIENNE TO OPEN POPULAR PRICED THEATER

Costliest Seat Will Be $1.50 and Only First-Class Plays Will Be Given.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Before sailing for Europe a few days ago Miss Eva Le Gallienne announced that next season she will sponsor a popular-priced playhouse in New York to be called the Civic Repertory Theater, and to give only first-class plays. The costliest seats, she said, would be $1.50.

She gave no intimation as to the location of the theater, but said it would begin on Oct. 18 with "Saturday Night," by Benavente. Other plays on the list are Tchekoff's "The Three Sisters"; Goldoni's "La Locandiera"; Galsworthy's "The Golden Box"; Granville Barker's "The Secret Life"; Shakspeare's "Twelfth Night"; Maeterlinck's "Sister Beatrice"; Sierra's "The Cradle Song," and Ibsen's "The Master Builder." "John Gabriel Borkman" and "The Pillars of Society."

PLANS CHAIN OF THEATERS FOR WOODWARD PLAYERS

Kansas City and Cincinnati Playhouses First to Be Operated From St. Louis.

With St. Louis as a center, O. D. Woodward of the Woodward Players, at the Empress Theater, is planning next year to operate a chain of stock playhouses, and to take advantage of the fact that, owing to the collapse of road shows, early releases of plays produced in New York are becoming more and more practicable.

With his St. Louis company reopening at the Empress Sept. 4, two other troupes will begin their seasons at the Shubert Theater in Kansas City, Aug. 28, and at the Cox Theater in Cincinnati. Other cities are to be added to the chain.

This week's bill will close the season at the Empress. It is Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen."

MIKHAIL MORDKIN TO TOUR AMERICA NEXT SEASON

Celebrated Russian Dancer Will Have Company of 45 Headed by Elena Lukom.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Mikhail Mordkin, Russia's foremost male dancer, will tour America next season, under the management of Morris Gest, with his own company of 45 members, including six principals, a corps de ballet and a symphony orchestra.

He will be supported by Elena Lukom, successor of Pavlowa and Karsavina in the Leningrad Ballet; Pierre Vladimiroff and Hilda Butsova. Several new choreographic dramas are to be presented, of which two, "Aziade" and "The Carnival," have scenarios devised by Mordkin. This will be his third visit to America, but the first in more than 14 years.

TRADE OF GERMAN PLAYERS

Milwaukee Actors and Vehicles Will Appear at Odeon.

An interchange of plays and actors has been arranged between the Pabst Theater of Milwaukee and the German Theater Stock Company of this city, which will begin a series of Sunday evening performances at the Odeon on Oct. 3, under the management of James Brueckner.

The opening production, an operetta called "Marietta," will present Annamarie Rueggold and Fritz Fischer of Milwaukee, as well as Lottie Engel and Louis Rupp of the local troupe.

Miss Bankhead's London Fame.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 5.—Fourteen American plays are running in London theaters, and none of them has been more welcomed than Sidney Howard's "They Knew What They Wanted." Tallulah Bankhead, American actress, has won the greatest success of her London career in this play, and is generally credited by the reviewers with being an emotional actress of rare ability. Glenn Anders, of the original New York company, is also in the London cast.

Yiddish Comedian Plays Here.

Sam Kestin, a leading comedian of the Yiddish stage, will appear at the Odeon Tuesday night in a performance of "The Jolly Paupers" with the entire cast of the Palace Theater of Chicago in his support. He has had a theatrical career of almost four decades, and is touring the country before making an extended visit to Europe.

Bank Clerks Elect Directors.

The Bank Clerks' Association of Missouri met and elected as board members, to serve three years, F. Falkenhainer, J. E. Ruth, E. T. Cummings, L. H. Pange and G. J. Broeckenkamp. The new board will elect officers June 10 at the State National Bank.

PHILADELPHIA ORGANIST WILL BE AT THIRD BAPTIST CHURCH

Henry S. Fry, President of National Association, to Play Concert Tomorrow Night.

Henry S. Fry, organist of St. Clement's Church, Philadelphia, and president of the National Association of Organists, will give a recital at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening at Third Baptist Church.

The program will be as follows: "Concert Overture," Maitland; Andante cantabile from Symphony No. 4, Widor; "Wedding Chimes," William Faulkes; Chorale in A Minor, Franck; Menuett, C. P. E. Bach; Gavotte, Joseph Bonnet; "Siciliano," Fry; two choral preludes and Scherzo symphonique, Georges Debat-Ponsan.

HAS LAUGH ON COVENT GARDEN

Chaliapin Was Refused 1000 Francs There 18 Years Ago.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 5.—Chaliapin, the Russian basso, has a good laugh on the officials of Covent Garden. Eighteen years ago, when he tried to get an engagement to sing at 1000 francs, the proffer of his services was somewhat haughtily rejected.

"The manager," says Chaliapin, "told me that I was no Patti, and that I was not even a singer. He said it was fantastic for a basso to ask such a price.

And now 1000 francs is only a small fraction of the sum which Feodor is receiving for each appearance at the opera.

Arliss Will Tour Coast.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWARK, N. J., June 5.—George Arliss, who ended his tour here tonight in Galsworthy's "Old English," announced that he will resume acting in this play next season, and will visit the Pacific Coast, where he has not appeared since the days of "Disraeli," in 1914. He will spend the summer at his country home in Kent, England.

USE CANTHROX Shampoo

Beautiful Hair This Way

Hair that lies in fluffy softness about the face and neck; hair that is lustrous and lovely, seeming much more abundant than it really is—this is the way which actresses and famous beauties have found. And it is a way you, too, can find by simply getting a package of Canthrox from your druggist.

This shampoo can be given with very little effort, and at trifling cost. Dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes enough to go all over the hair instead of just on the top. Be sure that every strand is given the benefit of this daintily perfumed, delightful preparation. It removes every bit of excess oil and dirt, and by keeping the scalp healthy you avoid dandruff.

One shampoo costs only three cents, and you will never know really healthy and beautiful hair until you use it.—Advertisement.

Corns Stop hurting in 3 seconds

"Gets-It" the world's fastest corn ender

WORKS like magic on any kind of corn or callus, no matter how old, where it is, how bad it hurts. One touch and the pain goes. Almost unbelievable. Then the corn shrivels up and goes. A scientific way that dancers, walkers, actors, doctors and millions use. Beware of imitators. Get the real "Gets-It" at leading drug stores everywhere.

MISS ROSETTA KAUFMAN

"There's nothing like Black and White Rouge for giving just the right touch of color the mode demands," says chic Miss Rosetta Kaufman, 546 Lafayette Av., Brooklyn, New York. "This exquisitely textured rouge doesn't need to be ground in so it roughens or irritates my skin. A pat of the puff, with a smoothing around the edges makes the color blend with the tones of my skin and look perfectly smooth and natural."

Black and White Rouge, and the Lipstick and Eyebrow Pencil, too, can be gotten in dainty, gold-dipped vanities for 25c, from more than 50,000 dealers in the country and city alike.

If your dealer doesn't have Black and White Rouge, send his name to Plough, Memphis, Tenn., and you will receive FREE a copy of the Birthday and Dream Book, containing many interesting facts on beauty, dreams and fortune telling.

A BANQUET THAT WAS ALMOST A TRAGEDY

"Three years ago at a banquet I was stricken with acute indigestion. Two doctors worked over me for an hour before I came to. I had had severe colic attacks before, but nothing like that. No doctors or medicine gave me permanent help until a friend, who was at the banquet, advised me to take a course of MAYR'S, which I did with wonderful results." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all Wilson Drug Stores, Walgreen Drug Co. and druggists everywhere.

INDIAN RELICS 1000 YEARS OLD EXHIBITED

Pottery Jars and Heads From Mexico Said to Have Egyptian Features.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 5.—Pottery jars a thousand years old from the Casas Grandes ruins in Northern Mexico, and prehistoric pottery heads, many with Egyptian features, said to be from 2000 to 4000 years old, are features of the Thomas Condell collection of American Indian relics, which has been placed on exhibition at the Illinois State Museum here.

"The pottery heads," Condell said, in commenting on the collection, "were dug up from the ruins of Tehuatehuacan, about 70 miles from Mexico City, by William Niven, an archeologist. Several of them have very marked Egyptian features, and several pieces look as though they might have been copied from the sphinx.

"There are also prehistoric white alabaster pieces from the South of Mexico City, with carved plumed heads and old symbols of writing." The remainder of the collection consists of blankets, dresses, sashes, bead work, baskets, pottery, silver and turquoise jewelry, musical instruments and rattles used in Indian religious ceremonials and other articles used in their daily life.

Work of 50 Tribes.

The baskets number over 350, and represent the work of nearly 50 tribes from Point Barrow, jutting out from Alaska into the Arctic Ocean, and Attu, the farthest west island of the Aleutian group, down through Alaska, British Columbia, Washington, Idaho, Oregon, California, Nevada, Arizona and Louisiana.

"A basket from Alaska," Condell explained, "was patterned after the communion goblet in the old church, and was evidently used for drinking wine, as the once bright colors have been toned down to a rich bronze. This specimen was in possession of the wife of an Indian trader in Alaska for more than 30 years.

"A shallow basket tray, made by a Paniment Indian of Death Valley, contains over 32,000 stitches and took months to make. A Pomo Indian gift or jewel basket has over 6500 small colored beads sewed in it in the making.

Then there is a basket jar, called an olla, that has an interesting history. When the notorious Apache chieftan Geronimo, finally surrendered in 1886, one of the scouts named Edward Hayes, took several baskets from Geronimo's camp, that had been made by his squaws. This one Hayes gave to his friend, Edward Jerry of San Carlos, Ariz., in 1891, and Edward Jerry's letter is with the basket.

Silver Torquoise Jewelry.

"Few people realize the rarity and value of the fine old blankets woven by the Navajo Indians of New Mexico and Arizona, some of the finest weaving being in the single and double saddle blankets. They also wove very fine squaw dresses. The desirable old specimens are getting more and more difficult to find, nearly all of them being now in museums or private collections, and when offered for sale the price often runs well up into the hundreds of dollars.

"This collection shows many specimens of the fine old blankets and in addition to the Navajo weaving there are also Acama, Zuni and Hopi weaving, in dresses and sashes. Most of this weaving is from 35 to 150 years old.

"There is a good collection of old silver and turquoise jewelry, rings, bracelets, necklaces, belts, ear rings, wrist guards, and other silver ornaments, nearly all of which was made by Navajo Indian silversmiths out of Mexican coin silver.

"The Navajo Indians are the great silver workers of the Southwest, and their old jewelry, much set with native turquoise, is artistic and much sought after.

Deer Bone Breast Shield.

"The pottery shown consists of the best old work of the pottery makers of San Juan, Santa Clara, Cochiti, Santo Domingo, Zia, Laguna, Acama, and Zuni, New Mexico, and Hopi and Maricopa, Arizona. There is also pottery made by the Navajo Indians and some prehistoric pieces from New Mexico.

"In the collection of bead work there is an Indian beaded bridle that was picked up on the battlefield of the Little Big Horn the day after the Custer massacre in May, 1876.

"There is a long necklace worn by a Sioux Indian made of beads and nearly 100 buffalo teeth; necklaces of beads and deer bones; and a Sioux breast shield or ornament made of 138 deer bones. As they only got two bones from a deer, one from each front leg; 69 deer were killed to get enough bones for this one shield."

W. C. T. U. to Elect Officers.

Annual election of the W. C. T. U. Federation will be held at the June meeting at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow at Luccock Lodge, 2628 Delmar boulevard. Mrs. Charles M. Hay, president for six years, has served notice she would not accept the responsibility longer. The new officers will be installed at the September meeting.

Golden Wedding Celebrated.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. F. William Drake was celebrated last Sunday with a reception and buffet supper at their home, Page avenue and Walton road. About 75 persons were present, including their three children and six grandchildren. Mr. Drakesmith is 85 years old and Mrs. Drakesmith is 71.

There's a Real Thrill in The New Budweiser

YOU'VE waited since July, 1919, for such a drink. SEVEN YEARS! for a real brew with thick, creamy head, full body and the rich, fragrant flavor of finest Bohemian hops and choicest northern barley. It's ready NOW at a near-by store.

THE minute you cascade your first glassful out of the bottle and raise it expectantly to your lips, you'll realize that The New Budweiser is as tempting a drink as any you knew in the good old days.

What a treat is in store for you! More life—more warmth—the thick, creamy head and full body you get only in a real brew. And a flavor so completely satisfying that it carries you back to happy pre-prohibition days.

Every mouthful of The New Budweiser proves how completely we have overcome the obstacles that arose during the last seven years. To us, each new obstacle has been a challenge and an opportunity, but before capitalizing our opportunities we had to perfect new and better methods of brewing.

And that took years of time, and the genius of America's master brewers!

For, before announcing The New Budweiser, we wanted to make sure that we had perfected a drink that would bring back good fellowship to America!

Not a Manufactured Product

The New Budweiser is not a manufactured product, but a real brew such as you thought would never again be found in America. There's nothing like it to top off the mid-day luncheon or that last sandwich just before you slip between the sheets for a good night's sleep.

You've waited a long, long time for such a drink. But it's ready now at a near-by store—in single bottles, in handy 12-bottle cartons and the 24-bottle case. A phone call will bring it to your home for you to enjoy tonight.

Ring for it now—and whenever good fellows get together.

The Fundamentals of

are the soluble substances of barley-malt, rice and hops. We have the pick of the finest imported Saazer hops and those of New York, Oregon, California and Washington; also the choicest barleys and rice American soil produces. Mississippi River water lends itself exceptionally well to brewing, because it brings out better the natural flavor of the cereals and hops. The result—

MARSHAL AND CORPORAL MEET

Von Hindenburg Remembered His Former Comrade in Arms.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 5.—President Von Hindenburg has a good memory for faces. Also he knows how to treat old-time friends of his army days, notwithstanding the fact that they may rank far below his level as a field marshal.

Receiving war veterans of 1866, 1870 and 1871 on the Hamburg City Hall steps, President Von Hindenburg recognized an 83-year-old former comrade in arms, Corp. Reichow. The Field Marshal had not seen him previously in 30 years. The President stepped away from those nearest him, and grasped Reichow by both hands. "Why, we know each other well," said the President, as the aged Corporal with tears in his eyes struggled to acknowledge the verbal greetings. Finally the Corporal, who had seen Lieut. Von Hindenburg wounded during the storming of Koenigsgraetz in 1866, recovered his composure. He and the Field Marshal then chatted for five minutes.

COMPLEXION CLEARS UP, FEELS CHEERFUL AGAIN

"When I got married and went to housekeeping," says Mrs. Pearl Tabor, of Candler, N. C., "my mother told me to get a package of Black-Draught and keep some on hand for biliousness and constipation. That was fifteen years ago, and since that time I have very rarely been without it.

"I have found it the best relief for constipation I can get. It leaves no bad after-effects, and a dose now and then keeps the system rid of impurities which would accumulate and cause serious trouble.

"Occasionally I have had spells of headaches and sour stomach. When I notice a spell of this kind coming on, I begin taking Black-Draught. I take a dose every night for several days, just a pinch of the powder, and I soon find I'm quite all right.

"If my color has become yellow, which it often does, it clears up right away after taking Black-Draught, and I'm rosy and cheerful again.

"I have found Black-Draught invaluable in raising my family. My mother has used Black-Draught for thirty-five years, and she thinks there is nothing like it. She has used it frequently during that time and she thinks she can't get along without it. I certainly can recommend it for it has saved me many a bad spell.

Thousands of families keep a package of Black-Draught in the medicine chest, for prompt use when needed. To take a dose of Black-Draught at the first sign of constipation is not half as disagreeable as the symptoms which will soon develop if the trouble be neglected. Constipation is the forerunner of too many serious ills to be neglected. Do not neglect yours, but get a package of Black-Draught, at once. Sold by druggists. JA-34

BEAUTIFYING PARTIES NEW VOGUE IN LONDON

Strike-Breaking Ruined Complexions, and Court Season Has Been Extended.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 5.—The postponement of the first Courts of London season, necessitated by the general strike, and the subsequent decision of King George and Queen Mary to prolong the season until the end of August puts an unusual strain on society folk and aspiring debutantes.

Normally the season ends about mid-July, when society moves from London to Goodwood and Cowes, and later to the grouse moors. An additional month therefore requires elaborate preparation.

Many complexions, brought to London for the opening of the season in May, in first class trim, suffered considerably during the nine days of the general strike, when all society turned with enthusiasm to strike-breaking. Domestic work and cooking in the various canteens, car driving, newspaper distributing and a hundred-and-one other volunteer occupations spread over all hours of the day and night played havoc with soft hands and peach-bloom cheeks, and as soon as the strike was called off the beauty parlors and beauty specialists were overwhelmed by the rush of women seeking to repair the ravages of unaccustomed work.

Renovation Parties Arranged.

Regular "renovation parties" were promptly arranged by enterprising hostesses. Guests were invited to gather round, discuss and apply all the "first aid" arts of the beauty specialist. Not only the ordinary adjuncts of the toilet table, but regular dieting programs, have been requisitioned in the sacred cause and some of these parties are being called "fasting parties."

Typical is the party arranged for next Tuesday by Mrs. William Loeffler of Los Angeles, who with other American hostesses is taking a big part in this style of entertainment. Mrs. Loeffler's invitations include a sort of catechism, designed to facilitate any special treatment the guest may be undergoing.

Questions for the Guests.

The questions asked are:

Are you on a diet, and, if so, what? Do you eat meat, and, if so, what kind? Which vegetables do you like most? What special foods has A or B or C (beauty specialists) ordered for you? What sweet do you like most and does A or B or C permit it? What would you like to do afterwards?

Intelligent answers to these questions will insure the guest's arrival at the proper table where her own foods will await her.

The party part of the party is even more elaborate. Mrs. Loeffler has booked the resources of one of the leading West End hotels, and after food her guests will adjourn to a salon where all the machinery of the beauty parlor has been installed. Leading specialists will be in attendance to give assistance or advice on new treatments. Those who want mud baths, or wax massage, have only to mention it and everything is provided.

The swimming pool and the gymnasium are at the service of those favoring gentle exercise and to while away odd moments there will be fashion parades of Ascot, Goodwood, Cowes and Court frocks, a movie show and some music, with of course, dancing for those feeling sufficiently energetic.

This program is being largely copied.

FRENCH UNABLE TO MEET PRICES PAID BY ALIENS

Claim English and Americans Are Driving Them From Places of Recreation.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 5.—French people are becoming more and more sensitive about the difference between their standard of living and that of the stranger within their gates—particularly the man with dollars and pounds to spend.

The French, they say, are being gradually driven from places of amusement because the extravagances of foreigners results in a swift and continual advance in price. They complain that they are acquiring a reputation for stinginess because they cannot afford to be as liberal as people from countries of high exchange. One Frenchman tells how he had to try six taxicab drivers at the Saint Lazare station before he found one who would take him aboard. The other chauffeurs all told him to try some other taxi, that they were waiting for the Americans and English from the next train.

A newly-wed French couple reported that they were refused an apartment at one of the popular seaside hotels, while an American couple coming right behind them, was instantly accommodated. The French have for a long time been practically excluded from Montmartre because the prices in the night establishments became prohibitive to them. They now deplore that boulevard establishments are also becoming so expensive they are obliged to abandon them also to Americans, North and South, English, Spanish and Germans.

Postage More Than Tax Balance.

BERLIN, June 5.—The watchdogs of the Reich's Treasury Department are figuring income tax returns down to the last cent in their attempt to keep the budget balanced. An irate taxpayer, complaining about the "immense amount of leisure time Terasury officials seem to have," has written a Berlin newspaper saying that after paying a tax of 3500 marks last year he recently received a bill for 4 pfennigs (about 1 cent) for balance due. Added to this, the taxpayer said, was a charge of 5 pfennigs to cover postage. To avoid collectors' fees, the respondent said he had to send 5 pfennigs for a 1-cent money order and 5 pfennigs for a stamp to settle the bill.

Children Cry For Fletcher's
CASTORIA

When Baby Complains.

There are many ways a baby has of expressing any pain or irregularity or digression from its normal condition of health and happiness. A short sharp cry, a prolonged irritated cry. Restlessness, a constant turning of the head or of the whole body, fretful. In these and other ways a baby tells you there is something wrong. Most mothers know that a disordered stomach, or bowels that do not act naturally are the cause of most of baby's sufferings. A call for the doctor is the first thought, but in the event of any delay there should be ready at hand a safe remedy such as Fletcher's Castoria.

Castoria has been used for baby's ailments for over 30 years and has merited the good will of the family physician in a measure not equaled by any other baby's medicine because of its harmlessness and the good results achieved.

And remember this: Castoria is essentially a baby's remedy and not a cure-all for every member of the family. What might help you is too often dangerous when given to a babe.

Fletcher's Castoria safely relieves

Constipation	Wind Colic	To Sweeten Stomach
Flatulence	Diarrhea	Regulate Bowels

LIBRARY LENDS 232,080 BOOKS

Circulation Larger Than in Any Other May in Its History.

A circulation of 232,080 books last month, compared with 226,999 in May, 1925, by the St. Louis Public Library is reported by Librarian Arthur E. Bostwick. The Central Library and 11 of the 15 branch libraries participated in this increase.

There is a seasonal decrease generally through April and May, though last month's compilation was the largest in any May in the library's history. There were 3776 volumes added to the library.

MRS. ALVIN T. HERT TO BE HONOR GUEST

Only Woman on G. O. P. National Committee to Attend Congressional Dinner Here.

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, whose husband was one of the "Big Five" on the Republican National Committee, and who, herself now is vice president of the committee, will be guest of honor at the Congressional dinner at 6 p. m. Wednesday at Hotel Chase.

Republican candidates for Senator and for Congress from the Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth districts will speak. Acceptances already have been received from most of the 17 candidates.

Senator Williams now is in Washington, but informed the committee of women arranging the dinner that he would be present if possible. The other candidates for the Republican nomination for Senator are David M. Proctor of Kansas City, W. O. Atkeson of Butler and Blodgett Priest of St. Louis.

Mrs. Hert is the only woman holds an office in the National Committee, and is official head of the woman element in the party. She has wired from New York that she expected to arrive at her home in Louisville Sunday and come on to St. Louis for the dinner.

The dinner will take place in the Palm Room, where about 1000 persons can be served, and reservations may be made until Tuesday at the Republican State Committee offices in the American Hotel or the City Committee headquarters in the Planters building. The committee on arrangements includes Mrs. Louis H. Burlingham, National Committeewoman, as chairman; Mrs. William R. Haight of the State Committee, and Mrs. Alfred H. Elsman, Mrs. Harry Hoffmann and Miss Lenore Kramer respectively for the Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth Congressional Districts.

CAMPAIGN TO RAISE $80,000 IN COUNTY TO CARE FOR AGED

Fund to Be Used to Erect New Old Folks' Home, to Supplant One at Kirkwood.

A campaign to raise $80,000 to be used to construct a new Old Folks' Home in St. Louis County to supplant the present home, in Kirkwood, will be started tomorrow with a dinner in the Kirkwood Parish House. Funds will be solicited only in the county. Permission to make the campaign was granted by the Community Fund, of which the home is a member.

A site for the proposed new home has been purchased on Denny road, across from Kirkwood High School. Quarters for 40 persons would be provided in the new structure. Twenty-seven persons can be cared for in the present home, a frame structure, which has been in use for 16 of the 20 years the organization has existed. Arrangements have been made for payments of pledges quarterly over a period of two years, beginning July 1. Richard E. Holekamp of Webster Groves is general chairman of the campaign.

DECIDEDLY THE BEST THING SHE EVER USED

Says Saint Louis Woman in Referring to the Great Herb Extract Preparation for Years Called Herb Juice.

Hattie Brown

"There is no doubt in my mind but what your Herb Juice is the most wonderful remedy on the market today in treatment of such ailments as I have suffered from for years, namely: Chronic constipation, gassy stomach and badly run-down condition generally. But I want to say, after taking your remarkable Herb Juice for only a short time it has given me such relief as I have not known in years," said Hattie Brown, 1014 Lami street, St. Louis, Mo., in a recent conversation with the special demonstrator at Walgreen drug store.

In continuation of her statement of her condition before she was fortunate enough to find the great herbal remedy, known as Herb Juice, she said: "For a number of years I have been dreadfully constipated and I think I had all the other little aggravating ailments which accompany this malady, such as poor appetite, lots of gas on the stomach, indigestive disorder and run-down condition generally. Of course, I realize the fact that 90 per cent of the above ailments are caused directly or indirectly from constipation, and once we right constipation, it seems to me we right our whole system, at least this is the way it seemed in my case. I took practically everything I could hear of or that anyone would recommend for my ailments, but never seemed to get any noticeable results. Finally, after hearing Herb Juice praised so highly by so many people who had used it and noticing so many interesting testimonials of good reliable people here at home, I decided to try it myself. And from the very beginning it began to show a great improvement in my health. Today I am hale and hearty and never have any trouble whatsoever with constipation any more, and it seems that Herb Juice has just simply built up my whole system. I now eat and sleep better than I have in years. In fact, feel better in every way and just look like a new woman. I cannot praise Herb Juice enough because it seemed to be the last hope in my case and I will always be proud of an opportunity to recommend this great remedy to everyone."

This great laxative medicine is an Herb Extract preparation, known as Herb Juice and is outselling any medicine where it has been introduced. Many are calling daily to see the special demonstrator at Walgreen Drug Company, 514 Washington avenue, giving statements for publication, praising this great remedy that their friends may be induced to try it.

COBRA VICTIM OF SNAKEBITE

Horace Quarreled With His Cousin Once Too Often.

LONDON.—The famous white cobra of the London Zoo was the loser in a duel with the beautiful but dangerous South African ringhals, which shared its glass cage. Horace, the white cobra, and the ringhals often quarreled and bit each other. Poison was, of course, injected, but as they were of allied species, they were immune to their own venom. The fatal fight celebrated the arrival of the white elephant at the zoo. The fangs of the ringhals penetrated the spine of the white cobra and death resulted from twin stabs.

The ringhals are cousins of the cobra family and they possess a hasty temper and low habits. Their chief trick is to spit a spray of poison a distance of eight or nine feet. The keepers of the snakes are forced to wear motor goggles whenever it is necessary for them to enter the cage.

WALES STARTS BUSINESS BOOM

Mills Work Overtime When Prince Wears New Sweater.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 5.—How widely the foibles of the Prince of Wales for sartorial effect are watched and copied has just come out at a meeting of business men discussing trade secrets.

It was related that the heir to the throne on one occasion was seen wearing a bright Fair Isle sweater. Overnight this fact created an enormous demand. The hand knitters on Fair Isle, way up in the Shetland Islands off the coast of Scotland, suddenly were so swamped with orders that some of them had to be turned over to Donegal knitters. Then Leicester manufacturers evolved a machine which made a fine imitation of the pullover and a European demand followed which kept the machines going day and night for months.

Special Train to Coke Plant.

The smoke abatement committee of the Woman's Chamber of Commerce has chartered a special train of six coaches for an inspection trip through the St. Louis Coke and Iron Works, at Granite City, Tuesday. About 600 persons are expected to make the trip, leaving Union Station at 10 a. m. The purpose is to create general interest in methods of smoke abatement.

Why We Give Extraordinary Used Car Values!

Every Buyer of "Weber-Pledged Used Cars" Automatically Becomes a Studebaker Prospect

We candidly admit that every sale of "Weber-Pledged Used Cars" gives us an opportunity of demonstrating to our future purchasers the kind of service we render; the reliability of our promises and representations; the dependability or our merchandise.

The sale of a used car, therefore, is not of itself half as important to us as the fact that we have succeeded in getting acquainted with you, and in getting you to see our showrooms and our wonderful selection of guaranteed automobiles. Because we expect that your next purchase from us will be a Studebaker, it is an iron clad rule that the used car buyer must get the most possible for his money in "Weber-Pledged Used Cars"

FIRST PROPERTY BOUGHT FOR NEW 37-STORY HOTEL

ock Bounded by Twelfth Boulevard and Olive, Pine and Thirteenth Streets Proposed Site.

3-STORY OFFICE BUILDING INCLUDED

enry R. Weisels Announces Purchase of Northeast Corner of Thirteenth and Pine as Initial Move.

By Berry Moore.

Henry R. Weisels, president of enry R. Weisels, Inc., yesterday nounced the purchase of the theast corner of Thirteenth and ine streets in connection with ans for the erection of a preten- us hotel and an office building, the block bounded by Twelfth ulevard, Olive, Pine and Thir- enth streets.

In addition, according to Weis- options also have been obtained the majority of holdings in the ck. Acquisition of this corner s the first outright purchase in lalf of the project.

Would Have 800 Rooms.

A 37-story hotel structure with rooms is contemplated, with 1-story office building, Weisels d. A unique combination struc- e, with the hotel to occupy the st half of the block fronting on elfth boulevard, and the office ilding on the Thirteenth street e, is proposed. As described by ngels, the architecture would be ilar to the new Bell Telephone ilding.

Weisels declined to disclose fur- er details of the project, pending mpletion of negotiations for the tire site and financial arrange- nts. Cost of the buildings in- ding the site is estimated at 2,000,000.

The office building is to be con- ructed for the exclusive occu- ncy of a nationally known con- n, which, it is understood, will d in underwriting the proj- t. No previous announcement s been made of the office build- g feature.

Interest in Olive Street.

Henry R. Weisels Inc. is assem- ing the site in connection with e Cornet & Zeibig Trust and the lbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate

The southwest corner of elfth boulevard and Olive street, longing to W. K. Bixby, consti- es the most valuable holding in e block.

This block, which will be con- uous to the Memorial Plaza, is arded as the best site in the siness section of the city for a ilding enterprise of this charac- . Plans for the building have en made by George D. Barnett, chitect, with offices in the Syn- ate Trust Building.

Speculative interest has been re- akened in Olive street property. th the Supreme Court decision proving the widening program. otiations were concluded yes- day through the Cornet & Zeibig ust for a valuable parcel on this roughfare in the vicinity of elfth boulevard. Property is in mand on Olive street, both east d west of Twelfth.

CTION OF PAUL BROWN BUILDING READY SEPT. 1

The Ninth and Olive streets sec- n of the new Paul Brown Build- g will be ready for occupancy by pt. 1. Eventually the height of s section will be increased to 16 ories to conform to that of the rth and Pine streets section.

The Ninth and Pine streets por- n is on the sites formerly occu- ed by the old Benoist Building Benton Hotel, which were razed. pace is rapidly being absorbed both divisions of the Paul Brown ilding, according to Isaac T. Cook Co., agents.

AL ESTATE MAN BUYS SOUTH SIDE BUNGALOW

St. Louis News Co. to Build at 14th and Morgan

The St. Louis News Co., Inc., has purchased through the Mercantile Trust Co., the northeast corner of Fourteenth and Morgan streets, running through to Gay street. Plans are now being drawn and construction will start within a few weeks on a new building.

The Supreme Court decision on the validity of the Olive street widening remove the only obstruction to building at once, and the new building line will be conformed with in this construction.

The property sold was in three pieces and owned respectively by Missouri Baptist Orphans' Home of St. Louis, represented by Cornet & Zeibig; Joseph H. Schroeder, represented by B. F. Huff and Joseph H. Grand, represented by the Mercantile Trust Co. Arthur J. Pope of the New York office of the American News Co., parent company to the St. Louis News Co., and C. S. Krekau, directed the negotiations. Pope will superintend the new construction, as well as the sale of the firm's present home, 1008 Locust.

BOTTORFF COMPANY SELLS DOWNTOWN GARAGE BUILDING

The Bottorff Realty Co., representing Grant Selley, effected the sale of a four-story fireproof garage building at Eleventh and Walnut streets, to the Patricia-Kathaleen Realty Co., of which Paul V. Browne is president. The reported consideration was $225,000.

This guilding, which was completed a little more than a year ago, has a capacity of 400 cars, and with all modern garage facilities. Applications for space are coming in rapidly from the car owners of the new Bell Telephone Building. It is expected that after the completion of the new Plaza Development additional stories will be added to the building.

BUNGALOWS AND RESIDENCE SOLD BY BELLIS COMPANY

The Bellis Realty Co. reports the following sales: 5227 Wiesehan avenue, bungalow on a lot 30x125, purchased from Frank Seidler by Carl C. and Alma Moeller; 2601 North Garrison avenue, bungalow on a lot 23½x116, sold for Mary Scott to Robert and Iona Lange; 2726-28 Sulphur avenue, a duplex bungalow, sold for A. T. Bellis; 7046 Mitchell avenue, a cottage on a lot 30x160, purchased by William and Frances Bentz from Leo M. Bisso; 2629 South Twelfth street, residence, on a lot 30x125, sold to Louis Yates.

NEW FURNITURE CONCERN ACQUIRES TWO BUILDINGS

The J. D. Carson Co., a new furniture concern, will open within the next two weeks in quarters just obtained on long-term leases through the Brelit Real Estate Co.

The Carson Co. will retail furniture, rugs, stoves, refrigerators, phonographs and other articles in furniture and musical lines from the four-story building at the southeast corner of Eighth street and Franklin avenue.

Another four-story building at 825-27 North Eighth street, directly across the street from the retail store, has been leased for warehouse purposes, and for the selling of exchanged furniture.

These two buildings will give the J. D. Carson Co. 60,000 square feet of space.

The building at Eighth and Franklin is being altered and redecorated.

REAL ESTATE MEN HONOR J. M. ROHAN

James M. Rohan, president of the St. Louis Land Title Co., was given a testimonial dinner by about 300 members of the real estate fraternity, at the Elks Club at 3619 Lindell boulevard, last night.

Rohan is renewing his activities in local real estate circles after an absence of several years as president of the St. Louis Land Title Co., at Clayton, which recently purchased the business of the St. Louis Title Co., at 715 Chestnut street, where he will be head of the combined institutions.

A diamond ring was presented to Rohan by the employes of the St. Louis Land Title Co. B. F. Dickmann, one of the speakers at the dinner, urged his fellow realtors to work for the union of the city and St. Louis County.

The speakers at the dinner included Lawrence McDaniel, former Circuit Attorney; Jesse W. Barrett, formerly Attorney-General of Missouri, and McCune Gill, vice president of the Title Guaranty Trust Co. Bernard F. Dickmann, president of the Joseph F. Dickmann Co. and a member of the Elks Club, was chairman of the committee in charge of the dinner, which was suggested by Arthur J. Fitzsimmons.

SEVEN-STORY BUILDING FOR MANNE BROS. COMPANY

The concrete seven-story and basement building with mezzanine floor being erected by Manne Bros. Furniture Co. at 5615 Delmar boulevard, will form an attractive feature of this section. Construction will be fireproof with Gothic ceiling, and will comprise 75,000 square feet of floor space. Estimated cost of the building is $300,000.

The structure will embrace a lot 50x168 feet, practically all of which will be occupied by the building. The concern is now temporarily established at 5635 Delmar boulevard. The new building is scheduled for completion Dec. 1.

Realty Company Issues Gold Notes.

The Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Real Estate Co. has placed on the market attractive offerings in the form of 6 per cent gold notes. The notes are secured by first deeds of trust on six new high-class apartments in the western part of the city, underwritten by the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Co.

SEVERAL HOMES SOLD BY FRED W. GELAN REALTY CO.

The Fred W. Gelan Realty Co., 5457 Gravois avenue, reports the following sales: Bungalow, 4542 Adkins avenue, for Jacob Furrer to Frank Winkeler; cottage, 4721 Adkins, for Henry Bauer to Conrad Gruendal; flat, 3435 Utah, for Martin Erd to Frank Robben; flat, 3652 Liermann, for Louis Hesse to Louisa Stuckel; cottage, 4682 Seibert, for Louis Rohner to Frank Nowak; bungalow, 4609 Varrelmann, for Arnold Kiburz to Irene Thurston; bungalow, 4167 Concordia, for Jacob Heinlein to Herman Schuchmann; cottage, 4530 Newport, for George Banks to Henry Bauer; flat, 2607 South Eleventh street, for Adam Bartkiewicz to Paul Stecher; vacant ground on Schiller place to Lawrence Sinn who is going to construct modern bungalows; vacant ground on Kansas street for Lawrence Jouet to Herman Kuhn.

PINE STREET BUILDING SOLD TO OVERALL MANUFACTURER

A two-story building at 2210-12 Pine street, owned by the Edward Real Estate and Investment Co., was sold during the week by Isaac T. Cook & Co., to the Giant Vulcan Overall Manufacturing Co., at present at 923 Washington avenue. The owners were represented by the Goldman Realty Co., in the International Life Building.

The large garage and automobile salesroom at 4360-62 Manchester avenue, owned by Samuel Yawitz, was leased for a long term of years to a new company headed by H. A. Loesch and J. B. Felkel. A store at 319 North Grand boulevard was leased to James J. Carroll for a term of years. The A. H. Rice Co. has closed a lease on the fourth floor of the building at 505 North Seventh street.

TERMS MADE EASIER ON PARTRIDGE HEIGHTS LOTS

Starting today, lots in Partridge Heights will be offered on terms extending over a period of three years. This announcement by R. M. Berkley & Co., 6625 Delmar boulevard, exclusive selling agents for this property, has created considerable interest among real estate buyers in St. Louis.

The lots previously had been sold with a large first payment and short terms. Despite this fact, over 80 per cent of the property in Partridge Heights has been sold. The close-in location, natural beauty and the completed improvements, have combined to make Partridge Heights one of the best selling subdivisions in University City. Several expensive homes are under construction and several other owners have announced their intentions of building immediately.

TWO HOMES SOLD BY THE GEORGE F. BERGFELD CO.

The George F. Bergfeld Realty Co. reports the sale of a home of 10 rooms at 6843 Waterman avenue, to Bruce S. Elliott for Owen S. Tilton. Both parties were represented by the Bergfld company.

A modern six-family apartment at 734 Leland avenue was also sold for John C. Jannapoulo, who was represented by the Park Savings Trust Co., to a client of the Bergfeld company. The Bergfeld company will continue to manage the property.

SALES START TODAY AT NEW MEREDITH SUBDIVISION

The Barth Building and Real Estate Co., 4222 Gravois avenue, is placing Meredith subdivision on the market today. This is a tract of 34 lots recently purchased from the Mullanphy Board which had held it for a playground. It is located on Loughborough avenue across the street from the Blow School and the Johnson residence, and is bounded by Loughborough avenue on the north, Vermont avenue on the east and Blow street on the south. Bellefontaine car line is one block east, while there is bus service over Loughborough avenue. The new Y. M. C. A. Building is on one corner and the southeast entrance to Carondelet Park is only one block away. Theaters, churches and stores are within two blocks.

The concrete streets, alleys and granitoid sidewalks are being constructed. Gas, sewer, water and electric mains are in up to the property and will be connected at once, without additional cost to lot owners, the Barth company announces.

This property is high and in one of the most beautiful parts of South St. Louis. O. A. Barth, president of the Barth Building and Real Estate Co. reports many inquiries from prospective buyers.

ANNUAL PICNIC GIVEN BY A. R. SCHOLLMEYER FIRM

One of the largest and most successful picnics from real estate row was held Thursday all day on the Big River two miles east of Cedar Hill by the A. R. Schollmeyer Real Estate Co. Included in the picnic were all executives, salesmen and men clerks from the Schollmeyer office at 104 North Seventh street, the branch offices at Grand and Wyoming, Southwest Park, Ridgeview, West Point and Gravois Terrace, all Schollmeyer interests.

The picnic was given by A. R. Schollmeyer and is an annual affair. Arthur J. Fitzsimmons, Robert A. Newsham and Jack Hughes were in charge of arrangements and John H. Meyer in charge of the food.

STAR SQUARE AUTO SUPPLY CO. LEASES LOCUST ST. BUILDING

The Martin & Breitt Real Estate Co. have negotiated a 20-year lease to the Star Square Auto Supply Co. on the two-story and basement building at 1127 and 29 Locust street. This building is only 100 feet east of Twelfth boulevard. Extensive alterations will be made, an electric elevator will be installed and the basement will be modernized for salesroom purposes as will the second floor.

FOR ADDITIONAL REAL ESTATE NEWS SEE PAGE 14.

500 OF 1000 LOTS IN PAGEWOOD REPORTED SOLD

Activity at Pagewood, the new subdivision at the northwest corner of Page boulevard and Woodson road, continues to be an outstanding feature of the real estate market. More than half of the 1000 lots comprising this attractively situated addition have been sold, and there is every indication that the remainder will be closed out within a comparatively short time. Apparently the lots are in urgent demand from both homeseekers and investors. The unusual terms, together with the relatively low prices at which the lots are being offered, is a factor in the demand.

Scores of houses are being planned by those who have purchased lots. The tract is being handled by the Ben Altheim & Bro. Real Estate Co., with William J. Christy, director of sales.

"KINGSHIGHWAY HILLS," 100-ACRE TRACT, OPENED

Property Is in Old Shaw Estate and Is Designed as Restricted Residence Section.

PART OF BOULEVARD PLAN IN PROPERTY

This Street Is to Be Widened to 104 Feet—Board of Education Buys School Site.

The Cyrus Crane Willmore Organization, Inc., with offices in the Boatmen's Bank Building, announces the opening of "Kingshighway Hills," an 100-acre tract on South Kingshighway, three blocks south of Tower Grove Park and lying between Fyler and Pernod avenues.

The district, a part of the Shaw estate, is surrounded by development on all sides.

Cyrus Crane Willmore, president of the organization, says that "Kingshighway Hills" is planned for high-grade apartment development, restrictions having been placed upon the property.

The streets are to be of concrete with asphalt surface, alleys of concrete, curbing of concrete.

The estimated cost of improvements exceeds $700,000.

Willmore said that the property is free of encumbrance.

Oleatha boulevard, a part of the boulevard plan of the City Plan Commission, and which eventually will connect Meramec street with Hampton boulevard, thus providing a complete boulevard development from Forest Park through the southwest sector of St. Louis, runs directly through the property, and is to be made 104 feet wide with a park strip in the center.

Harland Bartholomew, engineer for the City Plan Commission, has expressed his appreciation to the Willmore organization for co-operation in providing a valuable link in the boulevard system.

The Board of Education has purchased an entire block in the center of the subdivision to be used for school purposes. All residence, flat and apartment sites in the district will be within a few blocks of the school.

The site purchased by the Board of Education is considered the most appropriate spot in the district for the purpose, every facility being provided for the comfort and safety of the future residents of this exclusive apartment district.

Open-Air Meeting on Value of City Planning

Speaker—Franz Herding, noted Swiss landscape engineer and city planning expert, of Los Angeles

For the benefit of those interested in better planning for homes and residential sections, different from the ordinary, a city and home planning meeting will be held today, Sunday, June 6, at 3 p. m., at the Open-Air Pavilion at Osage Hills (old Meramec Highlands). The problem from both county and city standpoint will be considered. All interested parties invited to attend.

In addition to Mr. Herding, who has designed some of the outstanding home sections of Europe and America, there will be other speakers, good music and other program features.

Enjoy the drive out Big Bend boulevard, or take Manchester-Meramec or Kirkwood-Ferguson street cars direct to grounds.

MEREDITH SUBDIVISION

A rare opportunity to obtain a splendid location for a home in the beautiful part of South St. Louis, located on Vermont and Alabama Avenues, between Loughborough and Blow Streets.

These are the conveniences: street cars, busses, public schools, new Y. M. C. A., public library, Carondelet Park, and public playgrounds all within two blocks, all churches and parochial schools in close vicinity with a variety of substantial retail stores in the immediate neighborhood. Improvements such as electric lights, gas, water, sewers, streets, alleys and walks for each lot.

This subdivision will be put on the market beginning Sunday, June 6th, at one o'clock. Salesmen will remain on the grounds each day until 8 P. M. until closed out. Make your selection early as the lots are priced to move quickly, $45 per foot and up; terms if desired. With these exceptional conveniences and location, the prices asked are absolutely lower than any property offered for sale in South St. Louis.

We will finance and build for you. Terms or cash.

Come out today and spend the day with us.

L. E. NEWELL, Clayton WYdown 0844

THINGS created without definite plan leave a great deal to be desired. Nowhere is this fact better illustrated than in modern American cities where home sections have grown up without plan, haphazardly, carelessly, with no consideration for the fitness of things, or for the preservation and utilization of natural endowments, nor for the wants and needs of those who live there. The modern conception of home development is nothing short of an architectural nightmare, with careless planning, geometrical regularity, criss-cross, parallel streets, congestion—conservation of space, but bitter waste upon the bodies and souls of those who must exist there.

To solve this vital problem, men of large vision and talent are giving themselves to the designing and building of better homes, home sections and cities, with thought for the beautiful and picturesque, the need of the mind and soul, and the health of the body.

With this vision and under the guiding hand of master designing, the entire 700 acres of Osage Hills has been treated as a single unit, and each detail has been carefully worked out on the basis of its relative importance to the whole development. The natural beauty and grandeur of this superb location in the hills overlooking the Meramec river will be preserved and enhanced as the whole countryside becomes a green and gracious sweep of gardens and parkways. Architectural unity, controlled by permanent restrictions, will forever protect the entire community. The plans for Osage Hills are unusual—better than the best—for they include provision for the most ideal community life. A large area has been set aside for parkways, gardens and rustic spots. And Osage Country Club, located in the midst of Osage Hills, will furnish recreation of every kind—golf, tennis, swimming, boating, horseback riding and splendid social contacts, with an environment necessary to every ideal community.

You must see Osage Hills to appreciate it. Come out today! You will enjoy the ride out beautiful Big Bend Boulevard direct to the project.

JOY HOME

230 BLACKMER PLACE

A Modern Colonial in a Most Exclusive Section

From those early days, when simplicity was a virtue and sturdiness a necessity, the Colonial home has come down to us with a splendid heritage of beauty and utility. And in this beautiful Joy-built home the modern Colonial finds its highest expression.

A broad center hall, large rooms, tiled baths and built-in showers, exquisite decorations, beautiful fixtures, each inspired by the lovely lines of an authentic original, and a typical Joy kitchen, designed and equipped to make housekeeping easier. A most modern heating system and a 2-car garage.

Open for inspection daily.

To get there—Follow Lockwood avenue to Swon avenue, then two blocks east to Blackmer place.

ANNOUNCING

The Opening of Two New Joy Homes at Maple and Cedar Avs.

An English house of delightful charm, and a Spanish house, colorful and attractive—a perfect setting for the exotic cretonnes and gay painted pieces from provincial Spain.

These Joy-built homes are homes of beauty, of strength and endurance, well-planned, exquisitely finished and contain every modern convenience for comfortable living. Large living rooms, beautiful bedrooms with abundant closet space and tiled baths with most modern plumbing.

The kitchen and laundries are planned and equipped with those modern appliances which lessen the cares of housekeeping.

Located in a most desirable section, on large, high lots, giving view, fresh air and sunlight.

You are cordially invited to visit these beautiful homes. If you plan to buy or build a home, either now or later, you will be repaid many times for a visit here.

They are here for you to enjoy or to acquire, and are open daily for your inspection.

MARILYN MILLER

JACK PICKFORD
Commence
a Friendly Separation

It is Becoming the Style in Hollywood to Take Marital Vacations. Does This One Mean the Beginning of a Divorce?

JACK PICKFORD, movie actor and Mary's brother.

MARILYN MILLER, Ziegfeld star dancer.

THE WEDDING WAS LIKE THIS: Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Marilyn Miller and Jack Pickford. Can you pick them out?

By A. L. WOOLDRIDGE
Special to the Post-Dispatch

HOLLYWOOD, California.—When a silvered airplane circled slowly over the home of Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford in the summer of 1922 and an army aviator dropped flowers upon the house and lawn, the "movie" colony smiled and said: "A beautiful wedding is in progress. Jack Pickford and Marilyn Miller are wild about each other. They will be supremely happy."

The drawing room of the Fairbanks home that day was a mass of roses, orchids, lilies of the valley and garlands woven from a wealth of Southern California blossoms. A studio orchestra hidden behind a bank of palms and ferns played Mendelssohn's wedding march and John Steele sang "O Promise Me." Mary Pickford was matron of honor and the Rev. Neal Dodd, pastor of Hollywood's "Little Church Around the Corner," read the service which ended with the words, "Whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder!" A moment later, the ceremony finished, Charlie Chaplin and "Doug" were frantically endeavoring to kiss the bride and the solemn occasion was converted into a joyous celebration.

"She's the most beautiful girl on earth!" exclaimed the bridegroom. "We'll be very, very happy."

The wedding party went into the dining room for a buffet lunch and later in the afternoon the couple drove away in a high-powered motor car to Riverside, to be guests at the Mission Inn.

The beginning of a honeymoon! Not unlike the beginning of thousands of honeymoons in the land of orange blossoms, palm trees and flowers. Life beckoned and beckoned. Jack Pickford was winning more or less of a niche in films, while Marilyn Miller was a star on New York's Broadway and under contract to Flo Ziegfeld of Follies fame. Both looked at the roseate hue of the future with delight. The fact that Miss Miller had to leave her husband within a month in order to open as the star of "Sally" in Boston, September 4, occasioned them never a moment's depression. They were living in the present. The days to come would take care of themselves.

From Mission Inn the two went to Del Monte and then to other points in California by motor. The lovers drove along the cliffs by the side of the sea and to the sunken gardens in estates of the wealthy. They watched the sun gild the peaks of the Sierra Madre Mountains and saw the ocean steamers disappearing in the west on their journeys to ports of the Orient. Dream days were at hand!

"We will be very, very happy," Jack Pickford said.

BUT were they? Have they been? Can two persons live 3000 miles apart, one in the glamour of the footlights and the other in tinseled picture studios, and retain through years an unflagging love for each other? Maybe they can; but they seldom do. And apparently the romance of Jack Pickford and Marilyn Miller has dragged itself along uninteresting avenues until it is dying with a yawn. Pickford is living in a cottage at Santa Monica, a Southern California beach resort. Miss Miller is starring in a New York musical comedy and announcement has been made that the two have decided upon a "marital vacation." It is to be a friendly separation, they say, with no idea of divorce in mind.

The cinema colony smiles sardonically. It has heard of "matrimonial vacations" before. Rudolph Valentino took his wife, Natacha Rambova, to the railway station in Los Angeles, ardently kissed her good-by, kissed her with rapturous sheikish kisses which caused the sparrows to peep and the pigeons to cry "coo-coo!"

"It's a marital vacation," Valentino explained. "Of course, we have had temperamental differences, but neither of us is contemplating a suit for divorce. Our separation merely means that we are trying to work out our mutual happiness."

And yet, Natacha went direct to Paris and obtained one of the popular brand, ribbon-entwined court decrees.

Virginia Valli and Demmy Lamson tried a trial separation, or marital vacation, which resulted in Miss Valli announcing that it was to be permanent and her husband advocating at least occasional separations for every married couple. Then Marjorie Daw came along with a marital vacation from Eddie Sutherland and offered this bit of her philosophy:

"In my opinion the laws should make it harder for persons to get married and easier for them to get divorced."

Now Jack Pickford and Marilyn Miller have announced their embarkation upon the treacherous river of trial separation, and speculation on the reason therefor is the chief topic of conversation in the cinema colony.

"It is a friendly separation to give time a chance to straighten out a trifling misunderstanding," said Miss Grace Moore, who is Mr. Pickford's personal representative. "Just a little difficulty of the kind that sometimes arises in the happiest of families. As a matter of fact, it is as much the demands of their professions as anything else that have kept Mr. Pickford and his wife apart. She, of necessity, must remain in New York on account of her stage engagements. He must be in pictures in California. Under those circumstances, they can't very well spend much time together."

But to the Hollywood boulevardiers this explanation doesn't satisfy. Pickford, himself, went into seclusion and would make no statement supplementing that of his personal representative. Miss Miller, in New York, merely corroborated the report of the marital vacation, but vouchsafed no explanation. What really happened, the boulevardiers say, is that Jack and Marilyn, after nearly four years of continuous living apart, have seen their love pale from inattention, and now disinterest has grown with age.

BUT, they add, there are "contributing causes" for this disinterest. Wine parties, studio revels, smuggled liquor are not unknown in Hollywood—wine parties attended by beautiful actresses and at which Pickford sometimes was a guest. In March, 1923, scarcely a year after his wedding to Marilyn, Jack appeared before the Federal prohibition agent in Los Angeles to explain the presence of his personal checks found in the possession of two asserted bootleggers. One was for $40 and the other for $115. One of the accused men was said to have declared he sold Pickford a half-case of gin and a case of Scotch for the two sums. Pickford later went before the Federal grand jury and gave testimony which automatically resulted in the charges against him being dropped.

Just about this time reports that Jack and Marilyn "had a mad" on at each other began circulating, but in Chicago Miss Miller denied a separation was contemplated.

"Why, he sends me stacks of telegrams and letters," she exclaimed. "I always save them."

"And he keeps her room just filled with flowers," her mother interposed.

Nevertheless, when Pickford's entanglements with prohibition officers became known, Marilyn decided to go to Hollywood. She arrived in May, with the avowed intention of spending three months. They took a bungalow, and for a while it appeared that a second honeymoon was in progress. They went motoring together about Southern California. They were seen in the cafes and driving along the boulevards. "Doug" and Mary entertained them in their home and Charlie Chaplin was nice to the two. After a while, Pickford said in an interview:

"My wife and I don't consider that we are having any right kind of life in being separated all the while. Some married folk may like vacations from each other, but we are old-fashioned—as old-fashioned as 'Sally'—and we don't."

But the reunion was brief. Marilyn packed her trunks and once more headed for New York to resume her work with Ziegfeld. It is said things did not look just right to her while she was on the west coast. The wine parties of Hollywood did not appeal to her. And while "Doug" and Mary were supreme in cinema land, her husband was not. In New York, she was accustomed to being feted and dined and paid homage to for her individual worth.

Then, too, there was Ben Lyon, handsome young picture actor, a friend who was attentive to her, and who frequently had been seen in her company. She could not get lonesome in the great city where so many actor folk live. And Ben Lyon was admired by so many people. It always pleases a woman to be seen in the company of a man whom other women might covet. Ben had been on the stage and he and Marilyn had much in common to talk about. They were boon companions. At one time, when called into the South, he is accredited with sending her numerous telegrams en route.

In the meantime, Jack Pickford remained on the west coast, occasionally working in pictures. He was not under contract to any big company. He sought employment as a free-lance and was cast for roles in a number of films. But his engagements were not so numerous they made him lose sleep. Occasionally he commuted to New York to see Marilyn and left each time saying that all was well between him and his wife.

NOT very long ago Jack acquired a home at Santa Monica Beach. A "hot-dog" vendor got it for him. The energetic sandwich peddler learned that a vacant lot adjoining the cottage of "Doug" and Mary was for sale. He obtained an option on it and promptly set up a sandwich stand to feed the tourists and curious persons who daily sought opportunity to catch a glimpse of "America's sweetheart" and her illustrious husband. Of course, Mrs. Pickford, Jack's mother, immediately bought him out to get rid of the odious sign he had posted and the more odious odor of "hot dogs." Whereupon, she built a cottage on the lot and presented it to Jack, and he now has a home for his Broadway star. But Marilyn is too busy with her work to occupy it. Rather, a "marital vacation," she admits, has begun.

About three months ago Jack went to New York for a brief stay. He and Marilyn were together a great deal, but it became obvious that all was not well. Apparently, the old adage, "Absence makes the heart grow fonder," did not apply in their case. Marilyn, starring in a musical comedy, was winning the plaudits of great audiences and admittedly was a Broadway favorite. Her husband "stood on the side lines" as she tripped before the footlights. He did not "belong." When he again boarded a train for the west coast he knew that his romance was ending. Possibly he knew it before he started on his visit to the East. Possibly he knew from his own heart that the assertion made on his wedding day—"We'll be very, very happy!"—was all an illusion. At any rate, he admitted upon his return that a trial separation had been agreed upon. When it was officially announced recently he remained in seclusion in his beach cottage while his personal representative said:

"The difficulties are too personal for me to comment upon. There is nothing more to say."

In New York Miss Miller said at the time of his departure:

"I think we are both very happy."

Whether this had a hidden meaning can only be conjectured. It is likely, however, that both she and her husband realized they had come to a critical period in their marital affairs and had amicably agreed to separate—for the present at least. Another "marital vacation!" The kind which has resulted in so many divorce cases being filed by members of the cinema colony!

Thus Jack Pickford's second marital venture appears to be on the rocks. His first wife was Olive Thomas, once declared to be the most beautiful girl in America. Her death occurred in Paris, September 10, 1920, following a revel which lasted till after midnight. Physicians reported that she swallowed sufficient lethal tablets to kill 25 men in an attempt at suicide. She lived for four days after taking the poison. When she was rushed to the hospital at Neuilly, a suburb of Paris, she was declared to have taken the tablets by mistake, but the Parisian authorities began an investigation of reports concerning champagne and wine orgies and a series of wild parties preceding her drastic act.

Although Jack Pickford was said to have been devoted to Olive Thomas, they are understood to have had temperamental differences, too, and at one time it was whispered they were on the verge of divorce. This was denied, however, and at the time they sailed for Europe they appeared to be in harmony. And yet, before the time came to start home Olive was a patient in a Neuilly hospital, poisoned by her own hand with lethal tablets. Oddly, Mary Pickford and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, are in Paris now, while the trial separation of Jack and Marilyn Miller is being announced. His mother is there, too, recovering from an illness which became acute in Italy while traveling with Mary and "Doug." The party soon will leave for Russia, then England. Lottie Pickford Forrest departed recently to join them in Paris.

IN a week or two Jack Pickford expects to start for Europe, where, probably in Germany, he will direct a motion picture to be made jointly by Fairbanks and Miss Pickford. He will take passage on one of the fast ocean liners in New York and the boulevardiers of Hollywood ask: "Will he see Marilyn in New York and will it be their final meeting as husband and wife? Is he to seek a divorce in Paris while away, and has his wife given him the necessary documents which will make it easy?" The boulevardiers take it for granted that the "marital vacation" is only the preliminary step to a final separation which, in the course of a few weeks or a few months, will be announced.

There is little doubt in the minds of those living in the realm of pictures that the separation of Jack Pickford and Marilyn Miller has resulted from their being so long apart, from growing disinterest and from the leading of such different lives. And it is possible their romance will be laid away where the cobwebs will gather, leaving them still good friends.

WHEN COLLEGES GIVE LOWER DEGREES

By W. A. BYRNES
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

"If the colleges give their seal of approval, with an LL. D., why not their seal of disapproval, with say a D. O. L. T., or the like?"

DR. JAY WILLIAM HUDSON, PROFESSOR OF PHILOSOPHY, UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI

"THERE IS NOT ENOUGH ATTENTION PAID to dice in the colleges," says Ray, who feels sure of his degree of M. C. S. (Master Crap Shooter). With the aid of the African dominoes he has been able to separate many of his classmates from their allowances, not to mention a goodly assortment of neckties and trousers. When asked what Catiline's answer to Cicero was, he replied, "Shoot the works!"

SUCH A THOROUGH STUDENT of the movies is Norma that she can give you the life history habits and tastes, including favorite flowers and breakfast foods, of any hero or heroine in the movies. She's not so reliable regarding heroes of history, however.

"Who cares about a bunch of dead ones, anyway?" she says. Her degree is M. S. G. (Movie Star Guide.)

COMMENCEMENT DAY WHEN EVERYBODY GETS A DEGREE WHETHER OR NOT HE WANTS IT

RUTH SAYS: "A false impression has been gained by many students that the only way to get through school is by studying and cramming. This is all wrong. Any girl with a winning smile, large expressive eyes and a knowledge of how to use them can get by in any class. And this goes for the old birds as well as the young Profs., too."

She's out for her degree of V. A. M. P. Will she get it?

ERIC, the Flivver Engineer, receiving his F. E. When called upon to recite this young man has the far away look of one whose turn has come to pay for the drinks. The Dean says the office that hires this "wanderlust kid" had better put a steering wheel and pedals on his desk if they wish to keep him.

HAROLD seems sure of his B. D. D. B., the coveted honor of Best-Dressed Dumb-bell in the class. "If he was as correct in his studies as he is in his clothes, he'd lead the league," say the Profs. So punctilious is he in the matter of apparel that, it is claimed, he refused to go out for basketball because he couldn't wear his evening clothes in the night games.

ACCORDING TO LOIS' views, the university would be a most excellent place for receptions, teas and other social functions were it not for these exasperating old bores of professors with their trig and their chem and what-not. "These things are so annoying to one with the serious business of entertaining upon her hands." She gets her degree of M. T. H. (Master of Tea Hounds.)

ONLY THROUGH EXCEPTIONAL proficiency in dancing has Wilda been able to attain her degrees of P. H. and C. S. As a Prom Hopper and Charleston Stepper, she has danced her way to fame, while others following the more prosaic walks of life at the university got nowhere worth speaking of.

"HOLD THAT LINE" is Gus' college yell, and here we see him doing so. This Lunch Room Athlete has been holding the lunch room line while he orders everything on the menu. Very coolly and deliberately, too, in spite of the howls of the hungry and the frowns of the famished. He'll get his L. R. A. degree. There's a Prof. in the line.

A PAST MASTER of the gentle Art of Time Killing, Pete leads by several lengths in what the Profs. say is a big field. With no more equipment than a rubber band and two matches he can while away a whole study period. Give him a pencil and paper and he'll do everything but his lessons with them. His degree is B. T. K. (Bachelor of Time Killing.)

APPLYING HIMSELF ASSIDUOUSLY to the monkey business at hand, Joe hopes to gain enough merits to earn his degree of N. U. T. While he gets many a titter with his Ben Turpin imitation, his best giggle-getter is his one of the Prof. when he strokes an imaginary beard and wiggles his ears.

HAZARDOUS—STRENUOUS—DANGEROUS

Racing Thoroughbreds at Breakneck Speed Cross-Country Over Every Natural Obstacle Simply for the Honor of Winning and the Sport of Competing. A Description of the Rough-and-Tumble Pastime Pursued by Gentlemen of the Maryland Free State.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WORTHINGTON VALLEY, Maryland, —They're off! Twenty-three rare samples of horseflesh tearing down the smooth grassy chute at the dip of a three-cornered green and yellow flag. Twenty-three gentlemen jockeys in their colored silks, hard in their saddles. Cheers and cries from the crowds around the take off. Far away, on hills, in the low places, by the fences, cheers and cheers and then their echoes. For 10,000 are here, strung along the four-mile course; they've come from all over America and some from Europe; they represent society from every place. Field glasses to the eyes! The Maryland Hunt Cup steeplechase, the great point-to-point race of America, is on!

It's on! The most strenuous, dangerous, hazardous sport in America. For it's four miles over rough country and flat country, hills and dales; there are 22 post and rail fences to jump, none of them artificial easy-toppling barriers if a horse crashes into one; not a fence of them is lower than four feet four, some of them are four feet eight. And what does the gentleman get if his thoroughbred goes over the line first? A big gold purse? Not at all. He gets a silver cup and a leg on a gold cup. There's nothing professional about it. Even the rider, who risks his neck, risks it for the sport of the thing. And either he owns the animal he's riding or he rides it for a friend.

BINOCULARS up! The first barrier's not even reached, and one horse has the lead. He's number 8, see the big 8 under his saddle. Number 8. He's Billy Barton. Albert G. Ober's riding him. And he's a Maryland horse.

They're over the first fence. Pretty Billy Barton. He's leaving the field. The second jump. And not a tumble yet. But look! Look there! What horse is that tearing away from the rest, hard after Billy Barton? It's Burgoright! Burgoright from Chicago, with Joseph Bowen Junior on his back. Burgoright! Watch out for him. He won it last year. Burgoright and Billy Barton. Looks like the Bookies were right. They only gave 7 to 5 on Billy and even odds on Burgoright at post time.

The third fence. Crash! Three men down. Say, that horse almost rolled on his rider. He isn't up yet. Must be badly hurt. Rough stuff, this.

Billy Barton and Burgoright! They've outclassed the rest of the field. But there's a horse after the favorites. He gets within two lengths of them. He gains a bit. He gains some more. But he can't keep it up. See. What did I tell you? He's lagging. The pace's too fast for that one.

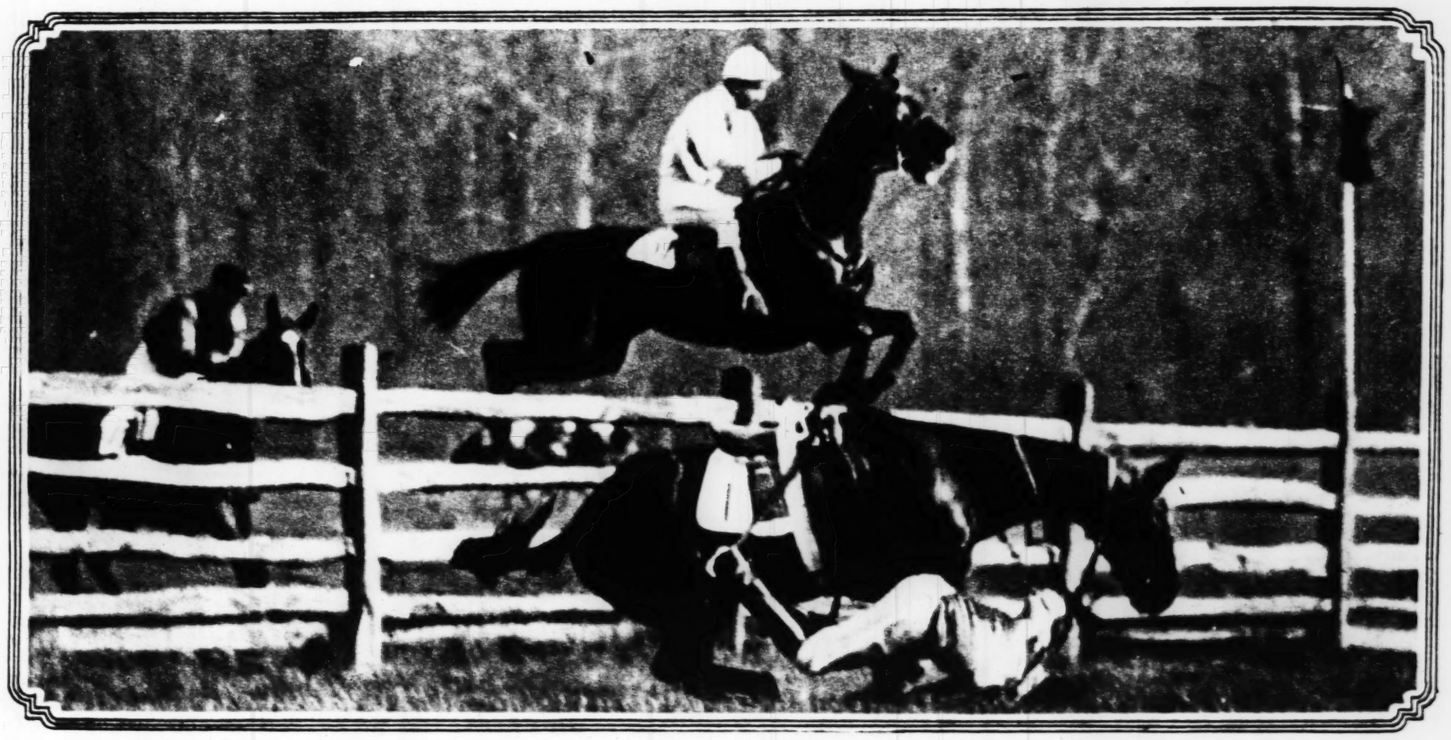
Watch 'em tearing up that hillside. They look like toys. Toy horses and toy riders. They're like mechanical toys, jumping up, jumping down.

The thirteenth fence. Burgoright's almost up with Billy Barton. Come on, Billy. Come on, Burgoright. Ouch! One of the laggers down. Whosoever he is, he's hurt. And hurt mighty bad. They're carrying him off. And Billy and Burgoright keep going on.

Billy's taking this fence nicely. No, his hoof's hit the rail. He's tripping. He's falling. Burgoright's way ahead. But Billy's jockey's on him again, and riding hard, hard as he can. Burgoright throws his rider. But Bowen's back on Burgoright again before Billy can catch him.

Burgoright won't take this jump. He refuses it. It's the twenty-first jump. Billy takes it nicely. It's easy for Billy. There's another horse after Billy. He's passed Burgoright. He's going too fast approaching a jump. He crashes over the last fence. And Burgoright passes him and Billy's way ahead.

Billy Barton! Billy Barton! Down the finish and first past the judges. And he's won the thirty-third running of the hardest race, the fearfullest race, in America.



A DANGEROUS SPILL—Taking the jump directly over a fallen horse and rider in this year's running of the Maryland Hunt Cup Race—next to England's Grand National, the oldest and most famous steeplechase classic in the world.

THERE'S not a horse race that can approach a steeplechase for danger. There's not a horse race that tears a horse to pieces so. For if the animal is lucky enough to finish without serious injuries from a fall—and it's rarely a horse runs a steeplechase without one fall some place or other along the course—he's tuckered out, exhausted, sweaty and, oftener than not, bloody when he crosses the judges' line.

The jockey? In the Maryland Hunt Cup race held toward the end of last month several of the riders were jolted and cut and bruised. Three of them were seriously injured. Captain Michael Wardell of the British Army, one of the best cross-country riders in England, suffered very serious internal injuries. He was hurt when his horse fell at a fence. Wardell was tossed several feet into the air and landed on his back. If it hadn't been for the quick work of a few spectators, who ran out and dragged him off the course, he'd have been trampled on by horses behind him. He was so badly injured, and his injuries were so painful, that it was impossible to drive him the 30 miles to a Baltimore hospital. He was taken, in an ambulance, to a nearby infirmary. He is likely to be confined to his bed for several months. Wardell entered the race with the mark of another upon him. Over his left eye was a black shield, for that eye had been injured several months before in a race in England.

One of the other riders in the Hunt Cup got a broken shoulder, a fractured collar bone and a broken leg out of it. And another got a broken shoulder in a fall.

Now, these men are not callow and foolhardy persons of tender years. Many of them are in their late thirties, some of them are in their forties. Some of them have been at this point-to-point steeplechase racing for 20 years.

The large number of casualties in a point-to-point is not to be wondered at. In some spots, true enough, the turf is flat and smooth. But in others, the ground is as rough and ragged as nature made it. And the fences are real post and rail fences. Sturdy fences such as you will find along any countryside.

Now, a man running a foot hurdle race, if he misses his take-off and hits his hurdle, has an excellent chance of coming out of it without a scratch. For the force of his blow knocks the hurdle over. But a horse, crashing into a stout rail fence, finds something that doesn't yield. And he falls, with chances of disastrous results. A broken leg is not unusual. And a broken leg spells death, for then he must be destroyed.

As for the jockey, his chances of injury are quite as great. A hard fall on the ground, and something may be broken. And if he lands safely he stands excellent chances of having his steed roll over him; if that doesn't happen, he may be trampled on by the horses behind.

IT'S not unusual that Maryland should be the State in which steeple racing in America got its real start. The horse has always been the pride of Marylanders, and he's always figured prominently in their sport. The first races said to have been held in America came off at Annapolis in the seventeen hundreds. In the early days in Maryland, when the Free State was still a province, there were so many horses that in 1692 a law was passed prohibiting the importation of any more. The decision was entitled "An Act for Restraining the Unreasonable Increase of Horses in this Province."

It was an April morning in 1894 that point-to-point racing in Maryland got its supreme urge. Five gentlemen, all members of the Green Spring Valley Fox-Hunting Club, were lounging about the club's porch on that morning, and a discussion was entered into as to the relative merits of the Green Spring Club and another club, the Elk Ridge. It seems no agreement could be arrived at, so it was decided that the best way to settle the matter would be by a steeplechase between members of these two hunt clubs.

So a silver cup was offered, the course was selected, the race was held. Thirteen horses were entered. The president of the Green Spring Club won the chase.

A few hundred persons saw the race that year. This year 10,000 saw it. And these are the reasons why:

The race was so successful, it created so much excitement, it was so well liked, that the "Maryland Hunt Club Association" was founded. Its object was "the promotion of cross-country steeplechasing among Maryland gentlemen." Which was letting down the bars to members of other Maryland clubs, but still keeping out persons from anywhere else.

From an event of neighborhood rivalry the race got to be an occasion of international race importance. Horsemen and race enthusiasts who have followed the Hunt Cup for years are not above predicting that before long England will be sending its best thoroughbreds across the Atlantic to meet America's best.

In the 33 years the race has been run, there have been no material changes in the Hunt Cup procedure. A great many efforts have been made to persuade the race committee to offer a purse. But this committee, believing the honor of winning it was payment enough, has steadfastly refused to consider anything of the kind.

It was not till 1907 that the rules were amended so any member of a hunt club, wherever it might be, could enter the Hunt Cup lists. This year there were entrants from Belgium, from England and from all sections of America. The race is now acknowledged to be the second greatest steeplechase in the world, second only to the English Grand National, held at Aintree.

Now, the Hunt Cup isn't the only steeplechase in Maryland. The next in importance is the Grand National Point-to-point. Not as hard as the Hunt Cup—none is as hard as that. The Grand National had a rather odd beginning. It was founded four years after the Hunt Cup, by several young men, still in their teens, who were not allowed to ride in the Hunt Cup event.

So in its first years it was a race for young fellows. But as the young fellows grew up they were loath to see their race become a memory, so they kept it up. It is held a week before the Hunt Cup, and until last year it was considered pretty much of a training business for that race. But last year a gold cup was offered as a permanent prize to any owner who could win the race three times.

And such cups do much to arouse enthusiasm. When such a cup was first offered in the Hunt Cup race the perking up of interest was quite obvious.

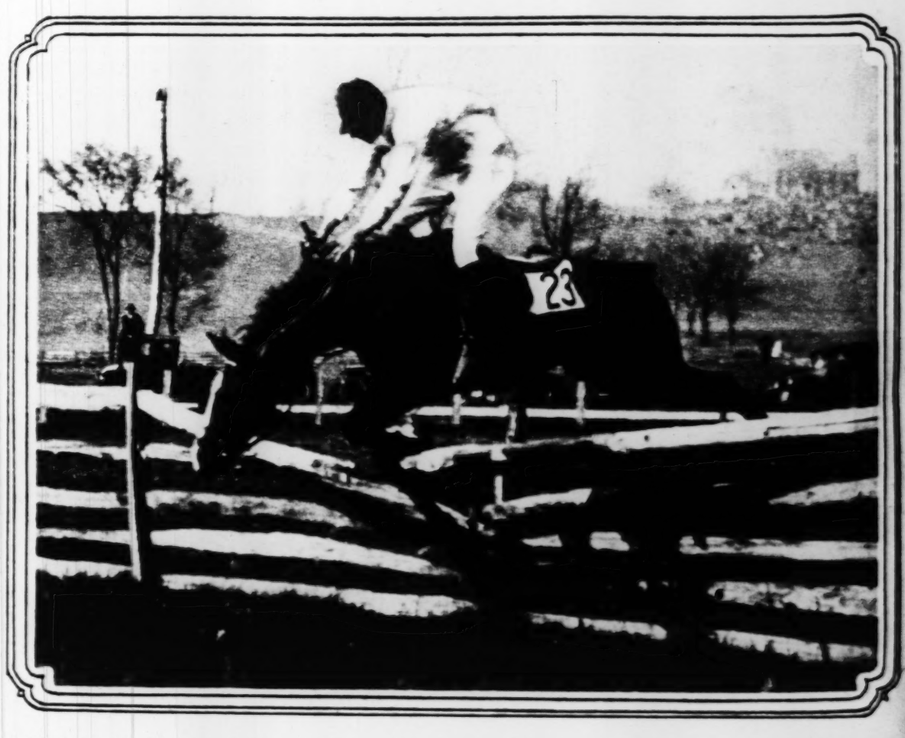
MARYLAND has three other cross-country races in the spring. There is My Lady's Manor Point-to-point, started 18 years ago and won on many occasions by horses that later made their mark in the Hunt Cup event; the John Rush Streett Memorial Steeplechase, first run five years ago and open to half-bred horses; which was founded to perpetuate the memory of John Rush Streett, first master of foxhounds of the Hartford Hunt, the fame of which is known wherever sportsmen gather; and the Right Royal Cup Steeplechase, founded this year and open to both half-breeds and thoroughbreds that have never won a post and rail race.

The fall point-to-point races, with one exception, are sporting events which seldom attract more than State interest. The exception is a point-to-point race for a cup offered in 1920 by Mr. Keene. The cup was offered to the hunt club scoring the smallest number of points, each rider to be marked by the position in which he finished in the race. The cup—called the Foxhall—cost Mr. Keene $5000.

It was won in 1920 by the Radnor Hunt of Philadelphia. After the race Mr. Keene entertained his friends at his country home, near Hartford Hunt Club. According to all reports the "little party" cost him $40,000. The race has not been held since 1920 and the cup has remained with the Radnor Hunt.

Several months ago Mr. Keene announced that the race would be renewed this fall. It is toward this event that sportsmen throughout the East are looking with the utmost anticipation. Whether Mr. Keene will repeat his "little party" is not known.

A BROKEN COLLAR BONE was what Louis McLane Merryman received when he fell as pictured above in the My Lady's Manor Point-to-point Race in Maryland.



BEGINNING OF A FALL which resulted in a serious injury to Captain Michael Wardell of the British army, riding in the Maryland Hunt Cup Race this year.

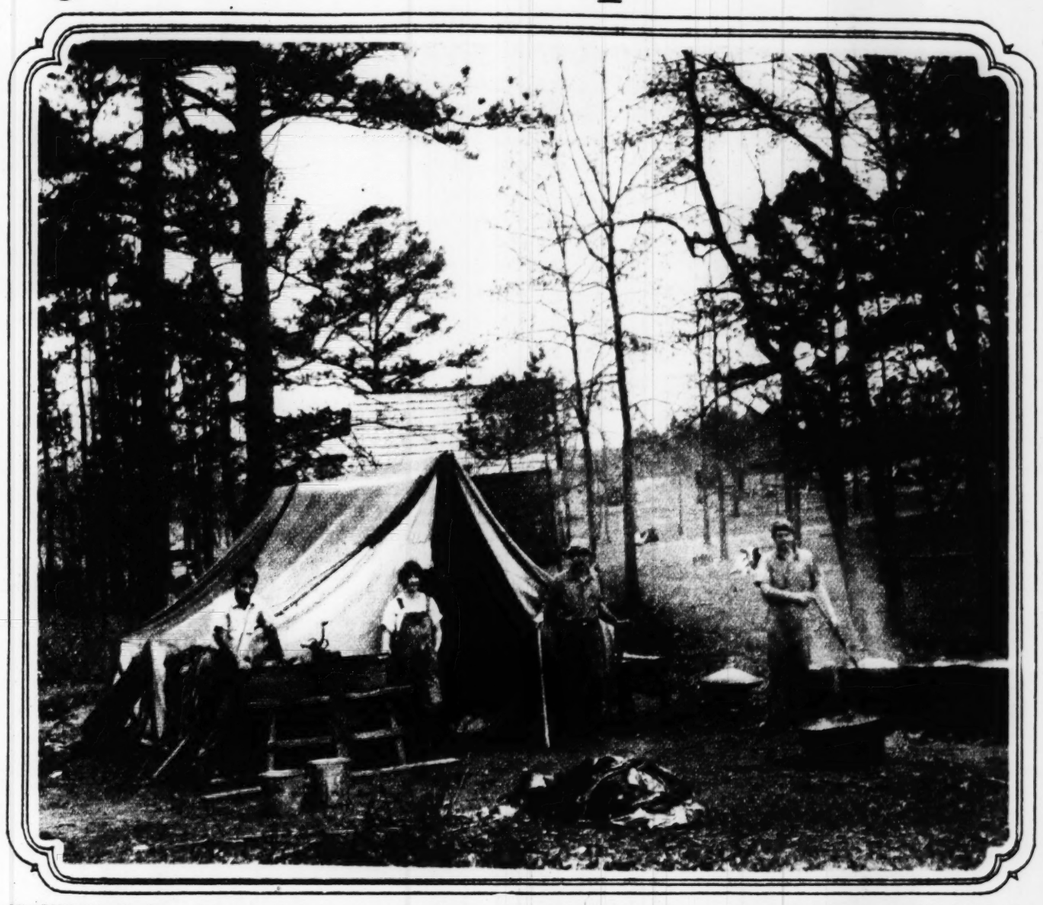
Commonwealth College at Mena, Arkansas, Is the Place. There Every Student, Every Teacher Must Work at Manual Labor Four Hours Per Day. And the Faculty Is Not Paid at All. The President Lives in a Tent.

Tuition (Including Everything) Is $100 a Year. The Present Enrollment Is 50. The Purpose of This Unique Institution Being Liberal Education for Labor Leaders of the Future. So Far the Idea Seems to Be Working Splendidly.



WASHDAY—Students doing up their laundry. The boys (yes, and the girls, too) are wearing typical Commonwealth clothes. In the background may be seen the frame buildings erected by the scholars. Note cows dotting the campus.

MENA, Arkansas.—The Man from Mena sat in the Pullman smoker and orated regarding his town. Bright. Clean. Progressive. Thrifty. Prosperous. Wealthy. Great trading territory. Rich farm and fruit land. Splendid fishing in these crystal streams. Destined to be a great fruit-producing center. Mountain air and mountain water. Good schools and churches. Even the Go-Getter Salesman looked up from the opposite seat and listened.

"A great place to raise a family," said the Man from Mena.

"Isn't there a college, too, Commonwealth College?" I hazarded.

The Man from Mena looked perplexed. "Curious about that," he said. "Can't make out about those people. Came in here without asking anyone. Never said a thing. Started their school. Boys and girls kept coming in from all over. New York, San Francisco, Minneapolis, New Orleans, Kansas towns, Texas, St. Louis. Everywhere. "Funny looking folks. Girls dressed in overalls and breeches just like the boys. Bobbed-hair outfit. Never asked no one for anything. Mind their own business. Can't understand them."

"They say," I suggested, "that it's a school to educate young workers for service in the labor movement."

"Bolsheviats," ejaculated the Go-Getter Salesman, while the jaw of the Man from Mena dropped. "Do you suppose the Government knows what those birds are doing down there?"

It would seem the Government did. At least, it is easy, very easy, to get at the facts about Commonwealth College.

It's an institution where the professors work at manual labor four hours a day for the privilege of teaching—and of academic freedom.

It's an institution where the students work four hours a day for the privilege of getting a college education.

It's an institution without an endowment, without a propaganda, without a dogma. It welcomes representatives of all religions, all economic, all political creeds. Most of all it welcomes discussion.

One can bring whatever theories one has to Commonwealth. One can take them away again—if he doesn't find something better.

THE school believes one can only know the truth by examining all the facts and discussing all the theories. Just because of the air of absolute intellectual freedom it seems to maintain, the I. W. W., for instance, does not find at Commonwealth the happiest environment. He comes crammed with bitterness and revolt and theories, perhaps, of sabotage. He finds his teachers expounding the science of economics as laid down in the "capitalist college" textbooks and explaining the theories of Bill Haywood and those of Karl Marx or Tolstoy. They try to make him see and argue the problem from every side.

One such student seemed to be carrying the principles of sabotage into action last year. The faculty talked it over. In class rooms, on the question of a student's intellectual ability to get the utmost from his course, the faculty is supreme. But the Wobbly was laying down on the job during his four hours of outside work each day.

So William Edward Zeuch—whose title is educational director and whose job is that of a college president—took the matter up with the student body for confirmation of the faculty decision to oust the "slacker"—for Commonwealth is a commonwealth. And Director Zeuch and his fellow faculty-ites were promptly rebuked by the student body. The professors had no right, so the students declared, to determine to discharge a student for other than reasons of scholarship. It could lay its case before the students—that was all. And the Wobbly stayed on.

Zeuch isn't the usual college president—not by a lot. He doesn't want a big institution. He isn't looking for a great endowment. He is quite content to try out his ideas. "This is merely an experiment in education," he says of the school. Commonwealth to him is a laboratory in which educational theories are being tested. He doesn't function at brilliant social affairs. He lives in the presidential mansion at Commonwealth, which is—a tent.

A NUT-BROWN round-faced man, clad in overalls and with a rake, was burning rubbish on the campus when I arrived at Commonwealth. He stopped his labor for a moment to direct me to Professor F. M. Goodhue. I was trying to reach the president by easy stages of approach. I had reached him, but I didn't know it. The nut-brown man was Zeuch!

Of stocky muscular build is he, with a high brow where the hair is receding, his face at once strong, thoughtful, sensitive and animated, reflecting in its mobility his keen response to thought and wit, humor and emotion. Heavy horn-rimmed glasses rest on a straight and generous nose. An Iowan by birth, who found no home in his native State where regimented cornrows and square-fenced fields are symbols of its neatly platted orthodoxy of thought. He was educated at Lenox College in that state, at Clark University, at the University of Wisconsin and at the University of Iowa, taking master's and doctor's degrees at the last three schools. He has taught at the University of Indiana, at Cornell University, and at the Universities of Wisconsin and Illinois.

CLASSROOM—Rough-hewn and not showy, but a good place to learn facts about life.

PUBLIC SPEAKING—Embryonic "soap-boxers," perhaps, practice the gentle art of spell-binding in their open-air classroom.

WILLIAM E. ZEUCH, president of Commonwealth. He lives in a tent.

THEN "he tired of elucidating theories of money and banking to adolescent Rotarians," says Harold Coy, "and wanted to educate youths to be a dynamic force in social evolution." And that is how Commonwealth came about.

Zeuch felt that in the modern big and successful college there was no freedom for the teacher. He could not content himself to accept unquestioningly any theory, any dogma. He wanted to inquire into all. He, himself, had one belief. That the future of civilization rested in its workers. His studies in economy had inclined him to believe that the workers get the worst of it. He saw on the one hand—in the schools—teachers parroting certain accepted formulae without seeking even to know their truth; on the other—among the workers — toilers who parroted certain formulae, quite as iron-clad and as rigorous, without an opportunity to test their truth by the evidences of history and of science. He believed that the great need of the workers was a school to prepare toilers by education for leadership in the labor movement. Not as unionists. Not as industrialists. Not as socialists. Not as individualists. But as informed men and women unafraid of an idea though it run counter to their prejudice. Men and women capable of tough-fibered thinking.

Some such dream-school existed down in Florida, he heard. He visited it. There was a land sales scheme in connection. That was that. But down in Florida Zeuch met Kate Richards O'Hare of St. Louis. They compared ideas. They were agreed on the fundamentals of such a school. And they joined forces.

An experimental colony at Newllano, Louisiana, seemed to offer opportunity. There Commonwealth College was started in 1923. The founders of the colony had certain economic theories as rigid as is dogma. Those theories might be right. But Commonwealth withdrew. It refused to become a propagandist institution.

Zeuch had met Professor Goodhue down at Newllano. Together they toured, two summers ago, in an automobile, through the states bordering the Mississippi up into Missouri. They decided on a location at Alley Springs, near Eminence, in this state, but another outbid them for the land. So Mena was chosen, and the college opened work the first of January last year in rented buildings in that town. Later a tract was purchased on Mill Creek, out on the Talihina Highway, ten miles west of Mena. In April, 1925, they started to move the school.

Arrows point out the trail through the pine woods and blossoming dogwood to a clearing, where once lived an Arkansas homesteader. About that clearing now is a group of rough pine buildings. A refectory, a general office, a boys' and a girl's dormitory, a library, a store building, some cottages for the teachers and their families. Most of these, some day, will be incased in masonry, for the rounded stones of the Arkansas hills and waterways provide material to be had for the handling. The structures on the grounds have been built by the students and the professors in the four hours daily that each must work if he would stay on the job. The main building is not yet in process of erection. It is to face the entrance through the forest, and the others, now erected, or to be erected, will be grouped about it in symmetrical plan. The whole will cost about $75,000.

What has been done in a year is a monument to determination and zeal. That which remains to be done is much. One question each applicant for admission must answer is this: "Can you put up with conditions of pioneering?" He must have references, too, to show he can. Another, most important in the Commonwealth scheme of things, is this: "What tools can you bring with you to the college?" For man must have tools to work.

I HAVE seen the application blanks of several accepted students. One was that of the Wobbly—whose working experience had mostly been at sea or in the ports of the seven seas. Others might have been made out by the most promising of "adolescent Rotarians." Willingness to work physically four hours a day is one essential. Intellectual capacity to profit by instruction and to think is another. On this last the college is most rigorous. Most folks who leave Commonwealth do so because they can't keep pace with the studies. There are more applicants than the school can accept. It limits itself now to 50 students. It will never, according to the present plan, receive more than 150. When that capacity is reached, if the experiment is a success, there will be new schools. The idea has appealed already to those who desire such colleges. From Whitby Island on Puget Sound in the State of Washington, comes an offer of a gift of land to found another. From Cabin Springs, in West Virginia, a second tender of land if a branch is established there. Both are refused. "Our problem is here and now," says Zeuch. "If the experiment succeeds, then there is time enough to talk of branches."

That problem he states thus:

"To help the student to know his own physical and psychological functioning.

"To help him know the functioning of society in its operations and his own relation thereto.

"To help him know his physical environment and the laws thereof."

"When the student knows these things he will be in a fair way to solve for himself his problem of life and to help others solve theirs."

It's the strangest college in the world that these folks sponsor. "It has no 'blue print' of its plans and purposes," says Director Zeuch. "It has no constitution. It is even operating under temporary articles of incorporation. It refuses to be rigidly bound until it knows exactly how it can best achieve its end, which is to develop in young men and women of the working class the capacity to serve the labor movement."

Commonwealth doesn't even care how they go about it to serve the labor movement. One can, if one wishes, make a special study of statistics and their significance, together with shorthand and typewriting to fit himself or herself for secretarial work in the unions; one can specialize if one so wishes in labor journalism or in labor laws. Or if one wishes to make a life-work of "soap-boxing" that's his business. The college simply seeks to help him find out laws and facts before he starts to spell-bind.

The students boss the faculty—as the Wobbly incident shows, and sometimes, when an undergraduate (it's hard to use that word) falls down in study, the faculty bosses him. But the big boss around the place is the industrial manager. He is Ernest Koch, a student in the school who directs the labor of his fellow students and his teachers during the allotted four hours daily. Koch came from Oregon. He has been a farmer, a woodsman, and a carpenter. He knows how to do things. He's practical.

Commonwealth College has about 400 acres of land. Some of it the Commonwealthers cultivate. There are orchards, vineyards, truck gardens. Some of it the college has leased to its neighbors. They farm that land now. A plan for crop rotation is being put into operation. Already sorghum, potatoes, sweet potatoes, peanuts, melons and cucumbers are among the things raised, while the leased land is being cropped to cotton and to corn. Already, too, the College is making its influence felt among its neighbors. When Commonwealth first came to the mountains those neighbors were doubtful. One rumor said the collegians were Catholics. Another said they were I. W. W.'s. But the unassuming way of Director Zeuch and his helpers has won support. A plan for co-operative marketing of the potato crop of the district is fostered by the college and neighbors have joined. It hopes to spread the co-operative marketing scheme to embrace all the products of the soil. It hopes also to develop certain simple manufacturing processes whereby to sustain itself.

Not one cent is received by the teachers for their work. But they are provided with all reasonable needs. Director Zeuch was requesting Covington Hall (one of the instructors) to bring some razor blades from town. Prof. Goodhue wanted a necktie. They were purchased from the college funds. And the funds themselves come from everywhere. The American Fund for Public Service has provided $3000, the biggest gift. Commonwealthers have put in from their own savings. The students pay $100 tuition each year, but the greatest source of revenue is from Commonwealth College Bonds, sold in $50 and $100 denominations, which pay no interest and are redeemable only as tuition payment. Liberals, both in and out of the labor movement, have subscribed for these. Some for the good of the cause of academic freedom. Some because of interest in labor's problems. Others because of some young person they would help send to school.

DOUBTFUL at first, the natives are kindly now. Twice a month the Commonwealthers hold a party for their friends in the hills. It's a dancing party. In Fords, on mules, behind slow horses, they come in. The fiddlers tune up. Bobbed-haired students from the cities dance waltz, two-step and one-step. A few Russian and German folk dancers filter in through the urbanites. But the old-fashioned square dances of Arkansas hold their own. "Ocean Wave," "Beautiful Star," "Second Lady"—these are among the favorites. The refectory hall is crowded to capacity. Commonwealth has been forced to make it an invitation affair because of the limit of space.

"Wave of the ocean, wave of the shoah, Wave that gal and wave no moah!"

Bobbed-haired girls in knickers are bowing and scraping in the corners with Arkansawyers in their Sunday best.

The last Commonwealth Fortnightly tells what some of the students are doing this summer. Sol Carp and Aaron Kolkin are union carpenters in New York; Clara Jaiven is a union garment maker there; Fritz and Gertrude Hohn are union textile workers in Philadelphia; Vaughn Chlorian is a marine transport worker in Chicago; Mabel Koch is with the Garment Workers' Union summer camp in Forest Park, Pennsylvania; Chester Potts is a union baker at Butte, Montana; Loretta and Nellie Toble are looking for jobs in Salt Lake City; Loyd Lane is teaching in Arkansas; Orlando Wagner is clerking in a Pennsylvania store; Irene Brown is in a Chicago department store. So the list runs.

No one yet has graduated, for Commonwealth College is still an experiment, a stout-hearted endeavor to puzzle out the relation of education to modern industrial civilization.

ANOTHER Reason for Going to MEXICO

REVOLUTIONS, It Is Predicted, Will No Longer Be the Chief Industry in the Republic to the South; DIVORCES Will Be the Major Activity. Cost: $12.50 to $75.00. Paris May Soon Be Snubbed—the Rush Will Be to the Land of Cactus! And Here Is a Case in Point—

By GUY FORSHEY
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

CHICAGO. — What Edward Washington Bucken wanted was some kind of divorce in a hurry. For 25 years he had wanted one and hadn't been in any particular hurry. He had got along without it, putting up with a separation agreement entered into with Mrs. Clara L. Bucken back in 1901. But last October the Claridge Hotel was raided and the wealthy broker was found in a bedroom adjoining that of Mrs. Lida E. Granger, who had already attracted Mrs. Bucken's notice as a likely co-respondent. Mrs. Bucken had then got busy with her lawyers and, although she had successfully resisted her husband's divorce petitions in the past, she now became keenly covetous of an official separate maintenance decree with a fat allowance. Bucken saw his romance with Mrs. Granger going glittering. Once before he had seen it fade away when Mrs. Granger was still Mrs. Wheeler. He was determined that he should not lose her to another man a second time. He must have a divorce at once. Wherefore he took himself to Mexico, where the divorce mills have been grinding overtime of late. P. S.—He got the divorce.

Now it has become a notorious fact, widely heralded among domestic malcontents, that divorces are easy to get in the sunny republic of the Southwest. Beyond the slight inconvenience of a nice sight-seeing trip they hardly cause any inconvenience at all. It is scarcely necessary in some states even to mention any grounds. The mere fact that a divorce is wanted is enough. And cheap! Getting rid of a husband or wife is merely a matter of loosening up to the extent of $12.50 to $75. The best part of it is, too, that under the articles of comity of nations, Mexican divorces are usually recognized as valid in this country or any other country enjoying diplomatic relations with the land of Villa and the Aztecs. Ordinarily, then, Mr. Bucken, returning to Chicago with a new Mrs. Bucken under his wing, would have experienced no distressing complications.

But the way it was, he has experienced little else besides distressing complications. Perhaps the circumstances attending his venture were a bit unusual. It may have been that he was a bit too hasty in seeking a divorce in another country while a separate maintenance case was pending in this, or it may have been that the court's patience had been tried a little too far by the open and avowed preference of divorce seekers for Mexican courts. Anyhow, about the first thing Bucken did was to land in jail on a contempt charge and then emerge to find that both he and his new wife were also charged with bigamy, his Mexican divorce having been held invalid by Superior Judge Joseph Sabath.

The result of this unexpected development has been to draw more attention to the Mexican divorce courts and divorce laws than all the "tourist" advertising Mexico has been doing recently in drawing American divorce trade away from Paris and Reno. The prominence of all parties concerned and certain aspects of the case, romantic even if the principals were past 50 years of age, excited widespread interest in the personal side of the affair, of course. But far more absorbing have been the legal phases of the mixup which have brought inquiries for details pouring into the office of Lloyd A. Faxon, chief of counsel for Bucken. Not only scores of wealthy Chicagoans, interested in Bucken's predicament for reasons of their own, are watching the outcome, but numerous attorneys have closely followed the maneuvers in Faxon's fight to prove the Mexican divorce valid. In order to clear his course of possible future snags, Faxon is now in Mexico conducting a thorough investigation into the divorce laws as promulgated and practiced in the Mexican states of Morelos, Sonora and Tabasco.

THE three states—Morelos, Sonora and Tabasco—as all may have heard, are those which have come to be most widely celebrated for their divorce facilities. It may be an act of unjust discrimination to place them ahead of Yucatan and Sinaloa in this respect, for certainly no courts could be more accommodating than those of Yucatan and Sinaloa, but, granting that other things are equal, the three states first named appear to have the edge as far as publicity is concerned. In all of them the matter of residence is quite negligible. In all, the grounds upon which the marriage knot may be untied are equally negligible. In all of them the speed of the untying process is so remarkable that "a divorce while you wait" slogan has earned a place in the tourist literature forwarded to prospective travelers. And overtures to American patronage are apparent in the added note that "special facilities will be provided for foreigners." In short, it is clear that revolutions are becoming passe in Mexico and that the divorce business is the coming industry. The fame of Paris and Reno is obscured. "Paris is too slow," says the divorce voyager, and adds: "On to Mexico!"

Indeed it is not without justification that the divorce press agents of Mexico point to the cactus land's superiority over Paris, especially from the point of view of promptness and economy. In the southern republic, it is pointed out by recent press dispatches, a divorce may be had, transportation both ways included, for less than the cost of one de luxe steamship ticket to France.

In Tabasco, it is stated, the petition need be signed by only one party, and within 24 hours the well-oiled legal machinery will have turned out its completed product. In Sonora it is merely necessary for the traveler to take up residence for 15 days—the law is not exacting about what sort of residence it is—and file on grounds of incompatibility. In Yucatan the period of residence required is somewhat longer (30 days), but what disillusioned wife or husband would mind spending 30 days among the Maya ruins when marital freedom lies ahead as a reward? Grounds for divorce in all five of the states are broad enough to meet the requirements of the most whimsical. Who need go without divorce with the following list of possibilities to choose from?

"PARIS IS TOO SLOW—ON TO MEXICO!"

1. Infidelity.
2. Six months' separation.
3. Moral perversion.
4. Birth of a child conceived prior to marriage.
5. Attempt on the part of husband or wife to corrupt children of either born of former marriages.
6. Incompatibility of temperment.
7. Threats of violence.
8. Slanderous accusation of a crime carrying a prison penalty.
9. Drunkenness.
10. Cruelty.
11. Imposition of jail or penitentiary sentence on husband or wife.
12. Affliction of husband or wife with a venereal disease, congenital or otherwise.

EDWARD W. BUCKEN, wealthy member of the Chicago Board of Trade. He tried to get a Mexican divorce—hence much publicity for Mexico—and the arrest of Bucken on a bigamy charge.

MRS. CLARA L. BUCKEN—the first wife.

OF THE 12 common grounds, incompatibility of temperament, six months' separation and cruelty lead the field in popularity, the records show. This, no doubt, being due to their extreme flexibility and their effectiveness without the necessity of embarrassing testimony or likelihood of resentful opposition by defendants. In practice, it is pointed out by investigators, they amount only to acceptable technical names for mutual consent between the litigants. Testimony is hardly necessary at all. In fact, some investigators have asserted that decrees may be obtained without actual appearance of either interested party, the matter of appearance being taken care of by proxy. Judges and lawyers are also notoriously inconspicuous. The laxity, it appears, has at times become too great even for the tolerant Mexicans to endure.

"It is truly scandalous," recently declared the Mexican Government organ, El Democrata, of the divorce practice in Sonora. "Matters have reached such a stage that marriages are dissolved in half an hour. Injustice is being committed to such an extent that it is no longer to be tolerated. Frequently man and wife will have one of their many usual and trifling quarrels and, while angered, out one or the other goes and gets a divorce within 25 minutes." The article then followed up this expression of disapproval with an appeal to the state legislators to repeal the divorce law or at least modify it to the extent of coming within the bounds of respectability.

The fact that Mexican decrees have been meeting with frequent reverses at the hands of United States courts in the last few months, however, is probably doing more than pressure from public sentiment to make divorces a little more just and binding. The Mexican states well realize that nothing would operate more swiftly to turn the American trade back to Paris than a continued failure of their decrees to hold good across the Rio Grande. Hence there is becoming apparent a more pronounced tendency to follow the letter of the Mexican law as regards service of notice on defendants, especially when the defendants are not in Mexico. If the law is really followed closely there is said to be small likelihood of a hitch, unless there exist unusual circumstances such as existed in the Bucken case, and a Mexican divorce is as good as any other.

THE Morelos law concerning service on defendants provides that notice must be mailed to the defendant (if the defendant is in a country other than Mexico) and ample time allowed for the defendant to travel to Mexico and contest the suit. In Sonora the practice is to comply with the statutes of the state in which the divorce seeker makes his permanent home. If the plaintiff is from Illinois, for instance, and the Illinois law says that a copy of the bill shall be served on the defendant, then the Sonora law requires that a copy of the bill filed in Mexico be delivered to the American consul in Mexico City. He delivers it to the Mexican consul in Illinois, who in turn places it in the hands of the defendant and makes affidavit that it has been delivered. This affidavit is sent back to the American consul in Mexico and ultimately returned to the court in Sonora. Ample time is allowed for the defendant to appear, and if no appearance is made, the divorce is granted as a matter of course. If the case is contested, the decree is granted anyway if the court decides that grounds exist as provided by the Mexican law.

It was not upon evidence of defective procedure in Mexican courts, however, that Bucken's divorce came upon its untimely snag. It was rather upon Superior Judge Sabath's finding that Bucken had practiced fraud upon the Mexican court itself. To make clear the broker's peculiar situation, a bit of history may not be out of place.

Bucken and his first wife, Clara, were married in New York in 1893. There was born one child, Edna May, now Mrs. Moss, of Los Angeles. In 1901, as has been told, the Buckens entered into a separation agreement and lived apart for 17 years. In 1918, due to intercession of the daughter, they resumed life together and came to Chicago, where Bucken obtained a membership in the Chicago Board of Trade and rose rapidly in finance. The domestic arrangement, however, proved unsuccessful. There was another separation and five years later Bucken sued for divorce on grounds of desertion. His evidence was weak and he failed to win his suit.

IN THE meantime he was thrown into contact with Mrs. Lida Wheeler, a prominent society woman of Fort Wayne, Indiana, and daughter of a noted architect of that city. A romance developed, but when Bucken failed again to win a divorce, Mrs. Wheeler came to regard her love affair as futile and married another broker named Granger. This marriage was destined to be short-lived and after a separation a year later her friendship for Bucken was renewed. The first Mrs. Bucken and Granger, it appears, then put their heads together to "get something on" their respective spouses and trailed them for several weeks, eventually surprising them in the Claridge Hotel, a "Gold Coast" hostelry especially popular among theatrical folk. With this evidence in hand, Mrs. Bucken then filed her suit for maintenance and petitioned the court for a temporary allowance pending the outcome. From then on developments were rapid.

The very next day Bucken and Mrs. Granger met Mrs. Bucken at a north side residence, with a view to discussing a settlement. There was a clash between the women and as a result, Mrs. Granger was hauled into court on a charge of assault and battery. Judge Albert George, a Negro, fined her $50 and costs. The newspapers aired the story and another sensation was added when Mrs. Bucken filed suit for $50,000 against Mrs. Granger on a charge of alienating her husband's affections. Finally, tired of the publicity, Bucken and Mrs. Granger disappeared from the city, without the knowledge of Attorney Faxon, just about the time the Court issued a ne exeat writ commanding Bucken not to leave. Service could not be had upon the writ and before anything further was heard of Bucken's whereabouts the separate maintenance decree was granted by Judge Sabath.

At last there came word from Bucken. A telegram to Faxon stated that he had arrived in Mexico on November 5, had established a residence in Cuernavaca, in the State of Morelos, and filed for a divorce on December 24, and had been granted a decree on February 24. Mrs. Granger had obtained a divorce at the same time and place, and the two subsequently had been married in San Antonio, Texas.

It was about the middle of last March when they returned to Chicago to find the trouble they had sought to escape had grown by leaps and bounds. The broker found himself unable to operate on the Board of Trade because of fear of being arrested on the ne exeat writ and the two fled to Fort Wayne. There he was promptly picked up on a fugitive warrant charging bigamy, and by irony of fate, locked up in the jail which his new wife's father had built years before. Realizing that the chase was over and that there was nothing to do but fight, Bucken waived extradition and returned to Chicago. When I saw him recently in Attorney Faxon's office he declared his only plan was to fight to a finish in behalf of the validity of his Mexican divorce.

Bucken is somewhat distinguished in appearance, tall, slightly gray and cultured in bearing and speech. At first sight he impresses one as a modest type, who would rather take the short end of a decision than make himself overly conspicuous by loud contention or show of belligerence. But he is worried.

ABOUT his only defense is the claim that his Mexican divorce preceded the issuance of the separate maintenance decree awarded to his first wife and is therefore valid. An appeal has been taken on the validity question and further proceedings on the bigamy charge are now waiting on the ruling of the Appellate Court. Superior Judge Sabath already has held the Mexican decree invalid, and here, in substance, are his reasons for so doing, as set forth in a lengthy opinion:

If Bucken had gone to Mexico and regularly established a residence while no proceedings were pending against him in this country there would have been no question about the legality of the Cuernavaca decree. It was obtained in full accordance with the law of Morelos. But Bucken went there knowing that a separate maintenance suit was pending and, although no service had been had on the ne exeat writ, it is probable he knew it had been issued.

"It would be a surrender of our sovereignty," continues Judge Sabath's opinion, "if we gave recognition to a decree of a foreign state, which would have the effect of nullifying proceedings in our own jurisdiction, commenced long before the jurisdiction of the foreign state was invoked, especially when that foreign decree is relied upon by an individual over whom our own courts had previously obtained jurisdiction and who would have had his controversy fully determined in our courts.

"It is clear to me that the whole matter of going from this jurisdiction was a conspiracy on the part of the defendant and his co-respondent to avoid proceedings of this court, to oust it from jurisdiction and to obtain divorces in Mexico so that they might be married. . . . Every consideration of good morals and justice demands that no faith should be given to the decree thus obtained by the defendant."

Thus all depends now on the Appellate Court. If it views the matter in the same light, the Bucken case probably will next be discussed by a grand jury.

THE BIG PARADE—General Patterson in all his glory.

GENERAL WILLIAM H. PATTERSON—He wanted to be young always.

FOR a half-century "General" William Patterson had pursued a gay and merry life. Furthermore, he had caught it. He had three loves: beautiful women, merriment and the Elks. If there wasn't a gay time hanging around, he made it; when he felt the Elks needed a spur to enjoyment, he organized the Elks' Army and Navy, a burlesque army and navy of which he was made commander-in-chief, hence the "General"; and he married three beautiful Texas girls.

A few weeks ago the General woke up one morning and found that at 74 pleasure had outdistanced him. Pursue it though he would, he couldn't catch up with it. Old age that he scoffed at, that he'd said would never conquer him, had beaten him at last. Billy Patterson, the gay old fellow who had tried to make life one rare joke after another, who had tried to burlesque everything he came in contact with, who perpetrated farce after farce in successful efforts to amuse himself and everybody around him, was licked at last.

So he asked his 20-year-old wife to go to town and mail some letters for him—his home was in the suburbs of Dallas, Texas. Then he dressed himself in his full regalia as commander-in-chief of the Elks' Army and Navy. And so, covered with gold braid and shiny medals, his cocked hat tilted on his head, he walked into his bath, sat himself on a bath chair, leaned over the tub and put a bullet in his brain. He died, as he had lived, in his clown-clothes; of his last act he wanted to make a joke; perhaps he meant it to explain his philosophy of life.

MEN like the General are born—assuredly not made. A man is either a gay fellow or he isn't. Billy Patterson was born to get all the joy he could out of life, in his own peculiar way. He may have developed his technique, but the seed was congenital.

About a half-century ago Patterson married for the first time. As he was a lover of beauty, no one was surprised when he chose the best-looking girl in his community. For a time things went on nicely. The General, to help this along, was making money. He had got into the insurance business, and it seems he possessed everything a gentleman who follows that business is supposed to need. He was called a "good mixer," he was popular, he was energetic. He made several thousand dollars every year. Keeping up his insurance business, he also got into the wholesale drug trade. And he made more money.

But as time went on it didn't appear that he was peculiarly fitted for a domestic life, including a wife and three babies. Dinners and banquets demanded his attention; he craved them and they craved him. More and more he was away from home and less and less his family saw of him.

By chance, or because of some minor official's good taste, the General had a force of office girls that might have stepped out of his office at a nod of the head and have walked on the stage in one of Mr. Ziegfeld's productions. Such a corps of office girls is rarely a help toward marital happiness.

And, then, the General went in for other things that kept him pretty continually away from the family fireside. The General, through a customary process of nature, had grown bald. So it became his practice to wear a gray wig during business hours and at his home. But upon gayer and more festive occasions he put the gray wig away for more somber moments and placed upon his head a wig of glistening black.

He thought so well of his wigs that he immediately set out and organized the Toupee Club, eligible members being men who needed an artificial covering to keep the public from knowing they had been set upon and robbed by nature. The Toupee Club was just another one of those things which served to amuse the General.

THE GENERAL, in "civies."

And then the General had his great idea. He decided the Elks needed an organization which was dedicated to nothing but promoting a merry time. So, casting about for the kind of organization it should be, he finally hit on an army and navy. At a meeting of Texas Elks at Waco, in 1903, he made known his great plan, and the Texas Elks ate it up. Before the Waco meeting was over the army and navy had several thousand recruits.

It was burlesque, pure and simple, of the military. Each company had the most astounding personnel of officers. There were Major-Generals, Lieutenant-Generals, Judges Advocate, Secretaries of State, Secretaries of War, Secretaries of the Navy, Ambassadors to the Court of St. James, Ambassadors to the Near East and the Far East, but no officer any lower than a Colonel. While in each company there was but one private, albeit he was a "high private." It was the duty of the Major-Generals, Secretaries, Ambassadors, etc., to salute this high private most graciously. And it was the duty of the high private to pay no attention to them at all.

MRS. MONET PATTERSON, the General's third wife. A blonde.

During the war the General's army and navy didn't function in the manner devised for it, for the commander-in-chief and his army and navy were too busy with real wartime work to do any burlesquing.

THE Elks of Pennsylvania were meeting in Philadelphia. They extended an invitation to Patterson to attend the convention and bring his army and navy along. The General immediately wired a Philadelphia hotel to reserve a suite for "General William H. Patterson, commander-in-chief of the Elks' Army and Navy."

When Patterson arrived at Philadelphia a brass band met him at the station. The band lined up. Patterson, in full uniform, placed himself a few feet behind them and off they marched to the hotel, the commander-in-chief of the Elks' Army and Navy carrying himself with all the dignity of an Eastern potentate.

Arrived at the hotel, the General found on a table in his suite 12 quarts of excellent whisky, all of different brands. For the manager, not knowing what kind his notoworthy guest most favored, had placed a dozen of the best brands at the General's disposal, in the hope that one would be to his liking.

Now, like a true diplomat, the General announced he wished to show no favoritism: furthermore, he didn't wish to offend his host; therefore, the decent thing to do and by far the easiest and most pleasant way out of the dilemma was to make a showing toward each brand. He did. This being, of course, long before the days of Andrew J. Volstead.

It was a few years after the Philadelphia convention, at a Waco meeting of Elks, that General Patterson captured a citadel very much worth capturing. Attending the meeting were about 2500 of the General's forces. Patterson assembled them, gave the word, and they started for the attack. Through the streets of Waco they charged and at last came to their objective—a brewery. It is recorded to the honor of the armed forces of the Elks that they did not abandon their prize with colors lowered.

IT WAS about this time the General found he had another war on—one of a domestic variety. For, among his pretty office workers, was one Leta Davis, stenographer. And Mrs. Patterson chose Leta as a cause, sued for divorce—and got it. At the time Patterson was worth about $250,000 and had an income of $15,000 a year. His wife got the family home and other property, and the first book of the General's matrimonial trilogy was completed.

Then the General announced he would never grow old, no matter what his years were, and he declared he would keep young by associating with young people. In that way, argued the General, one never grew old. His idea, it seemed, worked successfully, and in 1917 he announced that he was going to be married. His bride was none other than Leta Davis, his stenographer.

The General bought for his bride a fine house, and things began to happen. Party after party the General threw, and all were mighty gay affairs. Patterson concluded the only reason for having money was to spend it, and spend it he did. His friends fairly thronged the place. The parties generated so much noise that the police came to the General's door on several occasions to investigate.

One night last year there was an exceptionally merry time on at the General's home. The police raided it. The General raised a row, refused to submit to the officers, and they finally clubbed him. He was charged with disorderly conduct. When the General was arrested he was wearing a black wig. His trousers were of the balloon variety.

It wasn't long after this that the General's second wife sued him for divorce. She said he had been cruel to her. The General denied his wife's allegations, but didn't appear in court. He gave her their home and $30,000, it is said. And it is also related he spent three times that much on her during the eight years they were married.

For the second time Patterson left his home in the hands of a divorced wife. This time he moved into a bachelor's apartment. He announced that from now on he would "live for his friends."

HE EVIDENTLY meant what he said. For at the General's apartment there was nothing but parties. Men and women tracked in at all times of the day and most any time of the night. Physicians told him he was an old man and it was time he was realizing it. But he scoffed at them and laughed them off. He wasn't old, he told them. Furthermore, he wasn't going to grow old. There was nothing old about him, he insisted. And said he: "I will never grow old. If such a time comes there will be no cause for my living."

And the General's parties continued with more vigor than before, and oftener than ever.

Everyone liked the old gentleman. He personified politeness. He talked easily, humorously, interestingly. He was prepared to talk on anything, from Greek mythology to the most recent cocktail formula. He was an excellent dancer, and he could dance anything from a quadrille to a tango. He mastered the Charleston. And when he set out to woo a lady, none, they say, was more graceful.

One afternoon, not so many weeks ago, several young women called to pay their respects to the General. One of them, one he had never met before, struck his fancy. She was 20, she was blonde, she had dimples, she was pretty, she answered all the General's requirements. He was elated and beamed his approval upon her.

She hadn't been there 10 minutes before the General, with a characteristic gesture, pointed a finger at her and announced: "I am going to marry you!"

She laughed, for she thought he was joking. But he wasn't. Here was his girl, he declared. And she fitted with the General's philosophy, for she was young, and young he would remain with her. His was a diligent courtship, and before long it was told that General Patterson and Monet Peeler were going to be married.

The General summoned the "high private" of the Dallas division of the Elks' Army and Navy and instructed him to announce the coming nuptials. The "high private" obeyed his superior's instructions. The ceremony was performed on the roof garden of a Dallas hotel. The public had been invited and hundreds attended to pay tribute to the General and his bride. The General was happy and gay. He thought he had conquered old age.

THEN it happened. One morning he stood before his mirror and rubbed at the crow's-feet webbed about his eyes. But they wouldn't go. He wrung his hands. He turned to his wife and cried: "Look! Look! I am old. OLD!"

He had lost all confidence in himself. He stood before his mirror and gazed hard into the glass. He paced about the floor. He was a broken, an old, man.

His wife tried to comfort him. But he couldn't be comforted. She asked him to let her get his doctor. He refused.

And then she told him it didn't matter whether he was old or not. They would be happy together, regardless. But nothing she could say could help him. He was an old man and he knew it.

A few mornings later he wrote the several letters. Finished, he asked his wife to drive to town and mail them. When she left the house he dressed himself in his commander-in-chief's uniform and killed himself.

And his wife said: "The change came on him so suddenly. 'I'm old,' he wailed, 'I'm old.'

"I told him he was just sick and not to worry about it and before long he would be quite all right. But he knew that it wasn't true; he knew he was old and he knew he would always be old, an old man.

"And what I said to him availed me nothing. He just wrung his hands and cried out, 'I'm old, darling, old.' Oh, I told him it made no difference to me how old he was. I told him he had me and that I had him. I told him we had our home. And, old or not, I said, we have everything that matters.

"Then I suggested we call in his doctor. But he wouldn't hear of it. I wanted him to try some treatments. He refused to use them. And that's the way things were. He couldn't be consoled.

"The morning of his death he complained again about his being an old, old man. He did some writing that morning. When he finished he asked me to drive to town and mail the letters. Those letters wound up his business affairs. And one contained his will. He gave me everything he had. Even his walking stick and his clothing.

"He was the dearest and kindest husband a girl ever had. I'll never have anyone to love me like he did."

The General, beaten, had refused to be taken prisoner.

GEORGE COHAN Tells the Story of His Merry Life

Continuing His Autobiography, the Song-and-Dance Man Describes His First Big Failure and His First Real Success.

II. "America's Best Song Writer."

By GEORGE M. COHAN

THE last week in August we went on our merry way to the great New York City with a contract for a week's engagement at Keith's Union Square Theater. The family had never played the big town. Dad and mother had appeared there years before as a sketch team, and had also presented melodramas in the cheaper houses, but this was to be the initial New York appearance of the "Four Cohans." Josie was as nervous as a kitten and acknowledged the fact. On the contrary, I was never so sure of "knocking 'em cold" as I was the Sunday evening before our Union Square opening. Dad and I went out to take a stroll after supper. We wanted to talk over a few minor changes we were making in the act.

"We'll be a 'riot' tomorrow, dad," I said, as I took my first good look at the bright lights of Broadway.

"Don't be too sure, son. You never can tell." My father's lack of confidence, as I figured it to be then, got me nervous and I came back with:

"Well, what's going to stop us? It's the best four act in the business. We know that, don't we? Mother and you have all that sure-fire dialogue. You'll 'murder' 'em with that. Josie's the best dancer in America. We know that, don't we? And as for myself, well——"

I was just about to explain to him, for the thousandth time, what a perfectly marvelous performer I was, and what I would do to this wise metropolitan audience, and how easily I was going to take my rightful place with the high lights of the theater world, when he interrupted me by whispering to me:

"Nix, son. You're talking too loud. Everybody in the street is listening to you."

"What do I care about these Broadway guys!" As I said this I threw a nasty look in the direction of "the curbstone brigade" in front of the Coleman House.

"I'll fold this street up and put it in my pocket before I get through." I added this loud enough for the "gang" to hear, and a roar of laughter sent father around the corner toward Sixth Avenue.

"OH, hello, Jerry! Glad to see you." It was the house manager speaking as he shook hands with dad when we entered the stage door of the Union Square Theater the following morning.

"I've just received a telegram from Boston headquarters," he continued. "Here, read it yourself," and he handed the message to dad. Mother, Josie and I leaned over his shoulders, and we all read it at the same time:

> Tell Cohan family not to do the four act. Mr. and Mrs. Cohan in sketch and two children in single turns better for New York audience.

I won't say that we were disappointed. Half paralyzed is a better description.

"This is a big mistake," said dad. "Why, we've been rehearsing the four act night and day for weeks."

"Sure we have. It'll be a sensation, too." I added this.

"Keep quiet, son," my mother snapped.

"What do you think, Nellie?" Dad put it up to mother.

She advertised her disappointment with a shrug of the shoulders.

"I think this is a crime," I blurted.

"I'll commit one in a minute if you don't keep quiet," said dad.

I walked to the corner of Fourth Avenue and Fourteenth Street and leaned against a lamp-post, and gave Keith and Albee a "laying out" such as they never heard in all their days. When I'd finished giving them their right names and addresses, I started breaking matches into halves and chucking them in the gutter. I destroyed the entire box and then started the encore to my tirade.

"All right, I'll go in and do the single turn if you want it, but you two guys can understand right now that I'll get even . . . Yes, sir! . . . I'll get even if I have to spend the rest of my life in taking the roofs of your theaters from over your heads." That was the finish of my verbal assault on the two great managers as I stood there talking to the lamp-post. I turned back through the alley and walked in the stage door, and discovered dad at the footlights, rehearsing the music of my single turn, "The Lively Bootblack."

A boy in uniform looked in the room with a "time sheet" to tell us where we were on the bill.

"Is Master George Cohan in here?" he inquired, as he referred to the paper to get the name correct.

"Right here," I answered.

"You're on 'number one.' You open the show," he said as he checked me off with a pencil dash.

"I what?" I fairly screamed this.

"You open the show," he repeated, and disappeared down the hall, calling out the names of various performers and acquainting each one with his or her spot on the program. If the theater building had caved in it couldn't have buried me any deeper than I was right then. Josie was "spotted" fourth, mother and dad sixth. I was to "open" the show. Dad stood in the center of the room, waiting for the explosion. It came, with a bang!

"They can't do this to me. I won't be disgraced by these guys. I'd rather be a tramp in the gutter than stand for this." They heard me hollering throughout the entire building. I meant that they should.

Mother and Josie came running into the room and tried to console me, but I tore up and down like a madman, calling Keith and Albee everything on the calendar. Dad, mother and Josie stood by, watching this performance with both fear and sympathy registered on their faces. For several minutes I raved and ranted, and finally threw myself on top of a trunk and wept bitter tears.

At this point the call boy shouted through the hall: "Curtain up in ten minutes. Everybody dressed, please!" I jumped up from the trunk.

"I'll go through with it," I hollered as I started tearing off my street clothes. "I'll go through with it and make them all ashamed of themselves. Mark my words, before the week is over I'll be in the middle of this bill. See if I won't. I'll go out there and knock that audience 'into a cocked hat,' that's what I'll do. I'll dance like I never danced in all my life. I'll turn this defeat into victory" (a line from one of the plays I had written). I raised my right hand above my head and pointed to the ceiling as I shouted this. "They can't discourage or dishearten me—no, siree. I just won't be licked. I'll show this New York public a few things they've never seen before. Oh, I'll open the show. Yes, I'll open the show" (this half hysterically) "and God help the acts that follow me, that's all I've got to say." I shouted this threat at the top of my voice so every performer on the bill could hear it.

Not a hand through my whole act. I bowed at the end of the dance, and the piano player "tremoloed" a sustained chord to take me off. I walked to the first entrance, bowed again and made my exit in absolute silence.

"YOU paralyzed 'em, kid, you killed 'em. They're all dead out there." One of the stage hands said this as I passed him on the way to the dressing room where the other members of my family were waiting to hear the result of my New York triumph. In those days the performers had to remain in their dressing rooms until called for their acts.

"How did you go, son?" asked dad eagerly as I rushed in with my jaw set and fire in my eyes. He asked the question before he realized my frame of mind.

"I'll get even with Keith and Albee for this, if it's the last thing I ever do." As I made this statement I threw the bootblack box the full length of the room.

I hurriedly dressed for the street, ran around the corner, bought an admission ticket, and stood out front and watched my sister Josie make a genuine hit.

"That's what a good spot on the bill will do," I muttered to myself as I walked over to Union Square and leaned against the lamp-post.

During the balance of the Union Square engagement, the attitude of the people about the theater was very much "upstage" so far as I was concerned. As soon as I noticed this fact I was smart enough to stay in the background and sort of hide away.

The stage hands kept at me, however, and referred to me as "Young Henry Irving" and whispered wise cracks in my ear every chance they got. Most of the performers on the bill passed me up without a word; one or two of them "kidded" me in a mild way, while a few others, taking pity on a spoiled boy, tried to jolly me along with a friendly smile now and then.

I tamed down considerably after Monday matinee—so much so, in fact, that by the middle of the week I was in the shrinking violet class.

THROUGH the entire eighteen consecutive performances (three a day), 12:05, 5:20 and 7:25 p. m., I continued to "die standing up," as they used to say when an act failed to score a hit. The hours of my appearance were such that I never saw over a baker's dozen sitting out front, until my final performance Saturday evening. I peeked through the first-entrance draperies before I went on, and saw that the house was packed.

"Here's where I get a real chance at these babies," I said to myself as I dashed on and into my opening song.

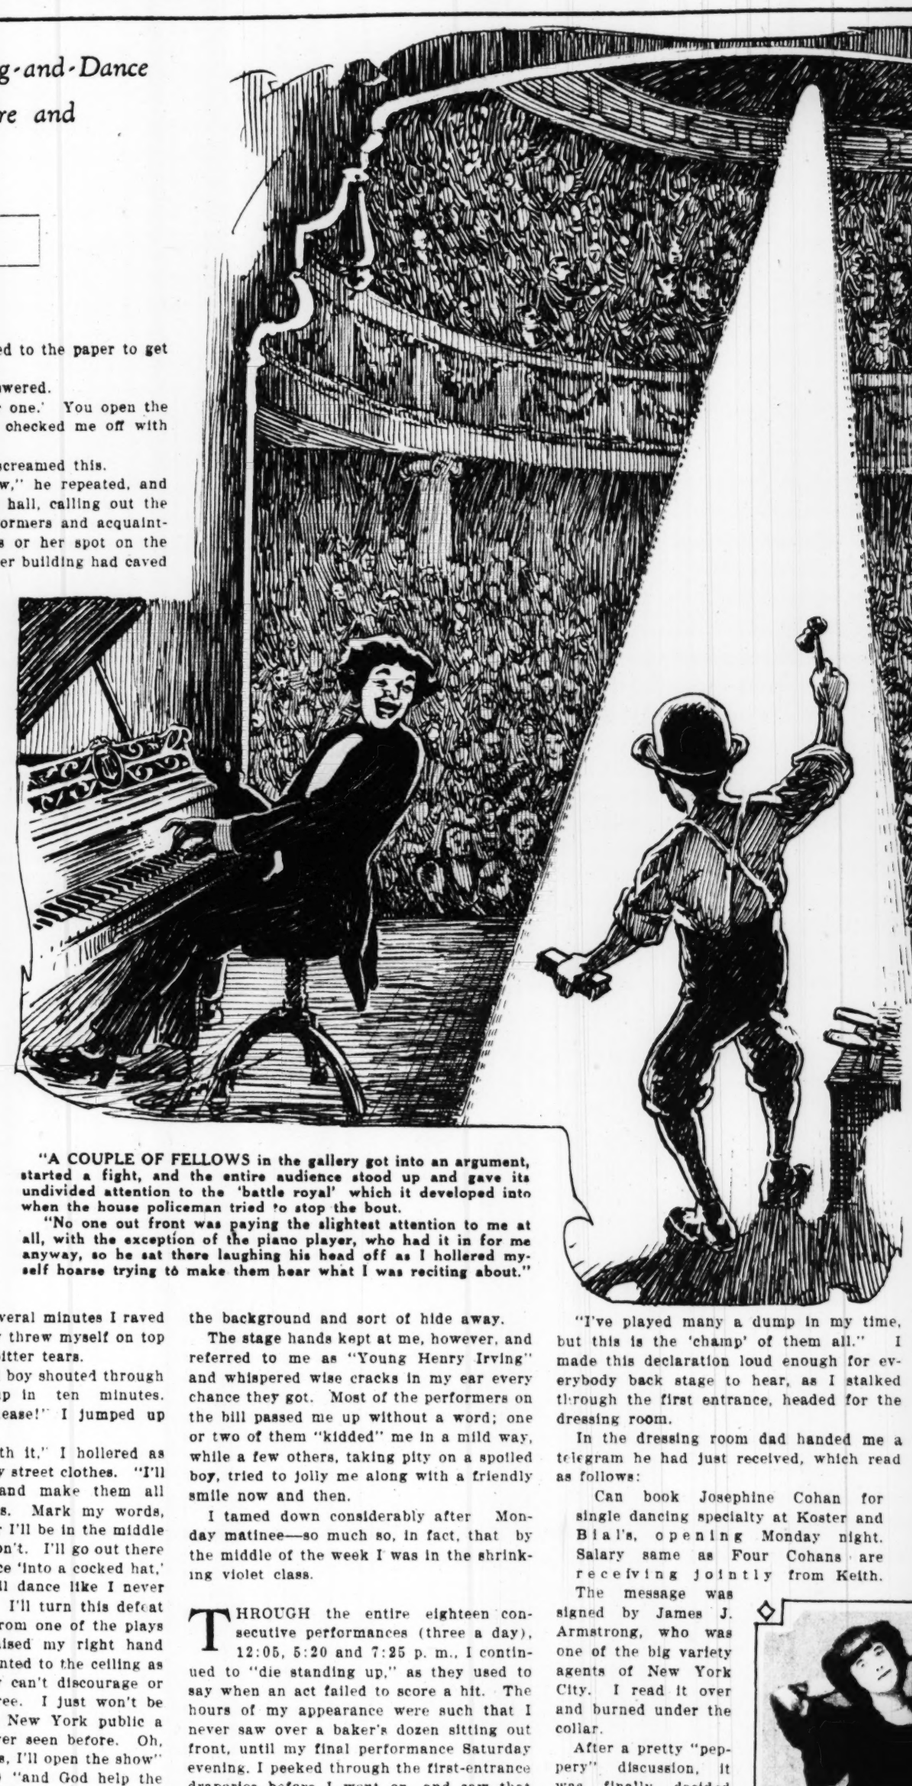
It was what was known as an over-friendly Saturday night "set up" audience. They started laughing at the box office when they bought their tickets.

My Irish reel got a round of applause. The waltz clog went well enough to take an encore.

"Ah, ha! I'm even at last," the thought flashed through my mind. "Keith and Albee tried to ruin me, but the little old Rhode Island kid will finish the week in a blaze of glory." No one on earth could have bought that bootblack box from me for a million dollars at that particular moment.

I told a couple of jokes which I added for this occasion, and got two great big laughs. The act was going along like a house on fire. I went into my recitation, "The Bootblack's Dream," absolutely convinced that I'd "murder 'em" with that, but just as I got to the most dramatic part (where the kid falls asleep on the doorstep and starts dreaming that he's the rich man's son) a couple of fellows in the gallery got into an argument, started a fight, and the entire audience stood up and gave its undivided attention to the "battle royal" which it developed into when the house policeman tried to stop the bout.

No one out front was paying the slightest attention to me at all, with the exception of the piano player, who had it in for me anyway, so he sat there laughing his head off as I hollered myself hoarse trying to make them hear what I was reciting about.



"A COUPLE OF FELLOWS in the gallery got into an argument, started a fight, and the entire audience stood up and gave its undivided attention to the 'battle royal' which it developed into when the house policeman tried to stop the bout.

"No one out front was paying the slightest attention to me at all, with the exception of the piano player, who had it in for me anyway, so he sat there laughing his head off as I hollered myself hoarse trying to make them hear what I was reciting about."

"I've played many a dump in my time, but this is the 'champ' of them all." I made this declaration loud enough for everybody back stage to hear, as I stalked through the first entrance, headed for the dressing room.

In the dressing room dad handed me a telegram he had just received, which read as follows:

> Can book Josephine Cohan for single dancing specialty at Koster and Bial's, opening Monday night. Salary same as Four Cohans are receiving jointly from Keith.

The message was signed by James J. Armstrong, who was one of the big variety agents of New York City. I read it over and burned under the collar.

After a pretty "peppery" discussion, it was finally decided that Josie was to accept the Koster & Bial proposition, so dad sent word around to the agent's office that everything was O. K.

After her opening performance she was engaged indefinitely. (She was a heavenly dancer.) She was also immediately booked at what was known then as the Vaudeville Club, which was a sort of society cabaret affair over the Metropolitan Opera House. This double engagement lasted for weeks and weeks. Later in the season she was transferred to the Imperial Music Hall, which afterwards became Weber and Fields' playhouse. She rounded out the entire winter as a single-handed entertainer at twice the salary the "four" had ever received.

During her Imperial engagement I said to her one day, "Why don't you speak to the manager of that house and see if you can't get him to put me on for my single specialty?"

"I'll speak to him about it tonight, Georgie."

The next day she brought what she thought was good news.

"Everything's fixed, George," she said. "I've arranged for you to show your act." I was tickled pink. "There's to be a big benefit performance at the Imperial Friday afternoon," she went on. "It's to raise money for the yellow fever sufferers in the South. All the big stars of the town are going to appear, and Mr. Krauss told me that he'd be only too glad to look at your specialty if you care to go in the bill."

"I don't think so much of that idea," I said, disappointedly.

"Well, at least it's a hearing," put in dad.

"Why don't you do it, son?" chimed in mother.

"WHAT does that guy think I am—a benefit actor?" And to emphasize my contempt for the idea I added, "He's just trying to get something for nothing, that's what he's doing."

After thinking the matter over that night, however, I decided that it might be well to break into a big all-star bill even at a benefit performance, so the next morning I went to Josie and told her to inform the manager that I would positively appear if he'd give me a good spot on the program.

I sat through that show of innumerable acts. I heard the audience cheering at the announcement of how much the gross receipts of the benefit had amounted to, and then the orchestra broke into "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the drop curtain came down as they banged into a Sousa march to play the audience out. I had been in the theater, dressed and ready to go on, for five hours and a half, and there I was sitting on the edge of a trunk, up near the rear wall, still waiting to be called, when the performance was over.

All the actors and actresses, stars and near stars, circus performers and variety headliners, who had filled the entrances to watch the different acts as they went on and off, now started toward the stage door, laughing, chatting and carrying on all kinds of small talk as they passed me without even a glance in my direction.

"Lucky lot of stiffs," I mumbled to myself. "I'll get even with all you birds some day. See if I don't."

JOSIE COHAN, George's sister, an early success.

AFTER my "Imperial" benefit experience, I received no further offers for personal appearances the balance of the winter.

My state of mind during those months of idleness I wouldn't attempt to describe. I was absolutely certain that "dirty work" was being done by my enemies (probably the stage hands at the Union Square Theater) and the whole scheme was to keep me off the stage and break my spirit if possible, before I got the chance of exploiting my marvelous talents.

From one music-publishing house to another I traipsed with my song manuscripts, week in and week out. I had about exhausted the entire tin-pan-alley circuit. They all said the same thing:

"No market for songs of that kind."

"I'll write any kind you want," I'd reply.

"We don't want any right now," they'd answer.

There was one concern, however, that I'd never had courage enough to visit. It was the establishment of M. Witmark & Sons. They were the big song publishers in those days. They still are, as far as I am concerned. I figured it would be useless to try for a hearing with that house, as they seemed to have first call on the output of every leading composer and lyric writer in the country. They'd be far too busy to bother with a new man; besides, I had them tabbed for a lot of swelled-headed guys, anyway.

"The big stiffs," I'd say to myself as I'd pass by their place. "Just goes to show how smart those babies in there are, publishing all that bum material written by a lot of 'hams,' and here I am, the best song writer in America, walking right by their door with four or five great big sure-fire hits under my arm."

One day out of sheer desperation, as I was about to pass their front door, I ran up the steps leading to the main entrance, and before I knew it I had landed "Why Did Nellie Leave Her Home?"

I WAS at last going to see my name as author and composer printed on the title page of a musical composition which would more than likely sell millions of copies. I started whistling the refrain of "Why Did Nellie Leave Her Home?" and kept at it from Twenty-eighth street all the way down Broadway to Union Square. When I arrived there I stopped to mingle with a group of song writers, to whom I began singing the praises of M. Witmark & Sons, and followed it up with a verse and chorus of the "Nellie" song.

When I had finished my rendition of this sad but beautiful ballad, a parody writer who was known as "McCann, the Song Factory," and who was a great favorite with the variety actors on account of his exceptional wit, said to me:

"Did you sell that song to the Witmarks?"

"Sure. They grabbed it the minute I pulled it on them."

"Put it there, kid," and he grabbed my hand. "You're the best business man I ever met."

"What do you mean by that?" I asked.

At the boarding house, I imparted the news to my family that the Witmarks were moving heaven and earth in their efforts to get my name to a long-term contract. I had all the publishers in town fighting for my future compositions and had just closed a big deal for "Why Did Nellie Leave Her Home?"

"Hurrah for you, son!" shouted dad.

Josie threw her arms about my neck and kissed me. Mother wept with joy.

"I told you I'd fold this town up and put it in my pocket, didn't I? Well, you just watch me from now on."

SHE READS THE SPORT NEWS

By Carol Brown

AND now a sports writer has come between me and my husband! An enthusiastic raving lying sports writer! Not that he has ever really done anything but it's the things he's said and the way in which he said them!

I'd never have known about him—the deceitful creature!—if Artie hadn't announced yesterday morning at the breakfast table that he was going to take me to the ball game.

Now I believe in being interested in everything my husband is interested in because I realize that that will make him more interested in me so I just opened my eyes wide and batted my eyelashes swiftly to make me look bright and said, "Oh, Artie, how cute! I just love to go to ball games! It's so interesting! Shall I wear my plaid sport suit with the fur on it or my airedale hose and creme de peche dress or my cuckoo dress with the atmosphere hat?"

And then seeing that a shadow crossed his face, I added: "And I will learn all about the game before I go again, Artie dear, tell me all you know about baseball. You can do it now while you finish your coffee."

And that's how I came to read the sport news. He just simply thrust that section of the paper into my hand and said, "Here, read that. And, ferthelovamike, don't get that paper all mixed up the way you usually do! Don't turn it upside down and make a salad out of the fashions and the news and the automobile section, and don't hide the political news in the want ads! What makes you mix a paper up that way!"

REALIZING that wanting to treat a newspaper like a filing cabinet is just a peculiar little trait of all husbands, I ignored his rudeness and, then, too, I found something that I knew would really interest him.

"Artie," I said, "I notice that one of the players has bought an ocean steamer and that another has taken a trip on it. They must get awfully big salaries."

And then as he seemed to be really interested and rather surprised I read it out loud to him, "Bushwah came home on Bishwang's liner to center." Though as I told him—supposing that "center" meant the equator it seemed sort of foolish to go there in the summer time.

"That means that Bishwang at the bat hit the ball on the nose and the pill went straight into the center fielder's hands for an out," he explained and he said it almost ferociously as though he were mad at those two players or at somebody. "It means that Bushwah scored after the catch."

"Oh how cute!" I said, "I understand perfectly. Do you know, I think maybe I'll wear my light blue sport dress with the lace collar and cuffs and my caramel or cocoa hat! I didn't realize how interesting baseball could be!"

But then as I read on I came to a passage that made me wonder if I really would like to wear a nice dress out at the ball field. I felt that the place couldn't be very clean for the sports writer admitted frankly that it was full of flies. You would have thought his pride would make him want to hide anything so disgusting but he had it down in black and white. He said, "All Mingwop could do was to drive out flies that were gobbled up by Battemcatch and Slipem." I told Artie I didn't think it was sanitary, though I supposed Battemcatch and Slipem were maybe two dogs, and even well-bred dogs will snap at flies.

"Dogs, dogs!" he roared at me and you would have thought he actually wds angry at somebody this time. "Dogs! Two of the best ground coverers in the league. Nothing can get by those two."

"Isn't that cute!" I said to pacify him. "Then I really can wear my light-blue dress, though I think, perhaps, my gray things would be more appropriate."

And then I forgot all about my clothes for several minutes reading the little personal things about the players. Though the article was supposed to be an account of the game the sports writer had put so many homelike touches into it! For instance, he said that one of the players had gotten a roller in front of the plate. I had no idea they were so domestic! And he spoke so sweetly of one of them who, he said, "handled the sacrifice beautifully" and of one player who "quietly fanned" another. Though, as I explained to Artie, it seemed a little queer to me for it really was a cold day.

"Do you suppose I'd better carry my new fan?" I asked him. "Of course, fans aren't at all fashionable now but I'm going to carry my gray bag with the red trimmings, and I could slip the fan in that."

"THERE'LL be some fans there when you get there!" he burst forth, wadding up the perfectly good fashion sheet and throwing it on the floor. Really you would have thought from his manner that I was trying to make him interested in my affairs instead of my being interested in his.

But I was determined not to let my enthusiasm wane for a minute so I batted my eyes and said, "Artie, you've no idea what I'm getting out of this sport news!"

"No, I haven't!" he admitted, so I went right on reading until I found something that I knew Artie must have missed and that I felt would absolutely prevent me from going to that game.

He was really agreeable for the first time that morning and actually smiled when I told him I couldn't go. He assured me that it was all right so quickly and that he wouldn't mind going without me a bit that I really began to feel that we were coming to an understanding after all.

"But, Artie, dear," I said, "I don't think you ought to go to that place, either. There's been a dreadful riot and two or three murders. Why, Artie, it's horrible—it's simply blood-curdling! Why, Artie, it says here that one player struck out several men. It says—why it says Bumbat tossed out Playfoul and Runem died the same way. Why I simply shudder to think of going to a place of that kind!"

Artie didn't say a word—not a word! He left the house without speaking to me again and I didn't hear from him all day. I even suspect that he went to that game without me!

That's why I feel so bitter toward that sports writer. If it hadn't been for him I might have gone to the game and worn my light blue dress.

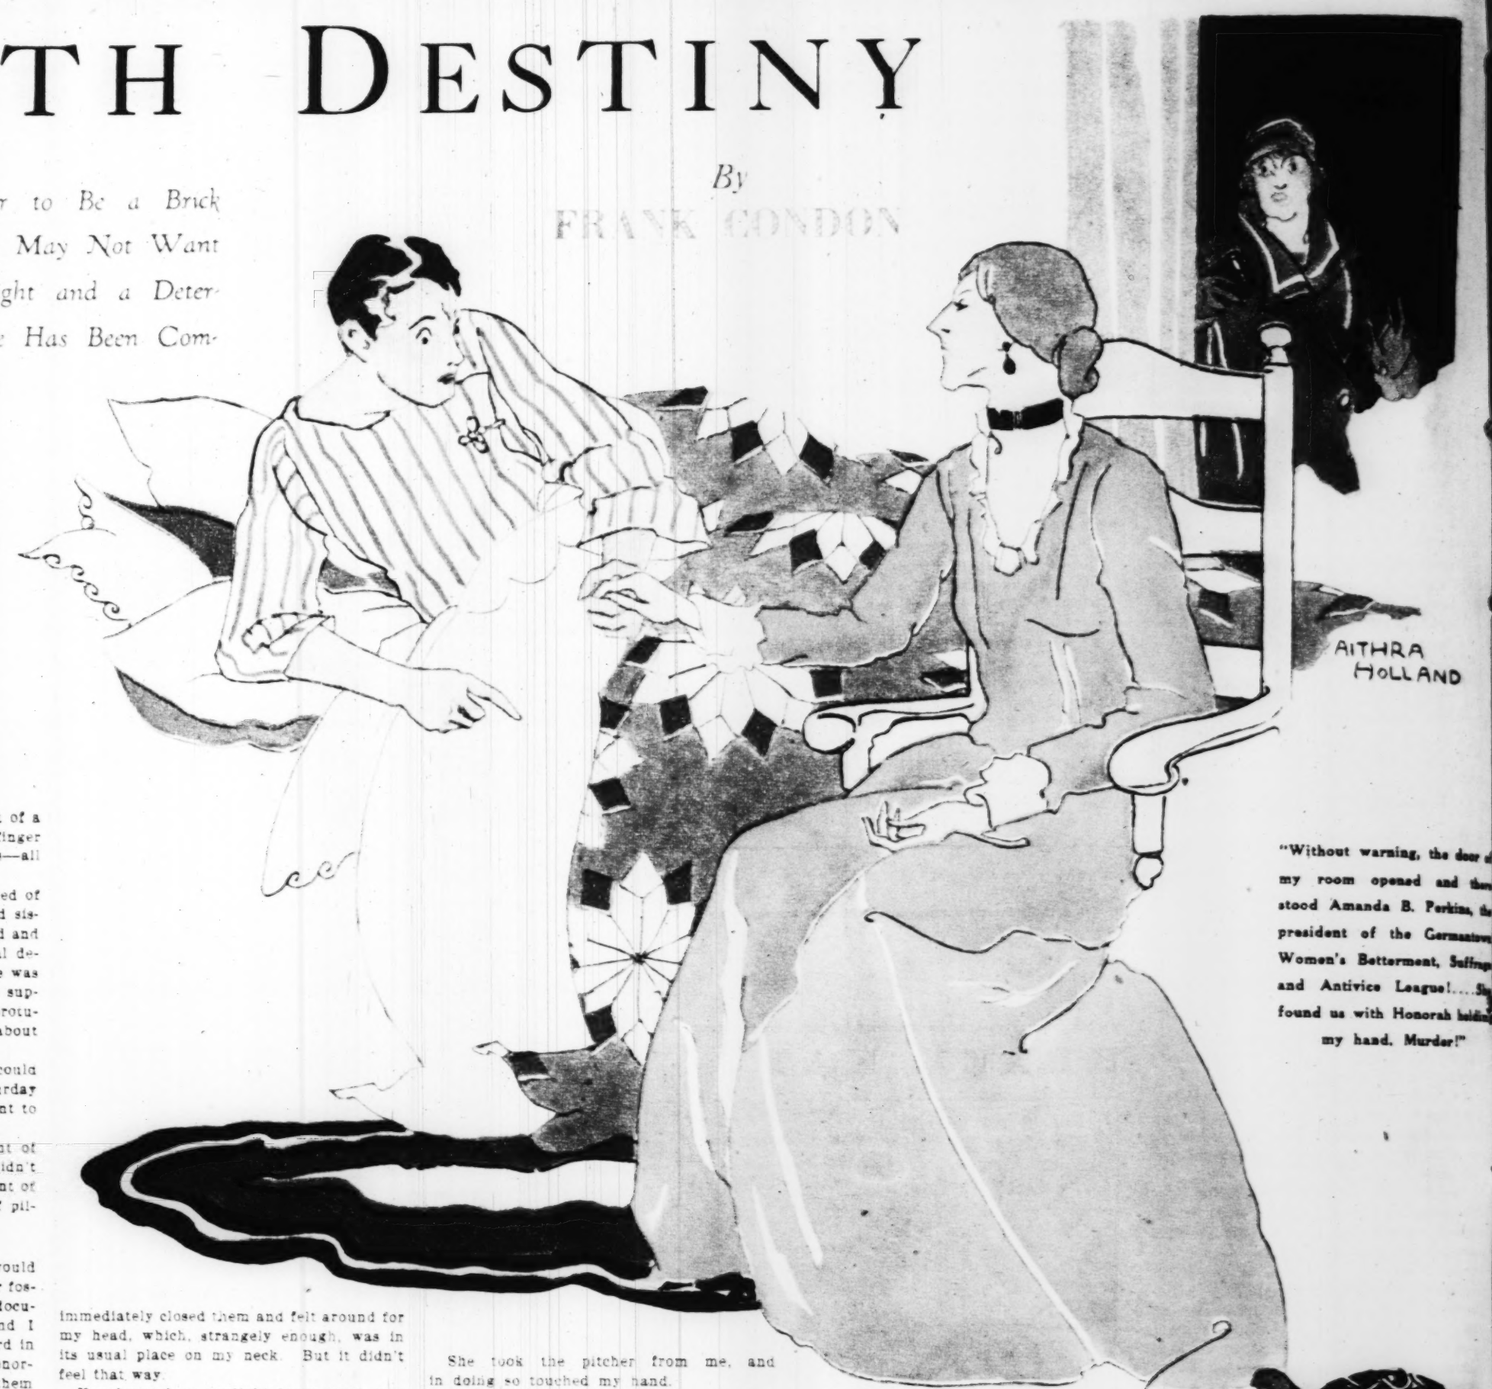
DICE WITH DESTINY

When Shorty Kilgour Quit His Job as Cow-Puncher to Be a Brick Salesman, He Ran Into Heaps of Trouble. A Man May Not Want to Get Married, but if a Broken Leg Prevents Flight and a Determined Lady on the Wrong Side of Forty Thinks She Has Been Compromised, What Else Can He Do? Here Shorty Tells About His Harrowing Experience.

By FRANK CONDON



"Without warning, the door of my room opened and there stood Amanda B. Perkins, the president of the Germantown Women's Betterment, Suffrage and Antivice League!.... She found us with Honorah holding my hand. Murder!"

NO MATTER how hard a fellow tries to avoid making mistakes, he makes 'em anyhow. Doesn't he?

Take me, for instance. The Lord made me to sit in a saddle and round up steers. I'm a cow-puncher, pure and simple—and not so darned much of either; and you'd think I'd have sense enough to realize it.

But not me. Nowadays I have sense, and I spend my time on Pop Beeson's ranch chasing the ambulant beef; but in the old days, when my blood ran like wine in my veins and I longed for excitement, I busted loose from all restraint, tossed away my chaps and spurs, and hurled myself into the brick business.

Also, I came so darned near getting married, against my personal wishes, that I can still smell orange blossoms when I think of it, and the little shivers that chase each other up and down my spine play Mendelssohn's Wedding March upon the separate vertebrae.

I sauntered into Pop Beeson's private office on the ranch one morning and handed him my resignation in an affluent and haughty manner.

"Well, Shorty, what's the matter with you?" Pop demanded, looking at me with his good-natured grin.

"Me? I'm through herding cows," I replied with dignity. "Life in the saddle has begun to pall on me, and I no longer joy in the wild round-up. I'm going to quit being a care-free cow-puncher and take up the serious business of existence. I've got a job selling bricks on commission for the Omaha Brick Company, and from this minute I'm a business man, wearing a business suit and eating lunch at 12 sharp with bank presidents and other whiskered persons. I hereby resign after many happy years in your employment, and you have nothing but my good wishes. You'll have a hell-hootin' time getting along without Shorty Kilgour on the ranch, but the call of duty takes me to Omaha and points west."

Pop Beeson chuckled at me and indulged in a few ribald remarks. "When you get good and sick of being a business man," he said, "you come back to the ranch. I'll hold your job for you, Shorty. You're a chump, and chumps have to be taken care of—the same as lunatics and persons who fell on their heads during infancy. So long!"

THE boys of the Bar-C Ranch gave me a farewell party, in the course of which, I regret to state, everybody became more or less conflagrated, and when I boarded the passenger train for Omaha, my head felt like a soft-shell boil and my tongue looked like an upholstered maltese cat. I arrived in Omaha (slipping over unnecessary details), conferred with the Omaha Brick Company, drew a small advance for traveling expenses, and set forth into the merry world to sell bricks.

It was one of these jobs where you don't have a regular salary—and if you want some inside advice, never have anything to do with that kind of a job. Get one where there's a Saturday envelope containing green money—even if it's only $9.

Whenever I sold a mess of bricks I drew down my commission, but not until the contracts were signed and in the office of the Omaha Brick Company. There was no misunderstanding about that part of it. The brick company couldn't lose any money on me.

And the first town I hit after entering the brick industry was the thriving and women-ridden burg known to fame as Germantown, Nebraska.

I will always treasure in my memory Germantown, Nebraska. The nearest thing to a German in it was a fellow from Switzerland who spoke French and ran a shoemaker's shop.

It seems that the Board of Education in Germantown had about decided to put up a high school, and at the same time the Board of Selectmen dug down into the town's funds and opined that a fresh courthouse might add some to the beauty of the scenery. The brick company had heard of the proposed improvements, and I was sifted into Germantown to sell the folks enough bricks to go around.

And now I will tell you about Germantown. It was as full of unoccupied old maids as there are letters in the postoffice. Everywhere you looked your offended eyes rested upon an old maid, although some of them were youngish maids and some middle-aged maids.

It seems that matrimony had got sore on Germantown at some distant time and anyhow there weren't enough male objects to go 'round. The men were a foolish, dejected lot, and the women, by superior numbers, bossed the burg. They had a woman Mayoress and a woman Chief of Police, and ladies' sodalities and committees governed the place till you couldn't rest.

Now, I like the ladies as well as anybody, but I have some sense about them. They will never get to be a pernicious habit with me. I can take a lady or leave her alone. But Germantown was the extreme outer edge of the ultimate limit, and I soon discovered the fact that if I sold any bricks there I would have to learn to drink tea out of a thimble-cup and stick out my little finger and play bridge whist and similar evils—all repellent to my natural nature.

The principal family in town consisted of Jeremiah Henks and his utterly unwed sister, Honorah Henks, about 43 years old and built on the same general architectural designs noticeable in a clothes prop. She was one of these scrawny-necked damsels supporting unexpected moles of a highly protuberant nature and given to discussion about Women's Aim and Ultimate Destiny.

And she was not a jolly soul. She could walk into a Turkish bath on a Saturday night and freeze the alcoholic merriment to death in 14 seconds.

Her brother, Jeremiah, was president of all the boards and things the women didn't particularly want. He was also president of the Germantown Bank and a couple of pillars in the church.

TO OBTAIN my brick contracts I would have to get Jeremiah and six other fossilized inhabitants to sign the documents, and after I had loomed around I made my first mistake. I went to board in the Puritanic home of Jeremiah and Honorah Henks, thinking to be liberal with them in the matter of money and to thrust my amiable disposition upon them, flooding their somber home with sunshine.

I asked Jeremiah if he thought he could board me for $15 a week, regular boarding prices being five a week; and he mentioned to me that he could. For $15 a week Jeremiah would have eaten his own leg, beginning at the large toe and working up.

Then I went around among the members of the School Board, smearing them with salve and urging upon them the indestructibility of our particular bricks. I sat in with the Town Selectmen and made speeches, taking up the subject of bricks and going back to the time when Henry J. Caesar erected Rome out of precisely the deathless material we were manufacturing in Omaha. For $18,000 they could buy bricks to last Germantown until Gabriel blew the dust out of his trumpet and summoned the corpses—and in the course of time I got so dry talking bricks that my throat felt like any brick kiln during the molting season.

And those suckers all signed up—except Jeremiah Henks, the man who was drawing down my $15 a week for feeding me baked beans and paralytic doughnuts.

He held out. I tried to bribe him, but he wouldn't be brobe.

All I needed in order to get out of Germantown into human life again was this old bird's signature—and he wouldn't give it.

ONE night, when hope had almost fled, I ran into a cigar drummer from Chicago in front of the International Hotel, which, I will say, while not effusively international in most ways, contained the most international assortment of insectivorous life under the blue canopy of heaven. The drummer told me that one bug, flying the tricolor of France, had chased him around the bedroom, talking to him in German and biting him distinctly in a Rumanian manner and with obvious Russian ferocity.

Also the drummer was in indisputed possession of some Kentucky bourbon and low in his mind, so we foregathered in his apartment, and I told him my troubles, meanwhile inoculating myself now and anon with a snifter.

They told me afterward at the hotel that I became lighted until I was visible 30 miles on a misty night, and the next thing I definitely recall was my awakening in my own downy bed at the home of Jeremiah and Honorah Henks.

I must have got into my room through the rain-pipe because neither Honorah nor Jeremiah knew anything about my previous condition of desuetude.

It was probably eight or nine o'clock in the morning when I opened my eyes. I immediately closed them and felt around for my head, which, strangely enough, was in its usual place on my neck. But it didn't feel that way.

You know how sunlight hurts your eyes some mornings? Not all mornings, of course, but some mornings.

It slowly dawned upon me that I felt pretty sick, and I wanted a drink of cold water about as large as Lake Michigan.

I sat up in bed with a violent effort, holding my head carefully on its pedestal, which was shaky; and as I glanced about the room I beheld in the middle of the floor a mud-turtle.

Now, while I have no personal aversion to mud-turtles, I distinctly hate to find them in my boudoir after a stormy night at sea.

I ducked under the clothes and shut my eyes. I knew perfectly well that when I looked again the mud-turtle would be gone and its place would be occupied by a striped elephant—or a pink-and-blue lizard wearing automobile goggles and wiggling its hairy tail.

Once before in my life I had seen a horn-tailed toad sitting on the foot of my bed waving his thirteen legs and eating flapjacks through his eyes, and I'm against ornithology in the morning.

I LOOKED again and the mud-turtle was still present. Then I called out in my own voice.

"Come in here, somebody!" I shouted, attempting to make the summons casual.

Nobody answered.

"Come in here!" I cried again, and the turtle turned a coldly calculating eye on me. "Oh, please, come in here."

A step sounded in the outer hall and I knew I was saved. Honorah Henks tapped on my door.

"Are you calling?" she asked.

"Come in here!" I said again. It seemed like I was stuck on those words. I know as much English language as anybody, but right then I couldn't think of the other words. My mental processes were clogged, as it were.

"I will not go in there," Honorah answered coldly.

"Please come in!" I begged her.

"I have never yet entered a man's room," Honorah went on, "and I don't propose to begin now."

"I'm sick," I yelled. "I will probably die in five or ten minutes. Please come in!"

She opened my door one inch and gazed upon me.

"Will you please get me a pitcher of water?" I besought her. "I am dreadfully sick, and I can't get it myself."

"You poor man," Honorah said, and then I knew I must look sick also.

She went away and returned after a while with one of those glass pitchers containing a gallon of regular water, which I inserted into my quivering insides, shaking some of it on the bedspread the while.

"You are deathly pale," Honorah said, "and you are trembling like a leaf."

She took the pitcher from me, and in doing so touched my hand.

"You are as cold as ice," she went on. "You must have a doctor."

"No doctor can cure what I've got," I told her. "Only time will do that. Any tank—I mean any invalid will tell you that."

So Honorah sat down on the chair beside me and took hold of my hand, which I will admit was a friendly act. There are mornings when a man needs to have his hand held, just to kind of comfort him. When you're particularly shaky, nothing will take the place of human companionship. Ask any wife whose husband doesn't belong to the Y. M. C. A.

And while Honorah wasn't all human, she was better than the mud-turtle.

"Tell me," I said after a while, "do you see anything out there on the floor?"

"Nothing at all," she answered, "except little Nettie."

"Nettie!" I gasped.

"Our little family turtle," Honorah said. "She must have slipped into your room during the night. She's so friendly."

"And while she was slipping," I answered, "she slipped me a jolt that like to killed me."

Honorah went on holding my hand.

If I had had any sense about that time I would have crept out and hid myself under a washstand, but I was far from being a well man and my wits were gone. I was in dire peril and I didn't know it.

It seems Jeremiah Henks had gone downtown on business, and Honorah and me were alone in the house.

Now there wasn't anything wrong about that. You can see for yourself. But my luck was against me.

THERE was a slight noise in the outer part of the house, and without warning the door of my room opened and there stood Amanda B. Perkins, the president of the Germantown Women's Betterment, Suffrage and Antivice League. She had called, it seems, to confer with Honorah on club matters, and, forgetting about the boarder, had wandered through the house with the freedom of an old friend.

And there she found us, with Honorah holding my hand. Murder!

Can you see the situation? Amanda B. Perkins, to begin with, was the gabbiest human being that ever brushed a tooth, and a stern uncompromising virtuous maiden, fifty-one years old and gradually drying up, all but her voice. She could make a scandal out of anything if she wanted to and she generally wanted to.

I tried to wriggle under the clothes and pretend I was a wire spring, but it was too late. Amanda had affixed us with her eagle eye.

She exuded a large, female gasp of astonishment and Honorah rose to her feet in majestic dignity, dropping my hand so hard it nearly fell off my wrist.

Outside in the hall, when Honorah closed the door, there arose a chatter. Amanda B. Perkins was speaking, and Honorah was explaining that the Henks boarder was sick. I climbed out of bed and listened at the keyhole without shame.

"Sick!" snorted Miss Perkins in her most snortful manner. "He's no more sick than you are, Honorah. It's a wicked subterfuge. He wishes to compromise you before your friends!"

I felt myself growing weaker.

"Men are all alike," Miss Perkins went on. "He simply preyed upon your innocence, Honorah. He lured you into his room in order to flaunt his triumph in the face of the world. He is a monster!"

Still weaker I heard snatches—fragments of Miss Perkins' sentences, such as "Lothario," "Smasher of girlish hearts," and "Destroyer of souls."

"I thought he was sick," Honorah said calmly. "He certainly looked sick."

"THERE is absolutely nothing to be done about this terrible business but one thing," Miss Perkins continued in her president-of-the-league voice. "I can say, Honorah, that I speak for the women of Germantown, and fortunately I happened along in time to witness this man's chichancery. He must marry you, Honorah."

"Marry me?" Honorah said, and the way she said it was what frightened me.

It wasn't a startled "marry me" or a scornful "marry me" or a disgusted, sneering, jeering "marry me." It was one of those "marry me's" that sounds to a man like the bell in the church steeple as the corpse is borne down the aisle.

"Certainly," said the lady. "He has compromised you before your friends, and he must make reparation by marrying you. You have reached an age, Honorah, if I must say so, when your chance of ever getting married is rapidly diminishing, and this young man is a good-looking person."

I crawled back into bed, shivering and thinking that as far as Germantown was concerned I was rapidly losing my taste for it. I knew of a dozen places I would rather be.

I decided to drag myself into my clothes and disguise myself. If Honorah married me, she would have to hurry about it.

Following this sensible impulse I began to pack my belongings into my grips. I dressed. I planned my escape down to the last detail. There was a train at noon, and I would take that train, leaving nothing of it behind.

I climbed up on a what-not to get my other hat off the top of the high-boy, and right then occurred what came near being the most fatally disastrous incident in my spotted career.

I fell off that danged what-not, being somewhat trembly anyhow, doubled my right leg under me and busted the bone absolutely in two.

Wouldn't that get you? Me! I fell off a dinky what-not and broke my leg!

I've had my horse fall on me a dozen times, and all I ever broke was a watch crystal—and here I had to break a leg in my own bedroom.

Well, Jeremiah Henks came in about that time, picked me up, put me on the bed, and sent for the doctor. He set my leg and told me I'd be in bed for eight weeks.

I know now how the criminal feels when the Judge says, "Not less than 10 years nor more than 15."

After that I merely lay there, waiting for my doom to come and get me. Honorah Henks tended me and brought me beef tea with her own fair hands. She was horribly kind and gentle with me, like the warden is with the guy who's to go to the chair next Monday at break of day.

Jeremiah tactfully broke the news of the approaching wedding; and for all the pleasure it gave me he might as well have broke my other leg.

"You know, of course, Shorty," he said cheerfully, sitting on the foot of the bed and smiling at me, "what the women of Germantown are talking about?"

"No," I said, "I don't."

"I THOUGHT you did," he went on. "When Amanda B. Perkins came in unexpected that morning and found Honorah holding your hand, it was a distinct shock to her. This town, Shorty, as you may have noticed, is largely governed by the women, and what they want usually goes. I might say that most of them are unmarried and somewhat elderly, and they hold strong views on the subject of marriage. When they decided that you must marry Honorah, that simply settled it. Honorah is older than you, and I will say truthfully that she has had few chances to marry. I personally will be glad of it. In fact, I am heart and soul with the ladies of Germantown concerning this coming wedding, because I am getting somewhat weary of seeing Honorah around the house. What she needs is a husband and a home, and you are undoubtedly the man, Shorty.

nature to the brick contracts, and in the future I will use my not uninfluential efforts to secure other business for you and your concern. I hope you will feel much improved on the nineteenth of the month."

"What's the nineteenth?" I asked cheerlessly.

"The day set for the wedding. I am leaving for New York on an extended visit the twentieth, and I wish to see Honorah safely married before going."

Well, I knew one thing that seemed to settle my hash. My leg would still be broken on the nineteenth. I couldn't run away.

I wondered whether they intended to perform that ceremony with me lying in bed—or whether they'd pack me into one of these armchairs on wheels and push me to my finish.

It was the latter.

A Miss Ewing, vice president of the Uplift Society, came in one day with Honorah and asked me if I had any last words to say before sentence was pronounced. I opined that I couldn't think of anything.

Honorah suggested that perhaps I might want a new suit of clothes in which to be a blushing bridegroom, but I said no. Any clothes at all would do me—and a winding sheet would seem most appropriate.

In this unjoyous state of mind I watched the calendar and cursed the what-not. I never saw the days go by so fast.

AS I stated, Germantown was not what you'd call permanently addicted to weddings, and the preparations began to look like a presidential inauguration. It was an all-ladies' wedding. The men in Germantown sat around the grocery and talked about the poor sucker with the broken leg.

I will not go into a detailed account of what they did in the way of decorating the church and ordering a wedding breakfast, but they did plenty.

And on the morning of the fourteenth of the month the sun broke through my clouds of gloom. Hope raised her beaten head and gave off signs of life. I'll remember that fourteenth of the month till I pass onward.

It seems that Buck Wells got himself accidentally lost while traveling from Omaha to Pop Beesom's ranch, and for causes over which he had no control, and before he knew it, he was in Germantown, where he put up at the International Hotel, intending to take the morning train.

He met my friend, the Chicago drummer, and they conferred. The drummer mentioned me, and Buck Wells had a fit on the spot.

"Shorty Kilgour going to be married!" Buck exclaimed, as I afterward learned. "There's something wrong. Shorty will do a lot of things, and has done 'em, but he would't get married. I know him."

And Buck did know me. Didn't we pal around together for two years, and didn't we attach ourself to Pop Beesom at one and the same time? We sure did!

Fifteen minutes after Buck Wells learned that I was in bed with a broken leg—and in imminent danger of matrimony—he climbed the steps of the Henks mansion and came galloping into my room.

"Well, you old ring-tailed coyote!" Buck yelled, sitting down almost on my wounded pin, "what's all this which is happening?"

"It ain't happened yet," I told him, hugging him as best I could, "but it's likely to happen." And then I told Buck the grewsome details.

"I knew you wouldn't marry anybody if you could help it," he said.

"YOU'VE got to get me out of this," I wailed. "If my leg would hold me up I'd help myself; but as it is I can't get away. We've got to work a scheme, and I've got to get Jeremiah Henks' signature to the brick contract, or all my hard work won't make a cent for me. Therefore, as he won't sign up till the wedding day, you've got to rescue me that day—after he signs."

"How?" Buck asked.

I laid out the plan. Buck was to tear out of town somewhere and find a couple of good ponies, which he would install in the Germantown livery. The wedding was set for high noon, and I would be wheeled to the church in state. I'd get out of the chair at the church steps. I would hobble up the steps to the top, and they'd bring up my chair, after which I'd sit in again and be wheeled down the aisle.

The rescue would come after I had hobbled up the steps.

The platform at the top was about level with a pony's back. Buck would suddenly appear with the two horses, shift them under the platform, and while the ushers were dragging my chariot up the steps I'd simply cross over, land in the saddle and gallop away to freedom, with the brick contracts all signed up in my pocket.

It would be hard on Honorah and the wedding guests, but if I didn't do it it would be harder on me—and I'm always interested most in me.

Buck studied the plan and announced that it hadn't a flaw. So he hung around town, playing pill-pool with the Chicago drummer. He got the horses all right, and they were ready for the job when the morning of the nineteenth dawned.

"YOU CAN'T BACK OUT after you get that far. You've simply got to say 'Yes, I'll marry this dame if it kills me!'"

Jeremiah Henks had apparently forgotten all about the contracts, and when he showed up in a white choker and high hat, I gently reminded him.

"Oh, I'll take care of that after the wedding," he laughed. "No hurry, brother-in-law."

"No, there's no hurry," I admitted, "but I always like to have a man keep his word. You said you'd sign up on the wedding day—and here it is. I'm ready to go to the church, ain't I? Well, you've got to do your part and sign my contracts. If you don't—no wedding. Any sucker who tries to pull me out of bed and take me to church is going to get himself hurt!"

Then Jeremiah signed the papers and gave them to me.

I had one ace in the hole nobody knew about. Honorah and Jeremiah thought I couldn't walk at all, because I had always been in bed when they were around. But I could walk. That is, I could limp around a little by favoring the busted pin. I practiced in my room when nobody was about, because I certainly didn't mean to fall down on my part of the program, which was to get across that platform to the horses.

Well, we started to the church in carriages, on foot and in a wheel-chair. I was in the wheel-chair, with the porter from the International Hotel doing push duty.

WHAT worried me was Buck's absence. He hadn't shown up at all in the morning, nor had he sent me word, and I began to fidget, though I trusted Buck implicitly. Honorah was dressed up in white like a sore thumb, and the ladies of the Germantown Civic Purity and Dynamic Uplift Society stood around and talked about me.

A block from the church I began to get cold in the feet. It dawned upon me that maybe something had happened to Buck Wells—in which case I was a gone goose!

We turned into the churchyard and wheeled down to the front of the steps, and I nearly broke my neck looking for horses on the horizon.

No horses—and no Buck!

I stumbled out of my chair in spite of protests, and made my way up to the platform. The coon lifted the chair, and I shuffled over to where the big scene was to be pulled off.

There was no more sign of Buck Wells than there is dust on the ocean. He had deserted me!

I breathed in a long sigh and gave myself up. I was sunk.

They put me back in the chair, and down the aisle we went, with the organ tuning up and the smell of flowers assaulting my nose. The audience crowded into the pews, and Honorah walked beside my ambulance. I could see a minister in the offing, holding a book, from which would soon come the fatal words.

Maybe you think I could of backed out of it. Maybe you think I could rise up and tell the minister that the whole thing was a frame-up, and that I didn't mean to get married—and wouldn't. You may feel that it was up to me to renege right there and hobble out of the church a single man, because this is a free nation and nobody can marry you against your will.

All right. Were you ever in a wheel-chair, going down the aisle with your blushing bride-to-be? Were you ever there, with the people all waiting, their eyes popping out, and the minister standing there, with the best man holding the ring and the bridesmaids giggling and the organ moaning?

You can't back out after you get that far. It's one of the impossibilities. You've simply got to say, "Yes, I'll marry this dame if it kills me!" because that's the only thing left to say.

It's psychological.

Well, there's no use prolonging the agony. You know I'm not a married man, and never was one, so you can tell Honorah Henks didn't snag me!

But it was close! Holy suffering catfish, it was close, lads!

TO BEGIN with, Buck Wells hadn't deserted me at all. He had met with a slight mishap. There were only two horses in the livery stable on the morning of the nineteenth, and they belonged to Buck and me; but a couple of dudes from New York wanted to go riding, and I'll eat my hat if that condemned livery stable guy didn't go and rent him our ponies at $2 an hour before Buck was awake!

When he found it out he didn't have time to stop and kill the livery man. He started on foot after the two dudes, and spent most of the morning running in a southwesterly direction from Germantown. I don't know what happened when he caught up with our steeds, but he had a gun with him and the dudes were unarmed. It took him one minute to dismount them and start back, but in the meantime I was getting nearer and nearer the "I do" part of the ceremonials.

Buck reached the church much too late to pull off our platform rescue, and darned near too late to do any rescuing at all. I remember that they were fixing up the inside of the building, and there was some scaffolding near the front where the carpenters had left it.

I was on my feet—actually standing up there like a man and scared to death, but not showing it—when I heard Buck's whoop, and I have never heard a sweeter sound.

There was a long wide high window in the side of the church near the railing, and on the opposite side I noticed a rope that was tied to the window sill, the other end being fastened to the ceiling of the church directly over my head.

I saw Buck ride up outside the left-hand window and stare in at me, and right there I thought of a way out.

That dangling rope gave me the idea. Buck was just outside the window, which, as I said, was wide and high. The poor stiff just sat on his horse and glared in at me, as helpless as a cat in a cuspidor, waiting for me to go to my doom. The brown horse was right close beside his pony.

Just before the minister turned to ask me whether I'd find any permanent joy in paying Honorah's bills the rest of her life, I raised my voice in a yell that startled all present and notified Buck that something was coming off.

As I said, that rope did it. The high end was tied to the ceiling and the low end to the window, above the heads of the congregation and opposite where Buck was holding the horses. My legs weren't good for much, but I had my arms; and if I could once reach that rope I felt I'd be on my way to safety.

Then I bolted from my almost-bride. I tore up a ladder the carpenters had left standing against the window, where the rope was tied; unfastened the knot, grabbed the rope high up, gave myself one terrific push and—swung.

I sailed over the heads of the astounded wedding group and then let go. Buck was sitting, braced, on a white horse, and I came through the window like a ton of brick.

HE CAUGHT me, all right, but I nearly knocked him silly. The brown pony was right beside us, and I fell into the saddle, and then we sailed out of that danger spot at a general speed of 31 miles an hour.

I think we galloped due west for two hours before we dared to look around or speak.

"You dod-gasted old skunk," I said to Buck, "you nearly let me go through with it!"

Then he told me about the two dudes and the horses, and mentioned that he had punched one of them, which cheered me some.

Two days later me and Buck rode into Pop Beesom's ranch. My leg hurt me a heap, but that did not concern me at all. I had my health and my contracts for brick.

"Well," said Pop, greeting us, "you're back, Shorty, safe and sound. I knew you'd come."

"I don't know whether I'm safe or not," I told Pop, "and it's a cinch I'm not all sound. But if you're willing to take on an earnest cow-chaser, who promises never, never again to bust off the reservation, I'm looking for steady work."

Pop cussed me a couple of times, and I went down to the shack where the boys were. Since then I've had more sense than ever, as you may have observed.

RING LARDNER Interviews Professor Glottis on Tripping to the Pole

PRETTY near everybody that can rent or borrow a balloon or bicycle seems to of picked out this spring and summer as the time to visit what some after-dinner speaker has dubbed the North Pole, and it is said that the congestion up in "that neck of the woods" has all ready became so congested that the Mayor of Poland has assigned 3 extra mounted Eskimos to the traffic squad to work week day afternoons and all day Saturday and Sunday. Dame Rumor hath it that one of these policemens, a fellow it seems by the name of Cardiac Tepus, was fined 1-2 a mo. salary and scolded something fierce for his failure to catch up with and give Lieut. Byrd a ticket when the reckless denizen tore through the city limits of Pole at a speed that would even be illegal in Cicero, Illinois.

My employers, sensing in their peculiar way that polar expeditions was more or less in the public eye these days, asked me one evening last wk. to go over to Chin, Long Island, and interview that master explorer of all time, Prof. Sterno Glottis, who was the first to discover that it was possible to obtain strong drink after it was vs. the law if you went at it the right way. The interviewer found Prof. Glottis playing Bemis with his housekeeper, a Mrs. Gourd or some such name.

"I don't want to interrupt your game," was my opening remarks.

"I am glad to have it interrupted," replied Mrs. Gourd, or perhaps Gould, bowing herself out of the room and beginning to do her hair. "I am afraid Prof. Glottis is invincible at Bemis."

Informed of my errand, the professor was inclined to take a jocose view of the whole incident.

"They could solve the traffic problem up there in an hour if they would use common horse sense, or even horse liniment," he said, putting away the Bemis things for the night. "All they need do is substitute seals for Eskimos and provide free tourist camps. If there is one place where police ought to be efficient, that one place is the Pole."

I asked him why.

"Because," he replied, taking the Bemis things out and dusting them with some light material, "that is where police started. The very word police is a combination of Pole and Ice. That is why you will always find more or less lawlessness, lynchings and etc. in warm latitudes, where there is no Pole and very little ice."

I lay down on the dais, hoping to get a better view of the professor's form.

"I AM bored feeble," he continued, "by some of the remarks credited to Amundson, Byrd, Ellsworth, Wilkins and the rest. For example, before setting sail in the Norge, Amundsen said, 'I can be in the air a month.' Why the Philadelphia and Boston ball clubs has been there whole seasons. And you will notice that of all the boys that claims to of discovered the Pole, Admiral Peary and Joe Cook's uncle is the only ones that even spent the night there. If it is such a he-ll of a place, why don't people stay there a while?"

Prof. Glottis now began balancing himself, which I had been warned was a sign that he was apt to change his mind. Sure enough, his next remarks was just the opposite.

"Personly, I love the Pole," he said, "and I have got plans in regards to same which I will ask that you keep them sub your rosa. I intend going up there in July, but when I go it won't be in no 2-passenger toy balloon or go-cart. It will be in a special train and along with me will be a full crew of realtors, landscape gardeners, golf architects, contractors, carpenters and builders. I am going to start a real estate development up there that will make Coral Gables, Boca Raton, Hollywood, New Port, Ritchey and them places look like the suburbs of a ash bbl. The golf course will all be on the ice, with every shot a chip shot. As far as ice is concerned up there you can take your pick. I intend to build 2 mammoth hotels with a thousand rooms each, all opening into each other with no doors. I figure people can keep warmer that way, not always having to get up and open and shut doors."

"That is just what I was going to ask you," I interrupted; "what about heat?"

"Yes," said Prof. Glottis, "what about heat?"

"I am the one is asking you that," said I. "What about heat?"

"Well, of course," said the professor, "I won't make no effort to install heating plants, but if the guests can't keep warm standing over the hotel registers, why there is always mustard plasters."

"I wonder."

"But enough of the Pole," Prof. Glottis said, regaining his feet. "I would like to forget all that and introduce you to the mysteries of Bemis."

In a moment we were seated opposite to one another, with the Bemis board between us and I was being instructed in the fine points of the game that bids fair to become a formidable rival of radio, motion pictures and archery.

THE COVER

FROM the massive collection of representative modern European paintings, assembled by the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburg, and exhibited this month and last at the St. Louis Art Museum, comes the colorful rose-wreathed maid, "Tamara," done by the brush of Dimitri Romanovsky, and reproduced as this week's cover of the Magazine. Chosen from the Russian group of 30 paintings, "Tamara," in gracious mien, serves to introduce the series of Carnegie exhibition covers which will appear during ensuing weeks.

The most comprehensive collection of its kind shown in St. Louis since the World's Fair of 1904 is the Carnegie exhibit, which comprises 364 paintings, characteristic of 12 nations and representative of artists both famous and obscure. Formerly it was not placed on view outside of Pittsburg, but of late years the Institute has seen fit to share the results of its long years of labor with other museums. For the St. Louis showing the collection is divided into two groups, the second of which is now on view and will remain on view during the month of June.

The collection, as a whole, is not indicative of the taste of any one individual, but a selection "which groups of recognized intelligences in many nations regard as belonging to various and sundry standards of art." The standards of one country are not necessarily, of course, the standards of another country. Differences of traditions, nationality and environment, both mental and physical, breed different temperaments, and it is natural that these conditions should be reflected in the art of a people. Less than other European schools of art, perhaps, has the Russian school yielded to foreign influence. Although many of the Russian painters represented in the exhibit are now living in countries other than their own for political and economic reasons, most of their work retains the Slavic touch.

Romanovsky, for example, now makes his home in New York, but his "Tamara," the best-known product of his brush, smiles at the spectator from the remote reaches of the Steppes, a winsome example of Muscovite peasantry in gala holiday attire.

The Motor Trails Are Calling

THE romance of exploring—the sweet fresh air of the country—are waiting for you on the highway. All roads lead to pleasure if you heed the call of the great outdoors. Sunny roads and shaded roads—straight roads and twisted roads—all hold a gypsy joy.

Polarine adds to the pleasure of motoring. Your engine, lubricated with Polarine, the perfect motor oil, will purr along smoothly and steadily. There is a particular grade of Polarine to give correct lubrication in your car. Consult chart at any Standard Oil Service Station or Authorized Garage.

She's always prepared when company comes

VISITORS never worry her—no matter how unexpectedly they drop in. She welcomes them with a smile and is always at ease. For, back in the pantry, she has a Hostess Package of "Canada Dry." You've no idea what a friend in need that is.

Have you ever been forced to "send out" suddenly for refreshments when good friends call? Why not save yourself this trouble and embarrassment?

Just order a convenient Hostess Package of "Canada Dry" from a nearby dealer—keep it handy in the pantry—and you'll be prepared for even the most particular guest.

But be sure to get "Canada Dry." There is no other ginger ale like it. None so refreshing! None so delicious or distinguished.

Once you taste it, you will never again be satisfied with any other ginger ale. For "Canada Dry" is so different from the ordinary ginger ale that it might almost be called by another name.

Special Hostess Package

A new way of packing "Canada Dry." Ideal for home use. Twelve bottles in a substantial carton. You will be especially glad to have it handy for your dinners at home or when friends drop in unexpectedly. This Hostess Package is sold by all "Canada Dry" dealers.

The discovery that let the Martins furnish their extra room

THEY hadn't hoped to get the beautiful furniture they wanted and complete the whole house—but the Cavalier dealer showed them that fine furniture can be reasonably priced.

Beauty without extravagance

Cavalier Furniture—dining room and bedroom—has the finished beauty of suites many times more costly. The designs are stylish and distinctive. The matched, full-grain walnut veneering is splendidly done and finished to bring out all the richness of the wood.

Nothing is skimped. Drawers run smoothly because of generous, oversize guides. Even the dresser backs are neatly, carefully finished. Every Cavalier piece bears a guarantee of fine construction on the tag. This assures service as well as beauty. It pays you to watch for it and also for the figure of the Cavalier that appears only on the genuine.

See this furniture for yourself

Call at the Cavalier dealer's. He'll show you how to make your furniture budget buy more beauty and greater value than you ever dreamed possible.

SIXTH and LOCUST Streets

"If you want the truth—

"—go to a child." And the old saying is certainly true, isn't it?

Here was the case of a young woman who, in spite of her personal charm and beauty, never seemed to hold men friends.

For a long, long time she searched her mind for the reason. It was a tragic puzzle in her life.

Then one day her little niece told her,

You, yourself, rarely know when you have halitosis (unpleasant breath). That's the insidious thing about it. And even your closest friends won't tell you.

Sometimes, of course, halitosis comes from some deep-seated organic disorder that requires professional advice. But usually—and fortunately—halitosis is only a local condition that yields to the regular use of Listerine as a mouth wash and gargle. It puts you on the safe and polite side. Moreover, in using Listerine to combat halitosis, you are quite sure to avoid sore throat and those more serious illnesses that start with throat infection.

Listerine halts food fermentation in the mouth and leaves the breath sweet, fresh and clean. Not by substituting some other odor but by really removing the old one. The Listerine odor itself quickly disappears.

This safe and long-trusted antiseptic has dozens of different uses; note the little circular that comes with every bottle. Your druggist sells Listerine in the original brown package only—never in bulk. There are four sizes: 14 ounce, 7 ounce, 3 ounce and 1¼ ounce. Buy the large size for economy.—Lambert Pharmacal Company, Saint Louis, U. S. A.

For HALITOSIS use LISTERINE

A CHALLENGE

We'll make a little wager with you that if you try one tube of Listerine Tooth Paste, you'll come back for more.

"I AM AN ATHLETE, having played baseball, basketball and football. The severe and long training for contests was wearing me out. The captain of our high school basketball team advised me to start eating Fleischmann's Yeast. I did so. Fleischmann's Yeast has made my body a picture of health."
Gordon M. Atkins, Conshohocken, Penn.

ADVERTISEMENT

"I WAS A VICTIM of continual suffering, sometimes lessened by a so-called purgative. I resorted to Yeast as a 'regularity' restorative. The result was noticeable within a week. Not only did Yeast effect a complete, natural elimination, but I began to have more life and 'pep.' Yeast has made me exempt from the terrors of constipation."
William F. Shaw, Chicago, Ill.

Now , , They find life worth-while ,

"AS A GOLFER and in fact in all my activities I have found it necessary to be in perfect physical condition. To this end I discovered that three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast each day keep me up to the mark and forestall that staleness which is so often the result of over training among athletes. I claim that my 'birdies' on the golf links are the result of daily cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast eaten on crackers."
Merle Rowland, New York City

They banished their ills—regained youthful vigor and energy—through one fresh food

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes regularly every day before meals: on crackers—in fruit juices, water or milk—or just plain, nibbled from the cake. For constipation especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before breakfast and at bedtime. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today!

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. N-911, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York.

THIS FAMOUS FOOD tones up the entire system—aids digestion—clears the skin—banishes constipation. Start eating it today.

LAST

"FOR THE PAST YEAR I suffered terribly with indigestion. My system was poisoned and I also suffered from an unpleasant skin trouble. A friend who is a trained nurse recommended Fleischmann's Yeast. I took three cakes a day. Now I am eating freely of all good things. And not a trace of my old ailments remains."
